MUSSOLINI, PERHAPS, will be glad to hear that, for the first time in history, an Italian is heavyweight prize fighting champion of the world. Primo Carnaro, whom the dramatic reporters call "The Man Mountain," hit Sharkey hard enough to knock him unconscious.

THERE ARE MANY champions of other kinds in Italy's history. Caesar, in war; Michel Angelo, in painting; sculpture and architecture; Verdi, in music; Marconi, in science; Marcus Aurelius, in wise, benevolent government; and Mussolini himself, champion dictator of all time.

ADDING A PRIZE fighting champion to the list adds little. Any one of 10,000 gladiators, names forgotten, that fought to amuse ancient Rome could have made short work of Sharkey and Carnaro.

SECRETARY SWANSON, of our navy, determined that Uncle Sam's navy shall be "second to none" in promise to build airplanes "to the full complement." Airplanes and submarines will decide future wars. Floating ships are airplane targets, except at cruisers, useful to destroy enemy floating commerce.

SECRETARY SWANSON should inspect plans of the latest military aircraft built by the British, exhibited at the recent air pageant. The world's most powerful aircraft, able to land and navigate on rough water, it is the fastest ever built, except actual racing craft.

COURTLAND SMITH, an intelligent young man, wonders why government does not "put the army to work looking for gold." He surmises accurately that gold would be more useful, prospecting for gold in mountains, than they are in the United States and has never really sought or disdained by army men engineers.

GOLD cost no more than a dollar more than pay for it. It is a fact that the government, on behalf of the government, is "soldiering for Uncle Sam" would take on a new charm if it could.

PRESIDENT HEADS TOWARDS CAPITAL

His Thoughts Turn Back to Work After Restful Vacation

CAMPO BELLO ISLAND, N. B., July 1.—(P)—President Roosevelt started back from his vacation cruise today aboard the cruise Indianapolis, with his train again turning to work, and not particularly to the London economic conference.

Before boarding this new 10,000-ton cruiser late this afternoon, the president made it definitely known that he has sanctioned no formal agreement at London on stabilization of currency. Advisers of the president are convinced he is ready to act in the next few days. He communicated last night with the London meeting. There was no statement, however, by him on the event. But it is his opinion that temporary stabilization to prevent widespread fluctuation must be accomplished by the central banks and not by the governments and that permanent stabilization is not in sight until the gold standard countries have shown that they can remain on that standard.

It was a well rested, bronze-faced president who stood on the deck of the destroyer Ellis at Welchport wharf.

Lightning Causes Fire At Oil Storage Tanks

ELIZABETH, N. J., July 1.—(P)—Two storage tanks at a Texas Oil company were destroyed tonight in a fire started by lightning. The flames spread to a third tank and menaced nine others on the property, but firemen brought the fire under control when chemicals arrived.

The tanks which were lost contained 7,000 barrels of oil each. They were still burning at midnight. Two firemen were injured. James Delaney and James Dolan, both Elizabeth firemen, were taken to the Elizabeth Brothers hospital with fractured right ankles after they were thrown off their ladder.

A general alarm was sounded, and hundreds of persons motored to the district along the Elizabeth river to watch the flames. At the height of the fire the Standard Oil company furnished the firemen with chemicals and the blaze in the third tank was extinguished. The other tanks were too far gone by that time and were permitted to burn while firemen took further precautions to keep the flames from spreading.

TRAGEDY MARKS OPENING FLIGHT OF AIR ARMADA

Sergeant Is Killed as Ship Capsizes on Arrival at Amsterdam

General Balbo Orders Pilots to Be Ready for Hop to Ireland

AMSTERDAM, July 1.—(P)—The arrival here today of the Italian air armada of 25 seaplanes en route for Chicago under command of Air Minister General Italo Balbo was marked by tragedy when one of the ships capsized on striking the water, resulting in the death of Sergeant Quintavalle and the injury of three other members of the crew.

General Balbo, the youthful bearded leader of the squadron, and his companions were much disturbed at the loss of life.

Shortly after midnight, however, he talked with attaché of the Meteorological institute of Holland and then ordered the pilots to be ready to leave their hotel at 5 a. m. (11 p. m., eastern standard time, Saturday) for London-Ireland, forty minutes later.

The Italian squadron made a spectacular arrival here and received a warm welcome but the plane of which Sergeant Quintavalle was engineer turned over as it alighted and the sergeant was suffocated.

The commander of the ill-fated craft, Flight Lieutenant Baldini, was stated to be suffering from concussion, flying Officer Novelli, second in command, had a broken arm and leg, while another member of the crew suffered a fractured jaw and broken shoulder bone. Only one member of the crew was unhurt.

DENNIS CHARGED WITH KIDNAPING

Monroe Man Accused of Abducting Girl Last Thursday Afternoon

Formally charged in a warrant with kidnapping Miss M. Bennett, 18, Richland parish girl, B. T. Dennis, 37, of Monroe, was released from the parish jail Saturday under bond of $2,500, after having been arrested Friday. He was arrested by Police Officer J. M. Bushy of Monroe on the request of J. M. Hammors, chief of police of West Monroe.

The alleged kidnapping occurred between 3:30 and 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, as Miss Bennett was walking from Monroe to the home of relatives at 116 Reagan street, West Monroe. She told Mr. Hammors that while she was in the 200 block on Coleman avenue a man whom she did not know at the time drove alongside and asked her if she wanted to ride. As she did not know him, she paid no attention and continued walking, it was said.

According to the girl's story, the man then jumped out of his car, which was a 1929 model Pontiac coupe, grabbed her in his arms and forced her into the machine. Holding her with one arm, he drove northward until they reached Major McGuire park, the girl said.

As the car started to round a sharp turn in the road, the man lost control of it and the machine almost went into a ditch. In order to right the car, he put on the brakes and used both hands on the steering wheel. This was said.

The services today were conducted by the officers of New York lodge No. 1, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, acting for the officers of Los Angeles lodge No. 99, of which Arbuckle was a member.

The widow, Mrs. Addie McPhail Arbuckle, accompanied by her 8-year-old daughter by a previous marriage, Marilyn, and Joe and Barty May, members of a vaudeville team, and other friends, took a front row seat in the chapel.

LONDON, July 1.—(P)—The foreign office announced late today that the British trade embargo against Soviet Russia will be lifted tonight and at the same time the two British engineers imprisoned in Moscow, L. C. Thornton, and W. L. Macdonald, will be released.

Colonel Roscoe Turner Sets New Transcontinental Mark To Win Cross-Country Race

WINS AIR RACE
Jimmie Wedell of New Orleans Takes Second Place in Dash

LOS ANGELES, July 1.—(P)—Rocketsing westward from New York to set a new transcontinental speed record from the Atlantic to the Pacific, Col. Roscoe Turner, veteran racing pilot of Hollywood, won the cross-country dash of the National Air races today with a time of 11 hours, 30 minutes.

Half an hour behind him came Jimmie Wedell, the New Orleans plane designer and speed pilot, to take second place.

Turner's flight broke his own record by 1 hour, 3 minutes, and Wedell was 33 minutes ahead of the mark the Pacific coast pilot set last fall.

In the wake of these two, were four other fliers, one the trans-Atlantic pilot, Amelia Earhart, all forced out of the gruelling race. One, Russell Boardman, holder of the American long distance flying record set in a flight from New York to Istanbul, lay in an Indianapolis hospital, critically injured by the crash of his ship.

The other two, Lee Gehlbach and Russell Shaw, were forced out early in the race. Shaw broke a wing tip in landing at Indianapolis and a faulty gasoline line put Gehlbach out in an emergency landing near New Bethel, Ind., leaving only Turner and Wedell to finish.

Continued French participation in the world assemblage was announced at a French cabinet meeting when Camille Chautemps, minister of interior, declared, "A journey of the world conference is not foreseen."

The determination of France to fight for the gold standard was stressed, however, and Georges Bonnet, finance minister and leader of the gold bloc at London, received endorsement.

Conferees considering plans for relief of the wheat world were encouraged by word from Australia that the heads of three states there had agreed to a restriction in wheat export. Consideration by the federal cabinet will precede dispatching of further instructions to Stanley M. Bruce, Australian minister.

Two men slain in vote battle in Kentucky

PRESTONSBURG, Ky., July 1.—(P)—Two men were slain when guns blazed in a crowded voting booth on Prater creek today, another was perhaps fatally wounded while five others had gunshot wounds.

Men, women and children crowded the little building when a dispute arose over the rights of some of them to vote in the school trustee election. Seated on opposite sides of a table the two factions, one supporting Arnold Robinette and the other supporting Arville Sammons, opened fire.

Wilburn Conn, 30, and Wayne Cline, 35, died as they fell. Green Conn, about 60, father of Wilburn, was paralyzed by a bullet and was not expected to survive.

The other wounded were Minnie Conn and Ike Conn, who were shot through the chest; Clarence and Mildred Conn, sons of Minnie, and Hayden Howell.

Meanwhile from Emma, another voting place where a school trustee election was held, came the report that Dr. Ballard Leslie, a physician, was slightly wounded in another shooting.

Indications Are That French Delegates Will Remain at Conclave

(By Associated Press)
Rejection by President Roosevelt "in its present form" of a monetary truce designed to satisfy the demands of gold standard countries, disturbed by the wide fluctuations of the dollar and threatening a bolt from the parity, left the world economic conference in an uncertain state last night.

A statement Monday by Cordell Hull, American secretary of state, and chairman of the United States delegation, was issued. In it he will elaborate American policy in respect to the monetary tieup.

As the president headed back toward Washington it was made clear that he had sanctioned no formal agreement concerning currency stabilization, but the view was held among some of his advisers that he was ready to act within the next few days.

ORLEANS PARISH JURY IS ACCUSED OF CROOKEDNESS

Member of Group Makes Charges After Meeting to Probe Ballots

NEW ORLEANS, July 1.—(P)—The Times-Picayune today quoted James M. Colomb, a member of the Orleans parish grand jury, as accusing the body of an "illegal and immoral act" in their investigation of election fraud charges in New Orleans and announcing that he would request the court to relieve him "from further service on the grand jury."

After holding several recent sessions in which the election charges were investigated without recording formal action, the grand jury yesterday held an afternoon session and adjourned until next Wednesday.

At yesterday's session the grand jury obtained an order from Judge Alexander C. O'Donnell and had all of the city ballot boxes used in last November's election, delivered to the grand jury room from the custody of Edward A. Haggerty, clerk of criminal district court.

Thereupon James O'Connor, assistant attorney general, announced that representing State Attorney General Gaston L. Porter, he had taken to the grand jury room a bill of indictment against all the election officials.

The Times-Picayune quoted Mr. Colomb as saying in his statement: "After the ballot boxes were brought into the grand jury room, Assistant Attorney General O'Connor, who was present, retired."

"Mr. Waterman (J. S. Waterman, Jr., foreman of the grand jury) stated that the seals on all the boxes would be broken and that without any inquiry whatsoever into the contents of any of the boxes, a true bill would be voted by the grand jury on all the boxes."

"I then told Mr. Waterman that Judge Echezabal had stated the last time we went into court, when an attempt was made to return a verbal no true bill without any investigation."

CAMP MOREHOUSE CEREMONIES HELD

Reforestation Project Is Formally Dedicated on Saturday

BASTROP, La., July 1.—(Special)—More than 1,000 persons attended the ceremonies today which marked the dedication of the first conservation camp established in this section in conformity with President Roosevelt's national rehabilitation program.

Over 200 boys and young men, assigned to the camp for reforestation work, have been engaged for three weeks constructing buildings for housing, recreation and sanitation, as well as clearing the land for the camp site. Today the preliminary work was completed and the occasion was celebrated with a special program including two baseball games, a barbecue and a dance, in addition to the formal dedication ceremonies which were held tonight in the mess hall.

The proceedings were directed by Captain Ralph L. Ware, of the United States army, who is in charge of the camp, assisted by Lieut. F. A. Parsons, recreation instructor. Captain Ware delivered the dedication speech, and announced that the camp is to be known as "Camp Morehouse," in honor of Col. Abraham Morehouse, the founder of the parish. The captain, in his address, stressed the significance of the camp.

Storm Warning Is Issued By U. S. Weather Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—The weather bureau tonight issued the following storm warning: "No reports received from vicinity of tropical disturbance, but center apparently mid-way between Jamaica and Swan Island, moving west-northwestward about 12 miles per hour. Caution advised vessels near path of storm six hundred and twelve hundred. Special observations requested from vessels in northwestern Caribbean sea. Address messages Observer Washington using International figure code or weather bureau. Vessel weather code if practicable."

MANY MEN EMPLOYED
BOGALUSA, La., July 1.—(P)—Great Southern Lumber company officials have announced that approximately 250 men were added to their working force to man a new shift at their mills here and that a large number of old employees who have been working part time have been restored to full time jobs.

PROGRESS MADE ON COTTON PLAN

Reduction Program Is Proving Satisfactory in Ouachita Parish

Excellent progress is being made in the government's cotton retirement program in Ouachita parish. E. R. Strahan, agricultural agent, said Saturday night. The agent expects some of the districts in the parish to finish the work by Tuesday and that others will complete the task rapidly thereafter.

After signing an agreement to plow up 25 per cent of his cotton, P. M. Donald of Drew community went to the office of the agricultural agent and stated he wanted to plow up 30 per cent of his crop. The first contract was destroyed and another was made in which he agreed to destroy half of his crop. He has 40 acres in cotton, which will make 20 to be destroyed.

D. Y. Smith of Sterling, member of the parish cotton retirement committee, who at first planned to destroy 25 per cent of his cotton, later changed his mind and signed a contract for 50 per cent. Mr. Smith is one of the largest growers of cotton in the parish and has more than 400 acres planted to the crop this year.

Mr. Strahan said he considered the action taken by Mr. Smith to be a good example to other farmers. Mr. Smith pointed out that he realized the necessity of making the campaign a success and said he feared that if it should fail the price of cotton would go to almost nothing.

Work of obtaining contracts was delayed somewhat during the latter part of the week by a shortage of contract blanks. An adequate supply of blanks was received Saturday and all districts will be supplied so that they may resume work at full force Monday morning.

Contracts obtained in Ouachita parish will be bona fide pledges to plow up.

$750,000 Annual Revenue Is Expected From Beer

BATON ROUGE, July 1.—(P)—Annual yield of approximately $750,000 to the Louisiana treasury from beer revenue was indicated tonight by the June report of state lager levy collections.

The beer tax turned $82,325 into the state's coffers last month. State Auditor L. B. Baynard's records showed, a substantial increase over the first report rendered covering sales from the legalization of beer in Louisiana April 13 to June 1.

In the first report collections amounted to $56,740.45 plus $22,225 in permits, a total of $78,965.45 in tax and permits. The June report was on the beer tax only.

ROGERS HAS HIS SAY

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 1.—(Special)—With all the rest of us using silver, copper, buttons, pins, checkers, wampum and watermelons for money, France can't see any advantage in using real money so they are able to dive off the gold any day now.

Europe is disgusted with America because she won't say exactly what her dollar is worth. We say your dollar is like a wife, they are worth whatever they are worth to you. They may go to 10 cents abroad but they are still worth a dollar to us.

Millionaire Former Barber Abducted on Street in Chicago

CRIME FOLLOWS PARTY
Stock Plunger Is Pounded Upon by Two Carloads of Gangsters

CHICAGO, July 1.—(P)—Kidnaped in the presence of his son and wife, "Jake the Barber" Factor was held incommunicado tonight by his abductors. Eager to meet any ransom demand from his father's captors, the son, Jerome himself a recent kidnap victim, kept vigil behind locked doors in a 40th story hotel suite awaiting communication from the band holding prisoner the stock market plunger and erstwhile barber.

A gay party in a Marmorover roadhouse last night had been followed by the spectacular kidnaping.

Factor, the gay dog of night clubs, habitué of gaming tables—the story runs that he has pocketed $100,000, from his play in recent weeks—was pounced on by two autoloads of kidnapers bristling with guns. From a car behind, Mrs. Factor and Mrs. Al Epstein, hysterical, watched their husbands dragged from the automobile young Jerome was driving.

Jerome was sent on his way. Epstein was put out some distance away. They met in Factor's hotel quarters, announced they were eager to meet demands of the abductors, locked their doors and settled down for an anxious vigil.

Hours went by, rumors ran that the anticipated bill for Factor's freedom had come through the usual underground route; $100,000 or $150,000, was the fancied price.

Late this afternoon, however, Lieut. Leo Carr was admitted to the rooms

ALBERT ERSKINE SHOOTS HIMSELF

Former Manager of Studebaker Corporation Commits Suicide

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 1.—(P)—Albert Russell Erskine, whose management of the Studebaker corporation was terminated only a few weeks ago by receivership proceedings, ended his life today at his home. He shot himself in the heart.

The sixty-two year old business executive who began as a bookkeeper, apparently planned deliberately to commit suicide. As his wife left him to go to breakfast he instructed her to send their adopted son, Albert Russell Erskine, Jr., to his room.

Russell went to the father's chambers and there found the body, a gun nearby. In the room was a note addressed to the son. It read: "Russell: I can not go any longer. Devotedly, A. R. E."

The suicide occurred at the Erskine estate, two miles south of here about four miles from the gigantic motor plant of the Studebaker corporation. Across from the estate is the Erskine golf course donated by Erskine to the city of South Bend.

The motor magnate killed himself shortly after his wife left his room about 9 a. m. Paul G. Hoffman, receiver for the Studebaker corporation, announced the death some time later.

Neumann and Davis Take New Laurels in Air Race

CHICAGO, July 1.—(P)—Harold Neumann of Moline, Ill., and Art Davis of Lansing, Mich.—two of the nation's foremost speed pilots—each added new laurels to their racing crowns today in the opening events of the American air races.

Neumann's tiny monoplane flashed around the winning pylon ahead in the first of the two 25 mile races, five times around a triangular five mile course. His speed in winning the $1,000 prize averaged 107.25 miles an hour.

Following him into the home stretch in order were Ray Hunt of Norman, Okla., Charles Smith of Cleveland, and Roy Tooman, Jr., of Muscatine, Iowa.

Talmadge Kinnebrew Is Sworn in As Homer Mayor

HOMER, La., June 2.—(Special)—Talmadge Kinnebrew took the oath of office Saturday as mayor of Homer succeeding Lamont Seals, who had been mayor for the past six years. Other newly elected officials are A. E. Dewees and Wideman Watson, aldermen, and Joe LeSage, night marshal.

Harry McKenzie, R. S. Gill, and N. J. Kendrick were re-elected to the board of aldermen and L. C. Baird to the post of marshal.

LOS ANGELES, July 1.—(AP)—Rocketing westward from New York to set a new transcontinental speed record from the Atlantic to the Pacific, Col. Roscoe Turner, veteran racing pilot of Hollywood, won the cross-country dash of the National Air races today with a time of 11 hours, 30 minutes.

Half an hour behind him came Jimmie Wedell, the New Orleans plane designer and speed pilot, to take second place.

Turner's flight broke his own record by 1 hour, 3 minutes, and Wedell was 33 minutes ahead of the mark the Pacific coast pilot set last fall.

In the wake of these two were four other fliers, one the trans-Atlantic pilot, Amelia Earhart, all forced out of the gruelling race. One, Russell Boardman, holder of the American long distance flying record set in a flight from New York to Istanbul, lay in an Indianapolis hospital, critically injured by the crash of his ship.

The other two, Lee Gehlbach and Russell Thaw, were forced out early in the race. Thaw broke a wing tip in landing at Indianapolis and a faulty gasoline line put Gehlbach out in an emergency landing near New Bethel, Ind., leaving only Turner and Wedell to finish.

LAREDO, Texas, July 1.—(AP)—The New Orleans police department today asked that "A. Morris," to whom large sums of money have been sent by registered mail since his arrival here, be detained. W. J. O'Leary, Texas highway patrolman, received a telegram from John J. Grosch, chief of detectives at New Orleans, requesting that "Morris" be held pending instructions from the New Orleans police department.

Candelario Mendiola, Laredo chief of police, today swore out a complaint against "Morris" in justice court charging him with transporting stolen property into Texas. "Morris" was arrested at a Laredo hotel yesterday with $1,630 in his possession. He had driven to Laredo in an automobile bearing a Mississippi license.

A registered letter consigned to "Morris" arrived at his arrest yesterday containing ten new $100 bills, another envelope came containing eight new $50 bills and one $100 bill. This morning a registered package arrived for him containing two neckties, with eighteen $50 concealed in one necktie and twenty-two $30 bills in the other tie. All of the new currency had been issued by the federal reserve bank at Atlanta, Ga.

"Morris" tried to obtain his liberty today on a writ of habeas corpus but district Judge J. F. Mullally overruled his motion at a hearing. Two of the registered letters and one registered package were opened at the hearing.

Five Persons Are Held In Mysterious Shooting

TEXARKANA, Ark., July 1.—(AP)—Five persons, including a woman, were held for investigation here today in connection with the mysterious shooting of P. A. McSwain, 37, lunch stand proprietor, whose body was found in a closet at his residence.

Police, who believed they were nearing a solution of the case, were of the opinion that only two persons were involved, but were detaining the others on the supposition that they were withholding valuable information. No charges had been filed.

$1,535,801 Drawn From General Fund to Aid State Penitentiary

Long Was First Executive to Dip Into General Fund For Pen Aid

Long declared that the penitentiary was not only self-supporting under his administration, but was actually making money. He cited specific savings and economies, such as the

1932, out of general fund ..... 342,000.00

Fiscal loan, bonded 1932 ..... 744,801.03

Total ..... $1,535,801.03
These sums were additions to the regular appropriations for maintenance, which come out of the earnings of the penitentiary. Prior to the administration of Governor Long, the penitentiary was supported and its debts paid, exclusively out of those earnings.

It was not until 1930 that the general revenues of the state were drawn on for penitentiary aid, and in four years this draft aggregated $1,535,801.03, as above detailed.

This aggregate is equal to over one-third of the entire amount the state may collect for public schools from all sources, this year on the basis of the 1932 assessment and existing tax laws.

Long declared that the penitentiary was not only self-supporting under his administration, but was actually making money. He cited specific savings and economies, such as the

ROOSEVELT WON'T ACCEPT TRUCE TO STABILIZE MONEY

He Refuses Plan to Satisfy Demands of Gold Standard Countries

RESULT IS UNCERTAIN

(By Associated Press)
Rejection by President Roosevelt "in its present form" of a monetary truce designed to satisfy the demands of gold standard countries, disturbed by the wide fluctuations of the dollar and threatening a bolt from the parley, left the world economic conference in an uncertain state last night.

A statement Monday by Cordell Hull, American secretary of state, and chairman of the United States delegation, was promised. In it he will elaborate American policy in respect to the monetary truce.

At yesterday's session the grand jury obtained an order from Judge Alexander C. O'Donnell and had all of the city ballot boxes used in last November's election, delivered to the grand jury room from the custody of Edward A. Haggerty, clerk of criminal district court.

Thereupon James O'Connor, assistant attorney general, announced that, representing State Attorney General Gaston L. Porter, he had taken to the grand jury room a bill of indictment against all the election officials.

The Times-Picayune quoted Mr. O'Connor as saying in his statement: "After the ballot boxes were brought into the grand jury room, Assistant Attorney General O'Connor, who was present, retired."

"Mr. Waterman (J. S. Waterman, Jr., foreman of the grand jury) stated that the seals on all the boxes would be broken and that without any inquiry whatsoever into the contents of any of the boxes, a no true bill would be voted by the grand jury on all the boxes."

He then told Mr. Waterman that Judge Echeverria had stated the last time we went into court, when an attempt was made to return a verbal no true bill without any investigation.

TWO MEN SLAIN IN VOTE BATTLE

Blaze at Ballot Place in Kentucky

PRESTONSBURG, Ky., July 1.—(AP)—Two men were slain when guns blazed in a crowded voting booth on Prater creek today, another was perhaps fatally wounded while five others had gunshot wounds.

Men, women and children crowded the little building when a dispute arose over the rights of some of them to vote in the school trustee election. Seated on opposite sides of a table the two factions, one supporting Arnold Robinette and the other supporting Arville Sammons, opened fire.

Wilburn Conn, 30, and Wayne Click, 35, died as they fell. Green Conn, about 60, father of Wilburn, was paralyzed by a bullet and was not expected to survive.

The other wounded were Mimms Conn and Ike Conn, who were shot through the chest; Clarence and Mildred Conn, sons of Mimms, and Hayden Howell.

Meanwhile from Emma, another voting place where a school trustee election was held, came the report that Dr. Ballard Leslie, a physician, was slightly wounded in another shooting.

'Jake' Factor Held Prisoner By Kidnapers as Son Awaits Demand for Money Payment

Member of Group Makes Charges After Meeting to Probe Ballots

NEW ORLEANS, July 1.—(AP)—The Times-Picayune today quoted James M. Colomb, a member of the Orleans parish grand jury, as accusing the body of an "illegal and immoral act" in their investigation of election fraud charges in New Orleans and announcing that he would request the court to relieve him "from further service on the grand jury."

After holding several sessions in which the election charges were investigated without recording formal action, the grand jury yesterday held an afternoon session and adjourned until next Wednesday.

At yesterday's session the grand jury obtained an order from Judge Alexander C. O'Donnell and had all of the city ballot boxes used in last November's election, delivered to the grand jury room from the custody of Edward A. Haggerty, clerk of criminal district court.

Thereupon James O'Connor, assistant attorney general, announced that, representing State Attorney General Gaston L. Porter, he had taken to the grand jury room a bill of indictment against all the election officials.

CAMP MOREHOUSE CEREMONIES HELD

Reforestation Project Is Formally Dedicated on Saturday

BASTROP, La., July 1.—(Special)—More than 1,000 persons attended the ceremonies today which marked the dedication of the first conservation camp established in this section in conformity with President Roosevelt's national rehabilitation program.

Over 200 boys and young men, assigned to the camp for reforestation work, have been engaged for three weeks constructing buildings for housing, recreation and sanitation, as well as clearing the land for the camp site. Today the preliminary work was completed and the occasion was celebrated with a special program including two baseball games, a barbecue and a dance, in addition to the formal dedication ceremonies which were held tonight in the mess hall.

The proceedings were directed by Captain Ralph L. Ware, of the United States army, who is in charge of the camp, assisted by Lieut. F. A. Parsons, recreation instructor. Captain Ware delivered the dedication speech, and announced that the camp is to be known as "Camp Morehouse," in honor of Col. Abraham Morehouse, the founder of the parish. The captain, in his address, stressed the significance of the camp.

$750,000 Annual Revenue Is Expected From Beer

BATON ROUGE, July 1.—(AP)—Annual yield of approximately $750,000 to the Louisiana treasury in beer revenue was indicated tonight by the June report of state lager levy collections.

The beer tax turned $62,325 into the state's coffers last month, State Auditor L. B. Baynard's records showed, a substantial increase over the first report rendered covering sales from the legalization of beer in Louisiana April 13 to June 1.

In the first report collections amounted to $56,740.45 plus $22,225 in permits, or a total of $78,965.45 in tax and permits. The June report was on the beer tax only.

ROGERS HAS HIS SAY

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 1.—(Special)—With all the rest of us using silver, copper, buttons, pins, checkers, wampum and watermelons for money, France can't see any advantage in using real money so they are able to dive off the gold any day now.

Europe is disgusted with America because she won't say exactly what her dollar is worth. We say your dollar is like a wife, they are worth whatever they are worth to you. They may go to 10 cents abroad but they are still worth a dollar to us.

PROGRESS MADE ON COTTON PLAN

Reduction Program Is Proving Satisfactory in Ouachita Parish

Excellent progress is being made in the government's cotton retirement program in Ouachita parish, E. R. Strahan, agricultural agent, said Saturday night. The agent expects some of the districts in the parish to finish the work by Tuesday and that others will complete the task rapidly thereafter.

After signing an agreement to plow up 25 per cent of his cotton, P. M. Donald of Drew community went to the office of the agricultural agent and stated he wanted to plow up 30 per cent of his crop. The first contract was destroyed and another was made in which he agreed to destroy half of his crop. He has 40 acres in cotton, which will make 20 to be destroyed.

D. Y. Smith of Sterling, member of the parish cotton retirement committee, who at first planned to destroy 25 per cent of his cotton, later changed his mind and signed a contract for 50 per cent. Mr. Smith is one of the largest growers of cotton in the parish and has more than 400 acres planted to the crop this year.

Mr. Strahan said he considered the action taken by Mr. Smith to be a good example to other farmers. Mr. Smith pointed out that he realized the necessity of making the campaign a success and said he feared that if it should fail the price of cotton would go to almost nothing.

Work of obtaining contracts was delayed somewhat during the latter part of the week by a shortage of contract blanks. An adequate supply of blanks was received Saturday and all districts will be supplied so that they may resume work at full force Monday morning.

Contracts obtained in Ouachita parish will be bona fide pledges to plow up.

Millionaire Former Barber Abducted on Street in Chicago

CRIME FOLLOWS PARTY

Stock Plunger Is Pounded Upon by Two Carloads of Gangsters

CHICAGO, July 1.—(AP)—Kidnaped in the presence of his son and wife, "Jake the Barber" Factor was held incommunicado tonight by his abductors. Eager to meet any ransom demand from his father's captors, the son, Jerome himself a recent kidnap victim, kept vigil behind locked doors in a 40th story hotel suite awaiting communication from the band holding prisoner the stock market plunger and erstwhile barber.

A gay party in a Marmorove roadhouse last night had been followed by the spectacular kidnapping.

Factor, the gay dog of night clubs, habitué of gaming tables—the story runs that he has pocketed $1,000,000 from his play in recent weeks—was pounced on by two autloads of kidnapers bristling with guns. From a car behind, Mrs. Factor and Mrs. Al Epstein, hysterical, watched their husbands dragged from the automobile by young Jerome was driving.

Jerome was sent on his way. Epstein was put out some distance away. They met in Factor's hotel quarters, announced they were eager to meet demands of the abductors, locked their doors and settled down for an anxious vigil.

Hours went by, rumors ran that the anticipated bill for Factor's freedom had come through the usual underground route; $100,000 or $150,000, was the rumored price.

Late this afternoon, however, Lieut. Leo Carr was admitted to the rooms.

ALBERT ERSKINE SHOOTS HIMSELF

Former Manager of Studebaker Corporation Commits Suicide

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 1.—(AP)—Albert Russell Erskine, whose management of the Studebaker corporation was terminated only a few weeks ago by receivership proceedings, ended his life today at his home. He shot himself in the heart.

The sixty-two year old business executive who began as a bookkeeper, apparently planned deliberately to commit suicide. As his wife left him to go to breakfast he instructed her to send their adopted son, Albert Russell Erskine, Jr., to his room.

Russell went to the father's chambers and there found the body, a gun nearby. In the room was a note addressed to the son. It read: "Russell: I can not go any longer. Devotedly, A. R. E."

The suicide occurred at the Erskine estate, two miles south of here about four miles from the gigantic motor plant of the Studebaker corporation. Across from the estate is the Erskine golf course donated by Erskine to the city of South Bend.

The motor magnate killed himself shortly after his wife left his room about 9 a. m. Paul G. Hoffman, receiver for the Studebaker corporation, announced the death some time later.

Neumann and Davis Take New Laurels in Air Race

CHICAGO, July 1.—(AP)—Harold Neumann of Moline, Ill., and Art Davis of Lansing, Mich.—two of the nation's foremost speed pilots—each added new laurels to their racing crowns today in the opening events of the American air races.

Neumann's tiny monoplane flashed around the winning pylon ahead in the first of the two 25 mile races, five times around a triangular five mile course. His speed in winning the $1,000 prize averaged 107.26 miles an hour.

Following him into the home stretch in order were Roy Hunt of Norman, Okla., Charles Smith of Cleveland, and Roy Thomas, Jr., of Muscatine, Iowa.

Talmadge Kinnebrew Is Sworn in As Homer Mayor

HOMER, La., June 2.—(Special)—Talmadge Kinnebrew took the oath of office Saturday as mayor of Homer succeeding Lamont Seals, who had been mayor for the past six years. Other newly elected officials are A. E. Dewees and Wideman Watson, aldermen, and Joe LeSage, night marshal.

Harry McKenzie, R. S. Gill, and N. J. Kendrick were re-elected to the board of aldermen and L. C. Baird to the post of marshal.

DIAMOND DEATH
PUZZLES POLICE*Cops Probe Strange Actions of Widow of Notorious Gangster

NEW YORK, July 1.—(P)—Two question marks danced before detectives today after an all-night inquiry into the murder of Mrs. Jack Diamond, 33-year-old widow of the notorious "Legs".

1. Why did the dark-haired widow practice marksmanship so intently for several weeks before a killer fired a bullet into her temple after a struggle in her Brooklyn flat?

2. Why sent large sums of money—sometimes as high as $1,000 a week—to Mrs. Diamond, who nevertheless lived in comparative penury in her $45 a month home?

Strange disclosures followed in quick succession after the widow's body was found last night, sprawled before a little table on which stood three coffee cups, drained to the dregs.

The dominant police theory was that the woman, whose gang chief husband was shot to death in Albany Dec. 18, 1931, was killed because she may have "known too much."

Recently, in a speakeasy, her tongue loosened a bit.

"I am tired," she complained to friends, "of protecting a lot of mugs."

A theory that she lived in fear was bolstered—seemingly—by her persistent practice with shotgun and rifle. She had been seen in a Coney Island shooting gallery, knocking over rabbits and ducks with round after round of shots. She also visited a trap-shooting range, to improve her skill with shotguns.

Inspector George Bishop announced early today that he had found memoranda in her apartment indicating that much money had come into her hands, sometimes $1,000 a week.

There were reports, unverified by police, that the slayers may have come from Albany. Police were trying to learn the identity of two "upstate friends" with whom she visited Coney Island early this week.

She was last seen alive early Wednesday, when she left a card party at the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hunter, in the building in which she lived. All day and night Wednesday and all day and night Thursday lights burned in her apartment. Finally Hunter, who is caretaker of the house, opened the door.

Mrs. Diamond, dead at least two days, lay with her head pointing toward red portieres that screened the kitchenette. She had no shoes on her stocking feet.

Her blue house dress, with red polka dots, was torn in the back, as though she had fought briefly. Everything else was in order. Cigarette stubs lay undisturbed in green ash trays, doll pillows were neatly in place on red upholstered furniture.

There was a chip off the mirror, as though a bullet had struck it. On her dresser was a tinted photograph in a silver frame. It was a likeness of Diamond. She had stuck to him while he lived and boasted about him after his death. Even when he turned from her to Kiki Roberts, chorus girl, she clung to him.

When his rivals finally put a fatal bullet into him—after many unsuccessful attempts—he left her penniless. She borrowed money for an eight-foot cross of white chrysanthemums.

Then she went into burlesque and sidesteps, capitalizing the Diamond name, and telling audiences of the dangers of a life of crime.

gave the girl an opportunity to open a door of the car and jump out, it was stated.

After escaping from the man, Miss Bennett succeeded in catching a ride with a woman, who took her to West Monroe police headquarters. After a description of the man had been given, Mr. Hammons requested the Monroe police department to be on the lookout for Dennis, and he was taken into custody the next day.

Dennis was turned over to West Monroe police and taken to West Monroe police headquarters, where Mr. Hammons said he was identified by Miss Bennett. A warrant charging him with kidnaping was then sworn out, and he was transferred to the parish jail.

Miss Bennett had been in West Monroe only a few days, visiting relatives. Her home is said to be about five and one-half miles south of Rayville. She was bruised on the arms as the result of being handled roughly by the alleged kidnaper, but was not otherwise injured, Mr. Hammons said.

Press Association Will Meet at Alex Wednesday

SHREVEPORT, July 1.—(P)—A code prepared by the Master Printers of north Louisiana, east Texas and south Arkansas will be considered at a called meeting of the Louisiana Press association at Alexandria next Wednesday, it was announced here today by Dolph Frantz, president of the press association.

Mr. Frantz said the meeting had been called at the request of members of the association attending a session of the Master Printers here today at which the code was drafted.

The press association will also consider an invitation to hold its next meeting at Birmingham, Ala.

"Morris" was held in the Webb county jail.

Another telegram was received by Highway Patrolman O'Leary from the federal reserve bank at Atlanta, saying the new currency seized here had been sent to a bank at New Orleans. The federal reserve bank said it was tracing the money further.

Chief of Police Mendola received a telegram this afternoon from Superintendent of Police George Reyer at New Orleans saying there was no such address in New Orleans as "4203 Canal street," given as the place from which "Mrs. Al Morris" sent the package of bills containing $2,000, which arrived here this morning. Reyer also said that the automobile bill of sale in possession of "Morris" was fictitious.

"Morris" came to the Mexican border a number of days ago and took a trip to some unnamed point in Mexico. Upon his return from Mexico to Laredo he was arrested. Officers learned that he also had been in Del Rio.

Officers questioned him in connection with the slaying of two officers at Columbia, Missouri, after the robbery of a bank at Mexico, Missouri, on June 12.

Tallulah

Mrs. J. A. Gilbert entertained a large gathering of friends on Thursday afternoon at her home, with a seven table bridge party. The tables were arranged in the reception rooms, which were attractive with a profusion of summer flowers. The hostess served a delectable salad course.

The high score prize was won by Mrs. Will Harvey, Jr.; second high by Mrs. E. S. Moberley; consolation by Mrs. J. Roy Medlin; and the low by Mrs. A. H. Hurd. The guests were: Mrs. E. S. Freeman, Mrs. G. L. Garrison, Mrs. Z. L. Chambliss, Mrs. Travis McNeil, Mrs. A. T. Palmer, Mrs. C. H. Billett, Mrs. W. H. Williams, Mrs. Jesse Anderson, Mrs. Sam Fuller, Mrs. W. H. Mrs. Will Adams entertained a group of the younger set on Monday afternoon in honor of Miss Laurette Ralph of Redland, Ark., a house guest of Miss Carolyn Sevier. The hostess presented the honoree with a guest prize, Miss Margaret Folk was winner of high score prize; Miss Claire Mitchell, consolation; and Miss Marianne Bowie, the low.

One of the most interesting social affairs of the week was the twelve table bridge party given by Mrs. A. T. Palmer at her lovely home on Bayou street, on Thursday afternoon. High score prize was won by Mrs. Ralph Taylor; second high by Mrs. W. H. Huckabay; consolation by Mrs. John Patrick; and low by Mrs. Alex Blanche. The hostess served an attractive and delicious salad course.

Mrs. T. B. Lucas entertained a group of young people complimentary to Miss Laurette Ralph of Redland, Ark., with a bridge party on Tuesday afternoon. An attractive prize was presented to the honoree. The high score prize was won by Miss Marguerite McDonald; consolation by Miss George Rose Rountree; and low by Miss Anne Palmer.

Mrs. Gertrude Davis of LeCompte, worthy grand matron of Louisiana O. E. S., was a guest in the Bloom home here Tuesday and Wednesday. A motor party was planned for her pleasure while here by her hosts, enjoying the beautiful tourist drive through the Vicksburg national park and other points of interest.

Mrs. Z. L. Chambliss entertained a large gathering of her friends on Friday afternoon, with a party of unusual interest. Seven tables were arranged for bridge on the lovely porches, where bright summer flowers lent beauty and charm to the occasion. The color scheme of green and white was tastefully carried out in the delicious salad course served at the conclusion of the games. Prettily wrapped in green and white were the attractive prizes. Mrs. A. Tate was the winner of the high score prize, a pyrex baking dish; Mrs. Howard Casteel, second high, a pyrex pie plate; Mrs. Roy Medlin, grand consolation, a pyrex pie plate; Mrs. Ira Baxter, the low, a dainty little apron in green and white; there were seven table prizes, tiny green and white hat brushes.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Murphy entertained a group of their friends on Wednesday evening with a supper, followed by games of bridge. Mrs. John Potts of Monroe and H. W. Lee

ALMOST MISSED HER BOW

A flurry of excitement ran through London diplomatic circles when, on the eve of the year's last royal court, it was reported that Miss Margaret McReynolds (above), daughter of Representative Samuel D. McReynolds of Tennessee, economic conference delegate, would not be presented although her name was on the list. Too many delegates' wives and daughters were seeking presentation, was the reason given. Then the American embassy got busy, King George is reported to have taken notice of the incident, and Miss McReynolds made her scheduled bow to royalty in Buckingham palace.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Scott were hosts to the Friday night club on Tuesday evening, with a supper bridge party. Mrs. John Patrick was an additional guest. Mrs. W. C. Starrett and Ralph Taylor were awarded the high score prizes at the conclusion of the games.

Mrs. T. Ed Williams entertained the Justamere club on Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. Clark Brown as additional guest. The hostess served a refreshing salad course. The high score prize was won by Mrs. Clark Brown, consolation by Mrs. Z. L. Chambliss.

Syrian Club Will Hold Meetings in City Today

Everything is in readiness for the first anniversary celebration of the Syrian Frolie club, to be held here today, and which it is expected will be attended by upwards of 200 of this nationality not only from this city but also from other states. The day's program is to comprise a morning sightseeing trip, barbecue, boat ride on the river, and a ball at Cherokee terrace at night.

The people from other states are expected from Mississippi, Arkansas, Tennessee, Texas and Alabama. The sightseeing trip is to be held at 10:30 a. m., when cars will convey the visitors in and about the city and West Monroe.

At 1:30 p. m., a barbecue is to be held at Mayor Bernstein's country home. Women members of the club are to serve the meal.

At 3:30 and 4:30 p. m., the boat rides on the river are to be held, the boat of Senator James A. Noe being placed at the disposal of the party.

The dance at Cherokee terrace, in Hotel Frances, at 9:30 p. m., will conclude the day's festivities.

and emerged shortly with the definite statement: "Not one word has been received from Factor or the kidnapers. If we had a message we would be greatly relieved."

For Jerome, the 19-year-old North-western university student, the tables were turned. Ten weeks ago he had been tossed into a car and spirited away from his mother's home and for eight days the elder Factor dickered with underworld and authorities, engaging the aid of the old Capone gang to make liaison with the kidnapers, and in the end denying that the rumored $5,000 ransom was paid.

Now it was Jerome's turn to sweat with anxiety for his father.

"My dad did everything in his power to rescue me when I was held a prisoner last April," he said, "and it was his efforts which saved my life. Now our positions are reversed. Though I haven't the brains nor the facilities he had, I'll do everything in my power to effect his release."

Little Theater Campaign Is Extended to July 8

Extension of time to July 8, for the completion of the work of enrolling members for the Monroe Little Theater, was announced Saturday by Judge W. M. Harper, in charge of the committee conducting the campaign.

Judge Harper stated Saturday that reports being received at the membership campaign headquarters indicate that most satisfactory and favorable response is being made by the public to the organization's annual membership call. Supported by a record of a year's accomplishments, during which the organization has found favor with the public, the membership committee, composed of about 60 workers, is having little difficulty in disposing of membership cards. Although equalling the accomplishments of Little Theaters where membership are at a premium, and from $5 to $10 a season, the local organization has placed the membership at but one dollar.

Negro Confesses Killing Young Woman at Dallas

DALLAS, Texas, July 1.—(P)—R. T. Bennett, 25, negro, told police and newspapermen today that he was responsible for the death by strangulation of Mrs. H. K. Buchanan, 28-year-old blond film executive, at her apartment here last winter and the fatal shooting Thursday of Sam Lanford, 36, patrolman.

He also said he was the prowler who two months ago shot and seriously wounded George A. Coffey, Dallas wholesaler and manufacturer, and took $20 he found in the house.

Mrs. Buchanan's death baffled police for months. Her naked body, covered by a counterpane, was found in her bedroom ten hours after she had left a drinking party at the apartment of a friend across the hall.

REPEAL STRUGGLE

Three Dixie States and Oregon to Vote on Question This Month

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—The prohibition repeal struggle swung into the deep south today with three states long counted as dry scheduled to vote during July, along with Oregon in the far northwest.

On the three southern states—Alabama, Arkansas and Tennessee—the dry forces are pinning their hopes. The prohibition leaders have expressed the belief that should they hold only one of the states they could set the question over to next year when they hope they can defeat the repealists.

The wet forces have predicted they would win in the three and speed up the vote in enough states to make repeal certain this year.

Alabama and Arkansas voters will ballot July 18 and Tennessee on July 23. Oregon will vote July 21.

In Oregon repeal forces point to the vote of that state last year when it repealed the state enforcement act by 265,619 to 138,775.

The dry forces are being urged by F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, to get out their vote. In a statement issued Thursday and including the results in all states that have balloted on the question except California and West Virginia, McBride said the total vote on the repeal amendment was only 8,871,711 as compared with 17,939,197 cast by those states in the presidential election last November.

Getting Better!

When we hear that our Government will soon begin supervision of the railroads, and agriculture, and industry, and forestry, and employment, and banks, and homes—

We begin to hope things are getting better.

And when we read that, all over our country, factories are starting up—new crews going in—orders piling up—prices advancing, stocks doubling—

We begin to think things are really getting better.

But when, here at home, the saw mills and paper mills begin singing—and lumber goes up—and unemployment goes down—and cotton soars—and an attorney says "it's not just a flash in the pan"—and a physician says "collections are loosening"—and an insurance man says he is "rewriting insurance dropped two years ago"—and a job printer says he "was offered a $300 position by long distance phone"—and somebody builds a garage apartment—and there is no longer any demand for safety deposit boxes—and a merchant-planter brings in the same crisp one thousand he "has had for emergency since March 4th"—and we credit twelve big thousand dollars interest to our faithful savers—and a man comes in and actually wants "to buy that little house on Blank Street"—

Say—We know things are getting better!!

MONROE SUFFERS TORRID WEATHER

But Past Week Was Not as Hot as Preceding One, Records Show

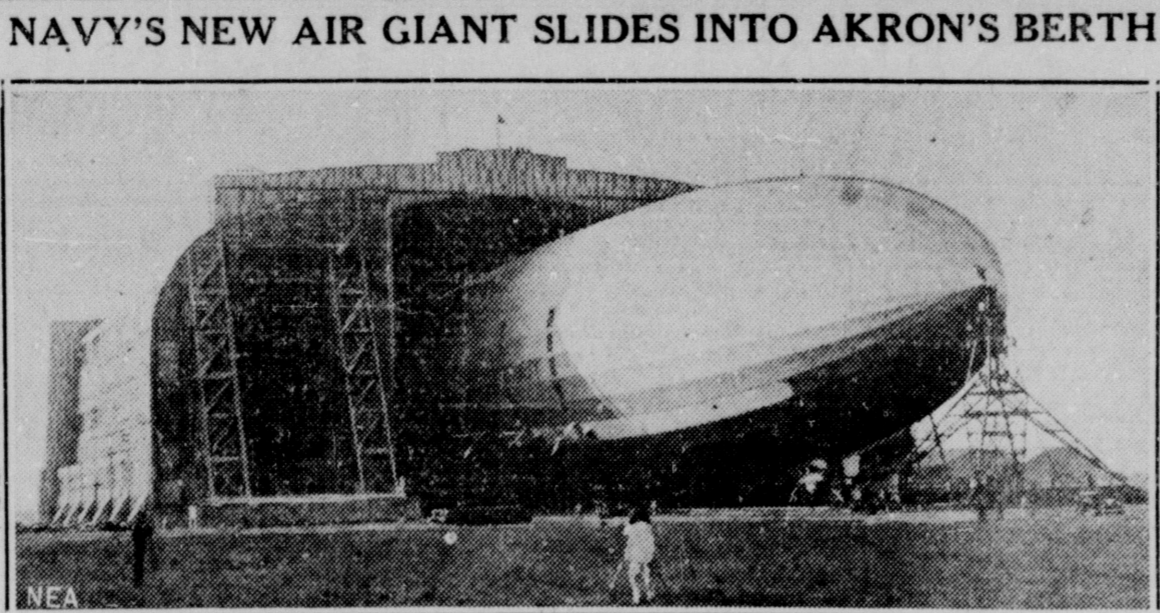

Although the temperature during the week ending Saturday night did not go as high as on several days during the previous week, the minimum temperatures averaged several degrees higher than for the week before. This brought the average near temperature to about the same as for the previous week.

During the week just ended the highest temperature was 97 and the lowest was 70. For the previous week the highest temperature was 102, but the lowest was 67.

Temperatures here were registered as follows: July 1, 96-75; June 30, 97-76; June 29, 96-76; June 28, 97-73; June 27, 95-73; June 26, 95-72; June 24, 96-70; June 23, 95-71; June 22, 100-69; June 21, 102-69; June 20, 101-71; June 19, 100-67.

Weather bureau records of temperatures and rainfall for the 24-hour period ending at 8 p. m. Saturday in the cotton growing areas and elsewhere were listed by the Associated Press as follows:

CAMP MOREHOUSE CEREMONIES HELD

nificance of the work that is to be done in conserving the natural resources of this section of the state, and dwell on the importance of the project as part of President Roosevelt's plan for developing the young manhood of the country into active and useful citizens.

State Representative James Madison made a brief talk, giving a biographical sketch of Col. Morehouse, who had come to the Ouachita country 140 years ago to carve out a pioneer settlement in the wilderness. "His work as a pioneer should be an incentive to us in carrying forward the great task of the present hour in reestablishing ourselves in prosperity and progress," said the speaker.

Fred Williamson, managing editor of the Monroe Morning World and News-Star, made an address, dwelling on the "incentives and inspirations that are given to the boys and young men who are privileged to take part in the great program sponsored by the president." "Not only are there material objectives to be achieved, but more important still, is the opportunity offered to the youth of northeast Louisiana to gain new vision, new inspirations in the development of moral, spiritual and mental character through the activities of such a camp as this," he said.

Following the speech-making, several contests were staged by the boys of Camp Morehouse. The contests were directed by Lieut. Parsons. Dancing followed the contests. The visitors attending the ceremonies included parents and friends of the boys in camp as well as citizens from Monroe, Bastrop, Mer Rouge, and other communities of the neighborhood.

The camp site covers an area of about 80 acres. The field of operations embraces 80,000 acres of forest land, where practical conservation plans will be worked out under the direction of Charles E. Joubert, engineer, who has had charge of the work already done in clearing the site and erecting the camp buildings. The 200 boys are housed in commodious tents, with wooden flooring. Ample facilities are provided for varied recreations. Due to the advent of July Fourth next Tuesday, Capt. Ware announced tonight that the boys would have a holiday until Wednesday morning, when regular camp activities will be resumed under routine regulations which are observed in all the conservation camps.

PROGRESS MADE ON COTTON PLAN

up a certain number of acres of cotton at a specified price per acre, Mr. Strahan said. All contracts now being obtained specify the amount to be paid per acre. Mr. Strahan thinks this practice is now being followed throughout the cotton belt and that the price per acre will be definitely settled when the contracts are obtained. In this parish a committee and the farmer attempt to arrive at the value of the cotton and if they are unsuccessful a federal inspector may be called in. The whole plan is being operated on a strict business basis, the agricultural agent said.

It is expected that the campaign will be brought to a close July 8. Each farmer is urged to decide at the beginning on the number of acres he wants destroyed and to fill his contract out in accordance with that decision. The time for finishing the campaign is so short that committees will not have time for revising contracts, Mr. Strahan stated.

BATON ROUGE, La., July 1.—(AP)—Renewal of Louisiana's cotton acreage reduction campaign Monday with fresh impetus, and with determination to attain the state's abandonment quota of 550,000 acres by July 7, was planned tonight following arrival of additional contract blanks from Washington.

The central office of the extension service, from which the state reduction program has been directed since it began June 26, reported that receipt of the supply of pledge forms removed one of the principal campaign obstacles.

The first week of the reduction drive closed with contracts to abandon a total of 34,563 acres of cotton checked and approved, compilation by Marcel J. Voornies, extension statistician, showed.

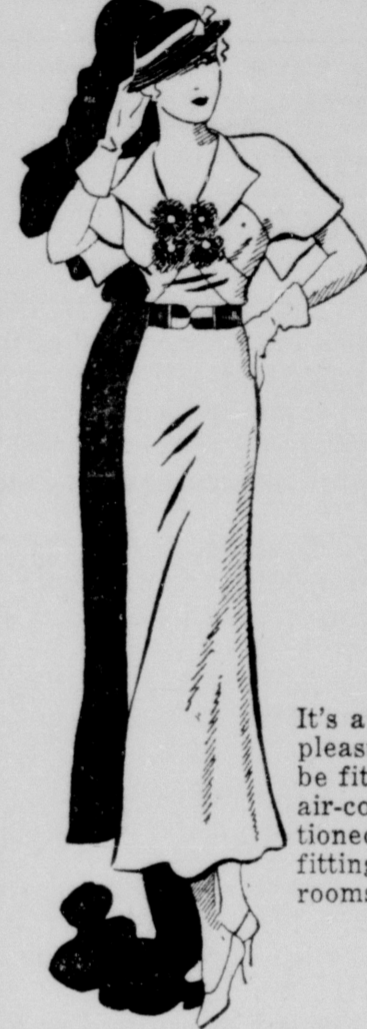

The total acreage reported pledged should not be construed as representing the sentiment of farmers toward the national farm act plan to stabilize cotton prices through controlled production, it was declared.

Extension Service Director J. W. Bateman and F. W. Spencer, campaign field manager, asserted that hundreds of farmers had been found in every parish willing to support the plan, but that very few contract blanks had been available for them to sign.

In answer to a lady's letter

Dearborn, Mich.

A lady writes to say that she does not understand why an 8-cylinder car does not cost more to run than a car with fewer cylinders. She refers to my statement that our Ford V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gas than any car we have made.

The use of 8-cylinders does not mean the addition of two or four extra fuel consumers. It is not, for example, a 4-cylinder engine multiplied by two. Our 8-cylinder engine takes the fuel supply of an ordinary 4-cylinder engine and divides it eight ways. And why?

By reducing four larger explosions into eight smaller ones, we get engine smoothness and quietness. Eight-cylinders indicate the way the gas is used, not the amount. It is just the difference between going upstairs in four long jumps or in eight ordinary steps.

Two things use up gas—bad engine design and useless car weight. Besides having an engine that gets a high percentage of power out of the fuel, the Ford V-8 has a light, strong body and chassis so that no power is wasted in moving excess weight.

The only extravagance about the new Ford V-8 engine is in the building of it. The extravagance is ours—the economy is yours.

The whole question of car economy needs clearing up. An economical car gives economy all round. Price, operation, upkeep, all play their part. If what you save on gas you lose elsewhere, that is not economy.

As to upkeep, our dealers say that in recent years the improved quality of Ford cars has cut down their repair business 50 per cent.

As to price with quality,—judge for yourself.

As to economy, here is the record of a stock car three weeks out of shop in Oklahoma:

On a run of 10,054 miles at the rate of 1,000 miles a day—the Ford V-8 gave 18.8 miles per gallon of gas. Not a drop of water was added to the radiator. The oil was changed once in 1,000 miles.

That should answer a lot of questions.

City Briefs

For the first time this year, the Ouachita parish health unit will take a holiday Monday, when July Fourth will be observed. Dr. J. W. Williams, director, said Saturday night. The only other holiday the office expects to take this year is Christmas. On the holiday Dr. Williams will make a business trip to New Orleans.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Griffith left Saturday morning for Chicago, where they are to attend the world's fair.

Women of the congregation of the First Methodist church are to be guests at a fellowship meeting and banquet, July 5 at 7:30 p. m., at the church. The event is to be sponsored by the missionary women of the church and they are anxious that many outside of this group will avail themselves of the opportunity of the social pleasure afforded.

Mrs. J. W. Worthington is general chairman of the arrangements committee.

At the regular meeting of the Baptist Men's brotherhood Friday night, D. P. Gerald completed his series of lectures on "This Is My Church." Supper was served by circle No. 2 under the direction of Mrs. A. E. Crow.

The young people's annual conference of the Presbyterian churches of Louisiana will be held this year at Silliman college in Clinton July 5-13. Besides the study courses there will be outdoor activities under the direction of J. G. Hoyt of Shreveport.

The delegates from Monroe who will attend the conference are Juliette Daimwood, Alice Daimwood, Leonora Grower, Cecile Smith, Minnie Francis Gossett, Joe Stanley, and Thomas Ziegler.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Clay, former manager of the W. T. Grant store of this city, left Saturday for a month's trip through Kentucky and other eastern states and on to Chicago, where they will enjoy the World's Fair. Mr. and Mrs. Clay will make their future home in Chicago, where Mr. Clay will become actively engaged in business.

July 4 will be a holiday at the Monroe postoffice. There will be no service from the various departments, all windows being closed for the day. No city or rural carrier deliveries are to be made. Mail will, however, be sorted and distributed into lock boxes at the office and mails will be dispatched and received as usual during the day.

The Rodney J. Hobbs drum and bugle corps, back from its recent trip to New Iberia, and the state encampment, paraded the downtown section of Monroe and West Monroe Saturday night. In the parade was the big bus of the organization, and in line at the rear of the ranks were members of the women's auxiliary.

Barter business conducted in Germany by certain companies in 1932 is estimated to have totaled at least $25,000,000.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Griffith left Saturday morning for Chicago, where they are to attend the world's fair.

Women of the congregation of the First Methodist church are to be guests at a fellowship meeting and banquet, July 5 at 7:30 p. m., at the church. The event is to be sponsored by the missionary women of the church and they are anxious that many outside of this group will avail themselves of the opportunity of the social pleasure afforded.

Mrs. J. W. Worthington is general chairman of the arrangements committee.

At the regular meeting of the Baptist Men's brotherhood Friday night, D. P. Gerald completed his series of lectures on "This Is My Church." Supper was served by circle No. 2 under the direction of Mrs. A. E. Crow.

The young people's annual conference of the Presbyterian churches of Louisiana will be held this year at Silliman college in Clinton July 5-12. Besides the study courses there will be outdoor activities under the direction of J. G. Hoyt of Shreveport.

The delegates from Monroe who will attend the conference are Juliette Dainwood, Alice Dainwood, Leonora Grower, Cecile Smith, Minnie Francis Gessett, Joe Stanley, and Thomas Ziegler.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Clay, former manager of the W. T. Grant store of this city, left Saturday for a month's trip through Kentucky and other eastern states and on to Chicago, where they will enjoy the World's fair. Mr. and Mrs. Clay will make their future home in Chicago, where Mr. Clay will become actively engaged in business.

July 4 will be a holiday at the Monroe postoffice. There will be no service from the various departments, all windows being closed for the day. No city or rural carrier deliveries are to be made. Mail will, however, be sorted and distributed into lock boxes at the office and mails will be dispatched and received as usual during the day.

The Rodney J. Hobbs drum and bugle corps, back from its recent trip to New Iberia, and the state encampment, paraded the downtown section of Monroe and West Monroe Saturday night. In the parade was the big bus of the organization, and in line at the rear of the ranks were members of the women's auxiliary.

Barter business conducted in Germany by certain companies in 1932 is estimated to have totaled at least $25,000,000.

Ladies' Tailor-Made

Ford Motor Company,

Dearborn, Mich.

A lady writes to say that she does not understand why an 8-cylinder car does not cost more to run than a car with fewer cylinders. She refers to my statement that our Ford V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gas than any car we have made.

The use of 8-cylinders does not mean the addition of two or four extra fuel consumers. It is not, for example, a 4-cylinder engine multiplied by two. Our 8-cylinder engine takes the fuel supply of an ordinary 4-cylinder engine and divides it eight ways. And why?

By reducing four larger explosions into eight smaller ones, we get engine smoothness and quietness. Eight-cylinders indicate the way the gas is used, not the amount. It is just the difference between going upstairs in four long jumps or in eight ordinary steps.

Two things use up gas—bad engine design and useless car weight. Besides having an engine that gets a high percentage of power out of the fuel, the Ford V-8 has a light, strong body and chassis so that no power is wasted in moving excess weight.

The only extravagance about the new Ford V-8 engine is in the building of it. The extravagance is ours—the economy is yours.

The whole question of car economy needs clearing up. An economical car gives economy all round. Price, operation, upkeep, all play their part. If what you save on gas you lose elsewhere, that is not economy.

As to upkeep, our dealers say that in recent years the improved quality of Ford cars has cut down their repair business 50 per cent.

As to price with quality,—judge for yourself.

As to economy, here is the record of a stock car three weeks out of shop in Oklahoma:

On a run of 10,054 miles at the rate of 1,000 miles a day—the Ford V-8 gave 18.8 miles per gallon of gas. Not a drop of water was added to the radiator. The oil was changed once in 1,000 miles.

That should answer a lot of questions.

tralian representative in the London wheat conference.

The action of the Australian states was described by Frederick E. Murphy, of the United States, as "fine and very encouraging."

Meanwhile Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the reichsbank, in Berlin, urged by implication the formation of a united front by gold standard countries against the United States and Great Britain. He was talking with newspapermen concerning Germany's recent transfer arrangements with creditors.

LONDON, July 1.—(P)—President Roosevelt tonight rejected in its present form the monetary proposal which was drawn up with a view to saving the world economic conference from collapse.

The notice of the presidential disapproval for the plan which had been communicated to him by Raymond Moley, assistant secretary of state, on behalf of Great Britain and members of the European gold bloc was made public by the American embassy, whose spokesman said:

"The president has notified the secretary of state that he has rejected the proposal in its present form.

"The secretary of state will on Monday morning make a statement elaborating upon American policy as it applies to this subject.

France and other European countries still on the gold standard had threatened to quit the conference unless some concerted measure should be taken to halt excited fluctuations of the dollar.

The declaration drawn up by leaders of the conference, and Professor Moley included a proposed agreement that "stability in the international monetary field should be obtained as quickly as practicable."

At American headquarters it was officially stated that although the president rejected the project "in its present form," the form would have to be very different for him to accept it.

Exactly what portions are unacceptable to Mr. Roosevelt were not specified.

The American president's decision was immediately communicated to representatives here of all governments concerned, the British and those of the gold bloc, the latter having threatened to quit the conference unless the formula was subscribed to by the United States.

The text of the proposal cabled to the president and rejected by him was as follows:

"Declaration, in which nations on the gold standard and those not on that standard join.

"It is agreed that stability in the international monetary field should be obtained as quickly as practicable, and the common interest of all concerned is recognized:

"The reestablishment of gold as a measure of international exchange value should be accomplished with recognition that the time at which each of the countries off gold could undertake stabilization and the time at which parity is established must be determined by the respective governments.

"It is reasserted by governments the currencies of which are on the gold standard that it is their intent to maintain the free working of that standard at current gold parities and in conformity to their respective monetary laws, believing that maintenance of existing gold parities is in the interest of world recovery.

"Governments subscribing to this declaration whose currencies are not on the gold standard take note of the above declaration and recognize its importance without in any way prejudicing their own future ratios to gold, and reiterate that the ultimate objective of their currency policy is to bring back an international standard based on gold under proper conditions.

"Each government whose currency is not on the gold standard agrees to adopt such measures as it may deem most effective to limit exchange speculation, and other signatory governments undertake cooperation to the same end.

"Each of the governments signatory hereto agrees to ask its central bank to work together with the central banks of other governments which sign this declaration in limiting speculation and, at the proper time, re-inaugurating an international gold standard."

Fire Destroys Buildings At Simsboro Yesterday

SIMSBORO, La., July 1.—(P)—Fire of undetermined origin early today completely destroyed three commercial buildings at Simsboro, causing losses not yet estimated. The Ruston fire department assisted in checking the flames. Buildings destroyed were the two-story Masonic structure, with lower floor unoccupied; and two one-story buildings occupied by Napper & Cross, general merchants, and J. J. Napper, druggist. Napper & Cross carried no insurance and saved only a small quantity of goods. J. J. Napper carried only $300 of insurance and practically none of the contents were saved. The Masonic building and equipment carried $1,000 insurance.

"I told him further that if the grand jury attempted to do this that I would do that which on a previous occasion I had informed the grand jury I would do; namely, to publicly make known this illegal and immoral act, and would publish it to the world in justice to my conscience, my duty as a citizen and my reputation in this community.

"When I told this to Mr. Waterman, he told me not to make any mistakes. I told him that I was well able to take care of myself.

"Without opening any of the ballot boxes which had been brought into the grand jury room, the matter was put to a vote over my vigorous objection. By a vote of 9 to 3, a no true bill was entered on a lengthy indictment covering all commissioners of election in all voting precincts of the city.

"This no true bill, which was endorsed by Mr. Waterman as foreman, was not formally returned in open court, the grand jury adjourning until next Wednesday morning."

"Under these circumstances, I shall request the court to relieve me from further service on this grand jury."

Adopts Code to Be Presented to President

SHREVEPORT, La., July 1.—(P)—By unanimous vote the Tri-State Master Printers' association in session here this afternoon adopted a code governing the printing trade to be recommended for approval by President Roosevelt under the national industrial recovery act. The code was prepared and submitted by a committee of printers representing north Louisiana, east Texas and south Arkansas, with Sam B. Harper, of Shreveport, serving as its chairman. Under the code outlined at the meeting here a minimum wage scale varying from 85 cents to 30 cents was recommended. Also, a maximum work week of forty hours for all mechanical employees of the printing establishments was also recommended in the code.

The Shreveport Master Printers' association, which called the meeting, was developed by vote of the gathering into the Tri-State organization, and C. H. Swearingen and J. C. Seigler, respectively, officers of the local association, were elected temporary officers of the tri-state body.

Mr. Swearingen was elected delegate from the Tri-State association to the all-south code meeting to be held next Friday and Saturday in Birmingham, Ala.

Jack Boyer, manager of the Monroe Printing company, returned last night from attendance at an all-day session held in Shreveport of the Tex.-Ark.-La. Master Printers' association. Representatives of two other job printing houses in Monroe also were present. They were B. A. Trousdale, of the Trousdale Printing company, and Bobbie Burns, R. A. Daimwood and Milton Ford of the Twin City Printing company.

NEW ORIENTATION COURSES SLATED

Head of Tech Mathematics Department Makes Announcement

TECH STATION, RUSTON, La., July 1.—(Special)—Plans for starting a new orientation course at Louisiana Tech this fall to adjust freshmen to college life have been announced by Dr. P. K. Smith, head of the Tech mathematics department, who has been appointed director of the new program.

Although for several years Louisiana Tech has conducted a brief freshman week program each fall to help the beginning students get started right at the outset of their college careers, the new plan will extend this type of adjustment instruction over a period of 18 weeks. Classes will be held once a week during the fall semester, with a different member of the Tech faculty giving a lecture at each meeting. All freshmen will be required to attend these lectures. The class will not be taught in the second semester.

The need for such a course is apparent because the student entering college faces many problems that he did not experience in high school. Dr. Smith pointed out. Aside from its adjustment value, the new orientation course will be "an education in itself," serving to supplement the usual academic studies.

While detailed arrangements for teaching the anticipated class of between 400 and 500 freshmen have not been definitely completed, some of the tentative topics for consideration have been announced as follows:

Difference between high school and college; technique of study; social etiquette; relation of work to play; college perplexities; habits of whole some living; use of time, effort and money; taking notes and preparing for examinations; emotional adjustment; college citizenship; significance of personality; vocational guidance; and the value of the study of music, science, mathematics, literature, etc.

Several textbooks for use in classes of this kind have been written recently, it is said. The Tech orientation committee has recommended that the course here not be one entirely of lectures, but that the students be urged to participate in class discussions.

Serving with Dr. Smith on the committee are L. M. Phillips of the commerce department; Miss Sallie Robinson of the education department; Miss Alma Burk, dean of women, and W. L. Mitchell, dean of men.

Under the editorship of an alumnus and a student, the Flash of Louisiana Tech, the Jackson Parish Flash of Jonesboro, a weekly newspaper, has made its debut.

One of the editors, Forney C. ("Lit") Haley, graduated from Louisiana Tech in 1931. He studied journalism here, and was formerly sports editor of the Tech Talk, student newspaper. During the last two years he taught and coached at Junction City.

The other editor of the Flash is Roy H. Odum, whose nom de plume is "Prof. Roszak." Odum, noted here for his cartooning and other art work, was a student at Tech during the past session.

Both of the editors are natives of Jonesboro.

BLASE NEW YORK BLUSHES!

Ruth Chatterton and Guy Kibbee are both in "Lily Turner," the attraction at the Capitol theater today and Monday. Gone is the svelte society girl that Chatterton has portrayed in the past. Instead of silks and satins, she wears tights—instead of richly appointed boudoirs, her bedroom is the back of a truck or the inside of a sidishow circus tent. It is a storm-tossed Lily Turner, buffeted by fate at every turn, who tries to get a little happiness through clandestine love affairs, that is portrayed by Chatterton. With Chatterton in "Lily Turner" are George Brent, her husband, Frank McHugh, and many others of note. It is said that even blase New York blushed at this sensational stage play of a 1933 model Delilah who had a weakness for every strong man in her barnstorming medicine show.

TODAY'S AMUSEMENTS

AT THE PARAMOUNT—One of the largest all-star casts ever assembled for a motion picture plays in Paramount's "International House," lavishly-produced musical comedy at the Paramount theater Sunday and Monday. Peggy Hopkins Joyce, W. C. Fields, Rudy Vallee, Stuart Erwin, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Sari Maritza, Col. Stoopnagle and Budd, Cab Calloway and his orchestra, Baby Rose Marie, Bela Lugosi, Lona Andre, Sterling Holloway, Franklin Pangborn, Edmund Breese, Lumsden Hare and the Girls in Cellophane are the featured players, and between them they represent the best talent of screen, stage and radio.

"International House" is to comedy what "Grand Hotel" was to serious drama. Its action is set in a hotel in a mythical Chinese city where representatives of big business from all over the world are assembled to inspect and bid on a marvelous new invention. This device is called a radioscope, and it can see and hear anything anywhere. When the hotel is quarantined, everyone goes gaga and the developments become even crazier when W. C. Fields, an aviator sailing to Kansas City, accidentally lands on the roof of the hotel.

Peggy Joyce, thinking him a millionaire, immediately starts lining him up as a prospect for her next marriage. Bela Lugosi, a former husband of Peggy's who engineered the quarantine but was himself locked out of the hotel, watches in frustrated fury from across the street. Rudy Vallee sings; Burns and Allen wisecrack; Stoopnagle and Budd ponder the world's problems; Cab Calloway plays mad music; the Girls in Cellophane dance; Stuart Erwin makes timid love to Sari Maritza. The picture's tempo is rapid-fire; its production one of the most lavish ever given a film.

AT THE PARAMOUNT—With Buddy Rogers and Marian Nixon in the leading roles, "Best of Enemies," the new Fox comedy romance, shows at the Paramount for one day only, July 4. It is described as a novel romance depicted against an up-to-the-minute background as has ever been seen.

The story traces the development of a youthful love through the vagaries of events surrounding two youths. Differences between their families are brought out by things over which they have no control, and barriers are set in their way. The central background being the passage and the return of beer, the situations accompanying the romance are said to be highly amusing.

The story moves in locale from a city in the middle west, inhabited by a great number of German-Americans who cannot give up habits of centuries, to Germany itself, where the young man of the romantic pair goes to study. The film has a distinctive musical accompaniment directed by Arthur Lange and dance sequences arranged by Sammy Lee.

AT THE CAPITOL—Ruth Chatterton comes to the Capitol theater on Sunday and Monday in the most astounding characterization she has ever portrayed on the screen—in the title role of the First National picture, "Lily Turner."

As Lily Turner, the "Cooch" dance and come-on girl for a carnival, she has in this picture more clandestine love affairs than most actresses portray in a lifetime. She flits from one love to another with a wild abandon inspired by cruel mistreatment at the hands of her first lover. It is not until she finally awakens to real love that ghosts of her many sweethearts rise up to haunt her.

The picture, based on the stage success by Phillip Dunning and George Abbott, reveals the life behind the scenes of the players in the tawdry medicine tent shows and the glamorous carnivals. Gone is the stately Miss Chatterton, of the society drawing room: In "Lily Turner" is Chatterton, cooch dancer who wiggles her hips and jiggles her chest muscles to fascinate and lure the male; the posur in pink tights and flimsy, transparent costumes.

Never, it is said, has she given such a powerful characterization as that of Lily Turner, the girl who flaunts her charms to devastate the heart of the male; whose life is one of butterfly gaiety on the surface and bitter heartaches beneath.

"Lily Turner" is a vivid, realistic story with frivolity and pathos and real dramatic power. George Brent plays the leading masculine role opposite Miss Chatterton, the first time the two have been teamed together since their marriage last fall. Others in the cast include Frank McHugh, Ruth Donnelly and Guy Kibbee.

The direction was in the hands of William A. Wellman, who directed Miss Chatterton in "Frisco Jenny."

AT THE RIALTO, West Monroe.—Surrounded by one of the largest casts in her long career and directed by Frank Borzage, two-time Academy winner, Mary Pickford comes to the Rialto theater, West Monroe, starting today, for the first time in the Twin Cities. In "Secrets," an adaptation of the celebrated stage play by Rudolf Besier and May Edgington. And thus, according to all advance reports, motion picture fans will see the star in one of the best pictures she has made.

"Secrets" gives Miss Pickford what she believes is an ideal vehicle. In the first place, it is "motion picture" from beginning to end, and in the second place the story is a simple one soldiers were allowed to share the results of their prospecting, as they should do.

Why keep the thousands of soldiers monotonously and uselessly doing nothing, when they could be profitably and happily employed?

President Roosevelt's brain trust might think about that, making the army not only self-supporting but a profit-producer.

The navy could cooperate, using its transports to carry men to different points on the coast, particularly the Alaskan coast.

THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT gives all possible encouragement to gold research, and as a result Canada is producing more gold than the whole of the United States. True, gold is no longer money in America, but its possession still pleases. It would do no harm for the United States to have $10,000,000,000 or $20,000,000,000 worth of gold, instead of, as at present, merely a little more than any other country.

ELLA A. BOOLE, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, deploring the approaching repeal of prohibition, offers a plan. She will ask the W. C. T. U. to begin a strenuous campaign for "VOLUNTARY abstinence from liquor."

This is the best plan, since it has been shown that COMPULSORY abstinence from liquor does not work.

The fact is that the country had been growing steadily more temperate ever since the day when Thomas Jefferson remarked that whiskey killed one-half the men and ruined their families, and urged the government to encourage the drinking of light beer.

DEALERS IN EXCHANGE, who profess to know just what the dollar is worth from day to day, decided at the close of business Friday that it was worth 79.35 cents. Much to their surprise the dollar, which refuses to be stabilized, went up Friday, while foreign money went down.

To say that the dollar is worth 79.35 cents in gold doesn't mean anything. A dollar or any other piece of money is worth what it will buy. The "off the gold standard" American dollar wisely spent now will buy several times the value in gold of any dollar.

WISE JAPAN, INVITED to stabilize the "yen," says the suggestion will be considered by the Mikado's government "if and when" the United States and France manage to stabilize their own currencies.

In the "big war" to look out a few "observers," Japan sent a few acupoint information, having first taken what she wanted from Germany in the east.

That country of ancient Samurais and Shoguns and modern scientists is not to be hurried.

of love and elemental emotions, with no wise-cracking and no sophistication. It is Miss Pickford's sincere belief that simple tales, simply told, will be the salvation of the screen, just as they are bound to be in literature.

Months of preparatory work went into the picturization of "Secrets." In every branch, Miss Pickford spared no expense and time in procuring the best material and the best personnel, as will be borne out by a glance at the production staff and the cast of players.

In front of the cameras was an all-star cast in every sense of the word. Leslie Howard, English star, was Miss Pickford's leading man, and Mona Maris is the "other woman." Then there are C. Aubrey Smith, Blanche Frederick, Doris Lloyd, Herbert Evans, Ned Sparks and Jerry Stewart.

Boy Scouts Show Interest In Wireless at Ki-Ro-Li

The miniature short wave wireless station at Camp Ki-Ro-Li is a source of wonder and instruction to the boys camped there, and remarkable results have been obtained this year with the surprisingly low power of nine-tenths of a watt.

Harry Sorensen of the Louisiana Training institute, and Bradford Beard, who is visiting from Houston, at first entertained doubt at the effectiveness of the low power available which was quickly dispelled. Within a few minutes of installing the miniature ensemble of transmitter and receiver, established contact with a station in Cleveland, Ohio, and since then many stations have been contacted in a total of 15 states.

A number of messages have been handled including reports of activities to the national council at New York and personal messages to and from Harold Lewman, the regional scout executive, at Memphis, Tenn.

The exceptional results obtained are attributed to the careful selection of parts built into a well-balanced circuit, and an antenna carefully cut to the fundamental operating wave.

The transmitter uses a 71a tube and 180 volts of B batteries, the receiver is a two-tube affair using the new two-volt tubes and various coils are available which permits reception on any frequency between 15 and 300 meters.

Another Performance to Be Given at Park This Afternoon

A large crowd thronged the grandstand at Major McGuire park last night to witness the initial performance of the three days of rodeo that are to be presented.

The entertainment comprised bronc riding, Brahma steer riding, calf roping, wild cow milking, bareback bronc riding, bulldogging and many added attractions.

At 11 o'clock yesterday morning, more than 250 contestants and officials of the rodeo made up a parade which was held in Monroe and West Monroe. Two brass bands furnished the music. Ike Hamilton, rodeo clown, kept onlookers in perpetually good humor.

The program given last night is to be repeated at 3 p. m. today and again Monday at 8 p. m. The final program is slated for 3 p. m. Tuesday.

One of the attractions last night and at all performances will be the acts of Flash, the wonder horse which is owned by Miss Lallage Feazel and was trained by Clifford Benson.

The seating capacity of the Major McGuire park has been increased to care for the large throngs that are expected.

NEW ORIENTATION COURSES SLATED

Head of Tech Mathematics Department Makes Announcement

TECH STATION, RUSTON, La., July 1.—(Special)—Plans for starting a new orientation course at Louisiana Tech this fall to adjust freshmen to college life have been announced by Dr. P. K. Smith, head of the Tech mathematics department, who has been appointed director of the new program.

Although for several years Louisiana Tech has conducted a brief freshman week program each fall to help the beginning students get started right at the outset of their college careers, the new plan will extend this type of adjustment instruction over a period of 18 weeks. Classes will be held once a week during the fall semester, with a different member of the Tech faculty giving a lecture at each meeting. All freshmen will be required to attend these lectures. The class will not be taught in the second semester.

The need for such a course is apparent because the student entering college faces many problems that he did not experience in high school. Dr. Smith pointed out. Aside from adjustment value, the new orientation course will be "an education in itself," serving to supplement the usual academic studies.

While detailed arrangements for teaching the anticipated class of between 400 and 500 freshmen have not been definitely completed, some of the tentative topics for consideration have been announced as follows:

Difference between high school and college; technique of study; social etiquette; relation of work to play; college perplexities; habits of wholesome living; wise use of time, effort and money; taking notes and preparing for examinations; emotional adjustment; college citizenship; significance of personality; vocational guidance; and the value of the study of music, science, mathematics, literature, etc.

Several textbooks for use in classes of this kind have been written recently, it is said. The Tech orientation committee has recommended that the course here not be one entirely of lectures, but that the students be urged to participate in class discussions.

Serving with Dr. Smith on the committee are L. M. Phillips of the commerce department; Miss Sallie Robison of the education department; Miss Alma Burk, dean of women, and W. L. Mitchell, dean of men.

Under the editorship of an alumnus and a student of Louisiana Tech, the Jackson Parish Flash of Jonesboro, a weekly newspaper, has made its debut.

One of the editors, Fomey C. ("Lit") Haley, graduated from Louisiana Tech in 1931. He studied journalism here and was formerly sports editor of the Tech Talk, student newspaper. During the last two years he taught and coached at Junction City.

The other editor of the Flash is Roy H. Odom, whose nom de plume is "Prof. Rosax." Odom, noted here for his cartooning and other art work, was a student at Tech during the past session.

LEGION TO STAGE DANCE ON JULY 4

Part of Receipts to Be
Emergency Truck

The L. B. Faulk American Legion post is to hold a ball on the night of July 4 on the Hotel Virginia roof. Burgess Poole's orchestra is to furnish the music. The event is being arranged with much care by a special legion committee, and they assure that the occasion is to be a memorable one. A large percentage of the receipts will go to the fund that is to be used to repair and even better equip the legion's emergency truck. This truck is the only one of the kind that is owned and operated by a legion post. It is a memorial to the late Dr. H. E. Carney, who originated the idea.

The truck is ready at a moment's notice to dash to any big fire or emergency. Its services have been required in the last three and a half years on an average of 22 times a year. Drowning cases, where there is difficulty in recovering bodies, comprise the most frequent calls for the use of the truck. Cases in which persons have been overcome by electric shocks are another important class of emergencies in which the truck is in constant demand.

During the past flood, a number of bodies were recovered by the aid of this outfit.

Runs have been made as far as Vicksburg, to Winnsboro, Bastrop, beyond Columbia, and in other directions where immediate service is required. If a big fire occurs at night, the legion truck is used in order to secure the benefit of the large flood lights that it carries.

The truck is equipped with a Kohler light plant and has one 750-watt floodlight and one 1,000-watt spotlight. There are a first aid kit, 500 feet of rope, nine army blankets, two pairs of stretchers, four drag lines with hooks, pumpmotor and much other equipment.

But no recital of the truck would be complete without mention of the large and ornate siren, gift of the sister of the man who originated the emergency truck idea here.

An inscription thereon states: "Given by Miss Lucia Carney in memory of her brother, Dr. H. E. Carney."

The truck, while property of the legion post, is maintained and manned by the fire department of Monroe, of which the late Dr. Carney was an honorary member.

Firemen and legionnaires alike are proud of this truck and of the work it performs of a civic nature not only in Monroe but in the entire country-side. They also revere with utmost reverence the memory of Dr. Carney.

It is in order to still better equip this truck, that funds will be devoted to be derived from the Fourth of July dance on the Virginia roof.

News-Star--World Pattern

PATTERNS 2506 AND 2334

How do you pass the time on summer afternoons? Do you meet friends for bridge or tea, do you dash about on the tennis court . . . or both? We caught these young ladies at the club the other afternoon . . . each was clad in a delightful frock created for her mood. The Miss on the left, who'll go in to tea presently, is a picture in her gay frock. It boasts a smart use of contrast, a lovely print combined with monotone and to achieve the broad shoulder silhouette there are graceful sleeve flares and a flattering collar. Wouldn't you adore it for yourself? For active sporting the other frock is ideal. Clever, simple, slender seaming and comfortable shoulders are its winning points. Use one of the new cottons . . . they're easiest to keep fresh and neat.

Pattern 2506 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3 1/8 yards 33-inch fabric and 1 3/4 yards contrasting.

Pattern 2334 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3 yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

GENERAL FUND AIDS STATE PEN

general revenues of the state were used, to the extent of something like $200,000, to pay past due or current bills of the penitentiary system. It should be kept in mind that this money was given to the penitentiary at a time when most, if not all, of the charitable and eleemosynary institutions of Louisiana were suffering because of the state's inability to pay the full amount of appropriations made for them. However, the patronage departments received their full appropriation quotas.

Nor were the unprecedented drafts on the general fund the only extra financial help afforded the penitentiary. Governor Long borrowed from the fiscal banks for that institution, during the four years of his incumbency, $1,029,801.03. Of this sum, $285,000 was paid back by the legislature, in 1930, and the sum of $744,801.03 was incorporated in the bonded scheme through which the fiscal banks were reimbursed, on a 5 1/2 per cent basis, in 1932.

So that the state penitentiary receives from extra sources, in the period embraced by 1930-34, a total of $1,535,801.03. This is what it cost the people of Louisiana, over and above the normal revenues of the penitentiary, to operate that institution for four years. And interest payments on the fiscal loans are not included in the aggregate given. These will, of course, materially hike the total.

In 1921 a provision of the new constitution authorized the issuance of bonds to the extent of $1,000,000 to pay off an existing penitentiary debt of $150,000, and to purchase land and build levees at Angola, so as to prevent a repetition of a devastating Mississippi flood of the previous year. The bonds were to be retired and interest on them paid with proceeds of the penitentiary; but it was stipulated that the good faith of the state was behind the bonds and they could be retired and interest taken care of with any other available funds of the state.

Governors Parker, Fuqua and Simpson found it unnecessary to dig into the general fund or borrow from the fiscal banks to retire penitentiary bonds or meet interest payments. In 1926, the last year of the Fuqua administration (death took Governor Fuqua in the fall of that year), an appropriation of $213,250 was made by the legislature out of the penitentiary fund "for payment of maturing bonds and interest coupons", $128,500 for the first and $84,750 for the second fiscal year. The legislature that was in session when Huey P. Long was elected governor in 1928, provided $164,250 out of the penitentiary fund for payment of maturing bonds and interest coupons, $83,000 for the first and $81,250 for the second fiscal year. It was at a period subsequent to the loudly vaunted claim that the penitentiary was on a safe financial footing, that the process of dipping into the general revenue of the state to help out the penal system financially, began.

From beginning to end, the political activities of Huey P. Long in Louisiana have been identified, in some spectacular way, with penitentiary affairs. In his 1928 campaign for governor, the Winnfield statesman harped constantly on penitentiary mismanagement. He promised drastic changes in both personnel and policies, in order that the penitentiary might be made to pay what he was convinced he could make it pay.

Immediately after his inauguration, he drafted Hon. Harry P. Williams, prominent business man of southwest Louisiana, to take over penitentiary affairs; and, as he phrased it, bring order and profit out of chaos and failure. Mr. Williams effected a number of changes, but declined to factionalize the new penitentiary management. In a little while he resigned, and Clay Dugas of Assumption, was appointed to succeed him.

A legislative investigation of the state penitentiary, in 1930, developed many things. There was testimony concerning illegal purchases and other expenditures; about wild orgies in which penitentiary employees participated on penitentiary property; about deliberate evasion of the law governing contracts in order to help favored politicians; about extravagant and wasteful use of penitentiary funds; about loose discipline and looser methods of administration. The probe disclosed incompetency all along the line, and the existence of a politicalized penal system which had no parallel in this state.

Unfortunately, adjournment hour struck for the legislature before the investigation was completed. Funds were needed to continue the inquiry, but a resolution providing them was promptly vetoed by Governor Long. Expulsion of the then penitentiary manager was recommended by the committee. He was permitted to resign, but served sometime after his resignation and its acceptance had been announced by the governor. Had the penitentiary probe been permitted to continue, it was said that the public would have been regaled with some interesting and condemnatory evidence. But, funds were needed and they were deliberately withheld.

Theoretically, the state penitentiary spends just what it takes in. And, as has been shown, prior to 1930, it did just that. Records of the state auditor and state treasurer show that in the calendar year 1932, the penitentiary receipts were $478,116.24 and penitentiary expenditures $478,116.24. The system began the year with a $500 balance and ended it with the same balance.

Read for what they seemed to be, the penitentiary totals given here would convey the idea that the institution is at least self-supporting. But, there is that staggering total of $1,535,801.03, of which the penitentiary did not earn a single dime, to take into account. All of this money came from the general revenues of the state and Governor Long was the first Louisiana executive to provide it. The figures given are from the actual records, and are beyond the possibility of successful dispute.

Somewhat, the penitentiary system is always in the public eye. Its latest bid for public notice is the wholesale relieving of convicted criminals, up on whose claims to discharge neither the board of pardons nor the board of parole has passed. Under the law, a convict may be pardoned at any time, but the period at which he is subject to parole is definitely fixed. But hundreds of discharges from the penitentiary have had no reference to the pardoning or paroling power.

Negro Files Suit for Damages From Oil Mill

Suit for compensation at the rate of $5.01 a week for a period of 400 weeks, less credit for 84 weeks already paid, had been filed in district court here Saturday by Columbus Lambert against the Union Oil mill company. The suit is an attempt to re-open a case in which a compromise had already been effected.

According to the petition, Lambert's right foot and leg were caught in a conveyor while he was working at the oil mill on February 7, 1932. He stated that after being treated until December 3, 1932, he was advised by his physician that he would be completely recovered within five or six months and that on the basis of this advice he agreed to a compromise, in which he received pay for 41 weeks in addition to that he had already received for 43 weeks.

It is now apparent, however, according to the petition that amputation of the leg will be necessary, thus totally and permanently disabling the petitioner. He sets up that he is an ignorant, humble negro and that he was not aware of his rights under the law.

COTTON CAMPAIGN STARTS
TALLULAH, La., July 1.—(Special) The cotton control campaign to decrease acreage and production was duly amplified at a meeting held at the courthouse here this week, with an attendance of approximately 125 farmers, representative of a large per cent of the cotton acreage of Madison parish. Senator Norris Williamson made a forceful talk along the lines of cotton reduction. There was an almost unanimous vote to endorse the campaign and participate in carrying out the program of the government acreage retirement plan. The parish committee is composed of E. S. Moberley of Tallulah, M. G. McKay of Waverley, and C. M. Ritchie of Mounds. H. F. Cassell, agricultural agent, is busy appointing community committees and getting the work under way.

Attendance at Toledo's municipal playgrounds totaled 334,206 in 1932.

Regatta Is Postponed Following Conference

Due to the fact that so many persons will be out of the city on July 4, the regatta that was planned on the Ouachita river for that day has been postponed until a later date, to be determined upon later. This was the announcement made Saturday after a conference had been held with Senator James A. Noe and members of the committee from the recreation department for whose benefit the regatta was to have been given. Senator Noe was to lend the use of his large boat for the occasion.

It is proposed to stage the regatta on some afternoon during the coming week.

Utter Silence—New Low
Prices—and MORE!

IF YOU'VE looked at automatic refrigerators and declined to buy because you expected more—the refrigerator you want is here!

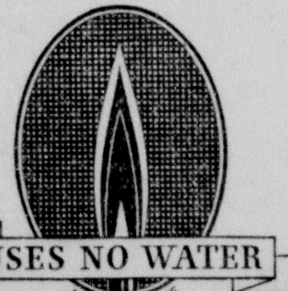

The New Air-Cooled Electrolux gives you MORE! More continuing economy. More complete silence. More lasting satisfaction. By its important, scientific advance, the New Air-Cooled Electrolux is even simpler than before. It uses no water. It has no moving parts to cause noise. Its refrigerant is kept in circulation by a tiny gas flame which is completely protected by an automatic shut-off. Less gas than ever is consumed. Air—ordinary air—cools the refrigerator which is hermetically sealed in rigid steel and needs no renewal.

What a forward step in the development of home refrigeration! No wonder you can expect lower operating costs—the ultimate in quietness—with the New Air-Cooled Electrolux! Yet, with all this, expect more! Expect more worthwhile advantages with the New Air-Cooled Electrolux! Exclusive advantages such as adjustable split shelves, automatic trigger release on ice trays, two-temperature chilling unit which insures constant uniform cold—as well as extra food space, non-stop defrosting, plenty of ice cubes, porcelain interiors.

And when you visit our showroom, expect to feel fortunate that you waited for the New Air-Cooled Electrolux—the finest refrigerator money can buy! Prices are scaled to a new low. Terms are liberal. Come in today!

Heat of Summer Brings the Beauty of Crape Myrtles to Gardens and City Streets

Just when most of the other flowering shrubs are giving way before the onslaught of hot, dry summer weather, the crape myrtles start on their long journey of glorious bloom. In spite of injury from sleet and storm and late spring freezes, the crape myrtles bloom again to delight our eyes and make our city more beautiful. We would like to suggest the general planting of crape myrtles along the public highways, by the Garden club or other civic spirited women's organizations. We know of nothing that could be more worth while or could repay more generously for the labor, than long avenues of brilliant blossoms when the heat of summer descends. We wonder also why there has not been massed plantings in the city parks. Crape myrtles shift for themselves under adverse weather conditions, but they do respond wonderfully to proper care.

There is an unusually beautiful lane of pink crape myrtles in the rear gardens of Mrs. Henry Bernstein's home on Riverside. Beautiful trees in pink and rose of the old-fashioned variety mark the former site of Mrs. E. M. Hudson's old home "Sycamore Hall." At Layton Castle several immense trees line the boundary edge on the north side of the garden. These trees bloom faithfully, year in and year out during the months of June and July and part of August. The site of the old Mulhearn home on St. John street is also marked by a row of deep pink crape myrtles.

The crape myrtle is accepted in the south as sort of a gift of Providence, with few questions asked. Nurserymen have not bothered to endow the different varieties with names, listing them simply, "Pink, red, white." In Jackson Square in New Orleans, several weeping crape myrtles intrigue the roving flower grower—but try to find a florist who can put you on the trail of one of these elusive critters! The purveyor of Vieux Carre glamour is overlooking a good bet when he fails to tell you what make the crape myrtles in Jackson Square weep.

Gilbert Home Scene of Lovely Dancing Party

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gilbert of Wisner delightfully entertained Saturday evening at a lovely dancing party in their spacious home, banked with beautiful flowers and garlands of southern Smilax. A buffet supper and refreshing fruit punch was served during the evening to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Freeman of Vicksburg, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Hetherwick and Mr. Sam Brown of Shreveport and Mrs. Clyde Lunen of Ventura, Cal.; Miss Elizabeth Moss of Arcadia, La.; Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Womble, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Sherouse, Mr. and Mrs. Lannie Calhoun, Jr., Mrs. Amy Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. Lannie Calhoun, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Gillard G. Conner, Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Holt, Dan Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Klempeter and Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Womble, of Gilbert.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Foster, Jr., J. C. Risher, Mrs. Fannie Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Russell S. Mecon, W. C. Knotts, Miss Georgia Knotts, Dr. Wilbert E. Mecon, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Colson, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Tucker, William Montgomery, E. B. Knotts, of Wisner.

Younger Set Enjoy Week-End at Bear Lake

Bear Lake, popular summer rendezvous for the younger set, attracted a group of intimates last week-end with Mrs. C. W. Wallace acting as chaperone. The lodge with its wide, screened gallery was a delightful place for dancing after the day's activities, comprising swimming, fishing and boating. In the party were: Miss Happy Tidwell and Durwood Griffin, Miss Joy Steele and William Wallace, Miss Corrie Mae Calder and John Strahan, Miss Mary Bonita Allen and Charles Mosley, Miss Priscilla Hodge and Foster Wallace, Miss Wanda Tremaine and Billy Haynes, Miss Anna Rosalee Herring and Charles Womack, Miss Lillie Thompson and Bill Yerger, Miss Jane Fisher of Vicksburg, and George Weeks, Jr., Miss Sidney Cologne and William King.

Miss Jessie Sadler will entertain members of the Sunday school class with a sunset tea in her "Cozy Corner" this afternoon between the hours of 5 and 7. The tea table in the shadowy garden spot will be presided over by Mrs. W. A. Walker, Sr., president of the class, Mrs. Sallie Merideth, secretary and treasurer, and Miss Martha Monteth, assistant secretary. All members of this class, who are regular attendants or otherwise, are cordially invited to be Mrs. Sadler's guests on this interesting occasion.

Recent Bride Honor Guest at Linen Shower

A charming compliment to Mrs. C. L. Breihn, a bride of recent date was the linen shower with which she was surprised at her home on McClendon avenue, West Monroe, last week. Miss Audrey Traylor and Miss Earnestine Whittington were responsible for the gathering of intimate friends and for the many interesting details which rendered this affair so thoroughly enjoyable.

Following the presentation of the beautiful pieces of linen, delicious refreshments were served to Meses. S. W. Freeman, R. I. Kennedy, Frank Frickey, Jerry Daniels, Pearl Lewis, Brock Lewis, Will Hogg, John Lolly, W. L. Whittington, Mamie Sherrod, J. P. Daniels, Miss Gussie Zagone, Miss Lella Moore, Miss Frances Karpus, Miss Willie Mae Whittington, Miss Earnestine Whittington, Miss Clara Bell Kennedy and the guest of honor.

Members of the Alto W. M. S. and a few guests from Bastrop gave a program at the church for the benefit of the Louisville Training school. Mrs. Frank B. Sartor presided at the meeting. The following program was well given:

Song, "Jesus Calls Us," congregational.

Devotional on prayer by Mrs. Jewellers of Rayville, La.

Playlet, Miss Kathleen McKay, Miss Mary Elizabeth Hicks, Miss Mattie Bell Smith.

Vocal duet, Miss Mattie Bell Smith and Mrs. Aubrey Thomason.

Talk on history of training school by Mrs. Aubrey Thomason.

Added information on training school by Mrs. Flood Madison of Bastrop, La.

Inspirational talk by Mrs. Bennett of Bastrop, La.

Mrs. Bennett dismissed with prayer. Delightful refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Biedenham are entertaining a company of guests at their lodge on Lake Bruin over the Fourth of July. They are: Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Kilpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Slagle, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Hudson, Mrs. H. McGeorge, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Lamkin, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Polk of Alexandria.

Friends of Miss Doris Gates will be glad to hear that she is convalescing nicely from injuries sustained in a recent automobile wreck and has been removed from St. Francis sanitarium to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Gates, 312 Hall street, and will be glad to have her friends call.

Miss Roberta O'Donnell accompanied by her mother, Mrs. R. W. O'Donnell will leave this evening for Chicago, where she will study dancing during the summer months. They will avail themselves of the opportunity of visiting the World's Fair.

Loraine Matthews is having a wonderful time this summer visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. St. Elmo Newton of Memphis, Tenn., and motoring with them to Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Roy Grant of the West Side is enjoying a visit with relatives in Houston, Texas.

Miss Julia Wosman, Miss Daisy Richardson and Miss Maida Moore motored yesterday to Chicago where they will enjoy the World's Fair.

Night Blooming Lilies Can Be Found in the Beautiful Pool of Mrs. Smith's Garden

If you saunter into Mrs. A. L. Smith's garden at sunset you will be privileged to watch the sacred lotus of the Nile (tropical night blooming water lilies) unfold their petals on the surface of her lily pool, filling the air with their heavy perfume. You will also see a turtle splashing in and out, a fat green frog sitting on a lily pad and catch, now and then, a gleam of gold as a fish dart here and there among the plants. So far as we know, Mrs. Smith's pool is the only one in Monroe where the night blooming lilies can be found and for this reason they are attracting considerable interest among lily pond enthusiasts. Almost every pool boasts of the variety of lily that opens its petals to the morning sun but for sheer beauty of coloring and of fragrance the lotus of the Nile stands unrivaled.

There is nothing gardens have to offer today that compares with the delight of a pool. Every hour of the day has something of interest to offer and especially so after the sun goes down when the foliage of the background is mirrored in its surface.

A pool invites one to dine out-of-doors and it is interesting to note that many Monroe families can now be found in their gardens enjoying their evening meal with the chorus of insect voices supplying a pleasant symphony. Although eating out-of-doors has been a habit of the Latin people for centuries, Monroe families are only beginning to enjoy their gardens as out-of-door dining rooms. Why is it that food served a fresco has a different flavor and is so much more appetizing than it is when served in the usual manner in-doors. Perhaps the leisure manner of eating makes it more delectable. . . . perhaps it is the fragrance of the flowers, the splashing of the water in the rock garden. . . . the novel informality. Whatever it is, we must all agree that eating out-of-doors makes the long evenings at home much more enjoyable.

And our pools have done all this for us. . . . they have brought us out of the kitchen and the hot, stuffy rooms of our home into the great outdoors where all nature conspires to make us content and happy with every day existence.

Barbara Sackett Observes Birthday Anniversary

Barbara Sackett invited a few friends to the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. V. Sackett to enjoy with her the celebration of her birthday anniversary on the twenty-ninth of June.

The garden was the setting for this interesting event where games were introduced for the amusement of the guests and prizes awarded for their successful efforts in the contests.

To Nell McCormick, Rodney Solomon, Armand McHenry and Aileen Perry.

The highlight of the afternoon, of course, was the serving of the delicious little cakes, ices and fruit punch, after which the many beautiful birthday gifts were opened and admired.

Present to wish Barbara many happy returns were: Dorothy Long, Faith Knapp, Nell McCormick, Sarah Regan, Fritzie Fleming, Aileen Perry, Joyce Gottlieb, Joan McAllister, Donald McComb, J. N. Swanson, Buster Long, Jack Nolan, Beverly Perry, Gene Wilder, Richard and Raymond Sackett, Rex Landis, Howard Marx, Armand McHenry and Barbara's cousins, Rodney and June Solomon of Fairbanks, Mrs. Parker McComb, Miss Lieber and Miss Ethel Long were also present.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Horton of Sterling, La., announce the marriage of their daughter Dorothea to Mr. Mack Naff of Alsatis, La. Tuesday, June the twenty-seventh at the Presbyterian Manse with the pastor, Reverend Ernest Holloway, officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Robinson were summoned to Huntsville, Texas, by the death of Mrs. Robinson's brother-in-law.

Mrs. W. J. Lovorn, Jr., and children, Ellwood and Cynthia of Kosciusko, Miss., are guests in the home of Mrs. E. H. Martin on North Fifth street.

Miss Margaret Fountaine of Kentwood, La., is the week-end guest of Miss Lela Mae Handley, 317 North Second street.

Garden Party Marks Birthday Anniversary

Birthdays are wonderful events when one is quite young, and the month is June. At least Carolyn Phyllis Johnson, lovely little daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Marvyn Johnson, is glad that her natal day fell on June the twenty-ninth when all nature conspired to make the day one of never-to-be-forgotten pleasure.

Her intimate little friends, arrayed in their party clothes, arrived in the shadowy garden of her home to pay their respects and to share the many pleasures arranged by the celebrant's mother. Games were introduced with the cutting of the handsome birthday cake with six flaring tapers, the crowning climax to the afternoon's pleasures. The tea table was placed under the spreading branches of the trees with balloons in all the pastel shades floating gaily from the boughs. The pastel shades were also reflected in the delicious little cakes and ices and sweetmeats served so bountifully. Cunning favors were distributed at this time.

Present to pay their respects to Carolyn Phyllis on her sixth birthday anniversary were: Jacqueline and Jocelyn James, Betty Miller, Biddie Eckhart, Betty Rae Melton, Carol Pracher, Brooks Dawkins, Allen Melton, Clayton Bennett, Owen Johnson, Patricia Spelling, Norma Norma Lennon, Mary Anita Lennon and Mary Helen Walker.

Mrs. F. M. Reeves and two lovely children are guests in the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. Q. Graves. Mrs. Reeves has many friends here where she is remembered as Miss Lucille Holomon, who will be grieved to learn of the recent death of her husband.

Mrs. Roy Morley and children, Nina Virginia, Roy William and Barbara Dean, have completed a visit in the home of Mrs. Morley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hitchcock of Park avenue, and returned to their home in Pine Bluff, Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Buchanan of Jackson, Miss., arrived yesterday spend the fourth with Mrs. Buchanan's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Braun.

"UNDERNEATH the bough—a jug of wine, a loaf of bread and thou beside me—" Like Omar the tentmaker, most of us will be content to stay at home this summer and enjoy the simple life with just our own family for company. . . . Conditions have improved, of course, but not sufficiently so to make a long summer vacation possible. . . . Realizing that "home keeping hearts are happiest," gardens and screened porches will be the popular summer rendezvous for countless families. . . . However, a summer trip does not mean reckless extravagance any more for those who call Monroe their home. . . . Have you ever paused to consider how fortunate we really are. . . . the waters of the Gulf of Mexico lap the shores almost at our very door. . . . We can leave our home in the morning and before nightfall motor along the wind swept shores of the Gulf. . . . Just around the corner from us are the mountains—the friendly Ozarks where a complete change of climate and scenery can be enjoyed. . . . Leaping from craig to craig, as it were, we find ourselves, either at the seashore or in the mountains in calm vacation mood watching the peasant of massed oaks and delicate tinnings that march across the changing horizon, drifting sunset palaces of the clouds, reaching to the infinite. . . . the mountains always inspire deep thought. . . . we lift our eyes to the hills, take stock of ourselves and such things as life, love and peace of mind. . . . No economic upheavals can dim the glory of the mountains or fascination of the gulf, they are just as irresistible as ever. . . . William Cullen Bryant expressed it most aptly when he said: "Strangers if thou hast learned a truth which needs no school of long experience, that the world is full of guilt and misery and hast seen enough of all its sorrows, crimes and cares to tire thee of it, enter this wild-wood and view the haunts of nature. The calm shade shall bring a kindred calm and the sweet breeze that makes the green leaves dance shall waft a balm to thy sick heart. Thou wilt find nothing here of all that pained thee in the haunts of men." . . . All of which reminds us that Mrs. Henry Blanks is back from the snow capped Rockies where she spent a glorious month with Whitfield Blanks, that handsome son of hers and his lovely wife. . . . We met her on one of those sizzling nights of last week and she lamented the fact that she could not linger all summer in Colorado. . . . the silver cords of affection for her young grandson drew her back home. . . . We saw Joy Steele the other day as cool as the

July fishermen. . . . Speaking of fishing, we are certainly glad that our new president is a sailor instead of a fisherman. . . . We will never forget that dead fish President Coolidge held before the public gaze in every Pathe Weekly news reel. . . . Doris Beaman brought back a rubber bathing suit from Houston where they are all the rage. . . . Let's hope it is puncture proof as barrels are not available these days. . . . Really though, she is a "knockout" in anything she wears. . . . Winnie Helen Hillard, as sweet and lovely as ever is with us again, resting up from her graduation at Rice. . . . She is marking time until Pay comes over from Houston for a few days' visit. . . . The Joseph Biedenham's are off for an eastern trip this morning with their beautiful granddaughter, Elizabeth, for company. . . . The Jack Rogers are home from Chicago and of course the fair. . . . Katie Mae and Bridger Thornhill offered some of that brand of hospitality for which they are famed to intimates who called to pay their respects to their lovely sister, Marguerite Hill, last night. . . . Marguerite, fresh from sunny California was a sight for tired eyes as she trailed a flowered frock over the grass in the beautiful gardens where comfortable garden chairs under gayly striped umbrellas proved so inviting that the guests almost forgot their plans to dance on the Virginia roof later in the evening. . . . Katie Mae fitted into the garden scene perfectly, in lettuce green organza. . . . Next week we will have news for you. . . . real exciting news accompanied by a picture of a very beautiful girl. . . . until then Au Revoir!

Miss Brantley Weds Mr. Sibley

Of interest to friends is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Grace Brantley and Mr. John S. Sibley, Saturday evening, July the first at the Baptist parsonage, West Monroe, with the pastor, Reverend Huntsberry, performing the ceremony in the presence of a few intimate friends. The bride wore a smart navy blue ensemble with accessories of white.

Mr. and Mrs. Sibley are now at home to their friends at 415 Catalpa street.

The tea table was placed under the spreading branches of the trees with balloons in all the pastel shades floating gaily from the boughs. The pastel shades were reflected in the delicious little cakes and ices and sweetmeats served so bountifully. Cunning favors were distributed at this time.

Present to pay their respects to Carolyn Phyllis on her sixth birthday anniversary were: Jacqueline and Jocelyn James, Betty Miller, Biddie Eckhart, Betty Rae Melton, Carol Pracher, Brooks Dawkins, Allen Melton, Clayton Bennett, Owen Johnson, Patricia Snelling, Norma Norma Lennon, Mary Anita Lennon and Mary Helen Walker.

Mrs. F. M. Reeves and two lovely children are guests in the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. Q. Graves. Mrs. Reeves has many friends here who she is remembered as Miss Lucille Holoman, who will be grieved to learn of the recent death of her husband.

Mrs. Roy Morley and children, Nina Virginia, Roy William and Barbara Dean, have completed a visit in the home of Mrs. Morley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hitchcock of Park avenue, and returned to their home in Pine Bluff, Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Buchanan, Jackson, Miss., arrived yesterday, spend the fourth with Mrs. Buchanan's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Braun.

"UNDERNEATH the bough—a jug of wine, a loaf of bread and thou beside me—" Like Omar the tentmaker, most of us will be content to stay at home this summer and enjoy the simple life with just our own family for company. . . . Conditions have improved, of course, but not sufficiently so to make a long summer vacation possible. . . . Realizing that "home keeping hearts are happiest," gardens and screened porches will be the popular summer rendezvous for countless families. . . . However, a summer trip does not mean reckless extravagance any more for those who call Monroe their home. . . . Have you ever paused to consider how fortunate we really are. . . . the waters of the Gulf of Mexico lap the shores almost at our very door. . . . We can leave our home in the morning and before nightfall motor along the wind swept shores of the Gulf. . . . Just around the corner from us are the mountains—the friendly Ozarks where a complete change of climate and scenery can be enjoyed. . . . Leaping from Craig to Craig, as it were, we find ourselves, either at the seashore or in the mountains in calm vacation mood watching the pagan of massed colors and delicate tints that march across the changing horizon, drifting sunset palaces of the clouds, reaching to the infinite. . . . the mountains always inspire deep thought. . . . we lift our eyes to the hills, take stock of ourselves and such things as life, love and peace of mind. . . . No economic upheavals can dim the glory of the mountains or fascination of the Gulf, they are just as irresistible as ever. . . . William Cullen Bryant expressed it most aptly when he said: "Stranger, if thou hast learned a truth which needs no school of long experience, that the world is full of guilt and misery and hast seen enough of all its sorrows, crimes and cares to tire thee of it, enter this wild-wood and view the haunts of nature. The calm shade shall bring a kindred calm and the sweet breeze that makes the green leaves dance shall waft a balm to thy sick heart. Thou wilt find nothing here of all that pained thee in the haunts of men." . . . All of which reminds us that Mrs. Henry Blanks is back from the snow capped Rockies where she spent a glorious month with Whitfield Blanks, that handsome son of hers and his lovely wife. . . . We met her on one of those sizzling nights of last week and she lamented the fact that she could not linger all summer in Colorado. . . . the silver cords of affection for her young grandson drew her back home. . . . We saw Joy Blanks the other day as cool as the

July fishermen. . . . Speaking of fishing, we are certainly glad that our new president is a sailor instead of a fisherman. . . . We will never forget that dead fish President Coolidge held before the public gaze in every Pathe Weekly news reel. . . . Doris Beaman brought back a rubber bathing suit from Houston where they are all the rage. . . . Let's hope it is puncture proof as barrels are not available these days. . . . Really though, she is a "knockout" in anything she wears. . . . Winnie Helen Hilliard, as sweet and lovely as ever is with us again, resting up from her graduation at Rice. . . . She is marking time until Fay comes over from Houston for a few days' visit. . . . The Joseph Biedenharn's are off for an eastern trip this morning with their beautiful granddaughter, Elizabeth, for company. . . . The Jack Rogers are home from Chicago and of course the fair. . . . Katie Mae and Bridger Thornhill offered some of that brand of hospitality for which they are famed to intimates who called to pay their respects to their lovely sister, Marguerite Hill, last night. . . . Marguerite, fresh from sunny California was a sight for tired eyes as she trailed a flowered frock over the grass in the beautiful gardens where comfortable garden chairs under gayly striped umbrellas proved so inviting during the evening to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Freeman of Vicksburg, Mr. and Mrs. Sep Hetherwick and Mr. Sam Brown of Shreveport and Mrs. Clyde Lunen of Ventura, Cal.; Miss Elizabeth Moss of Arcadia, La.; Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Womble, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Sherrouse, Mr. and Mrs. Lannie Calhoun, Jr., Mrs. Amy Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. Lannie Calhoun, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Gilliard G. Conner, Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Holt, Dan Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Klempeter and Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Womble, of Gilbert.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Foster, Jr., J. C. Risher, Mrs. Fannie Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Russell S. Me-com, W. C. Knotts, Miss Georgia Knotts, Dr. Wilbert E. Me-com, and Mrs. M. P. Colson, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Tucker, William Montgomery, E. B. Knotts, of Wisner.

Miss Brantley Weds Mr. Sibley

Of interest to friends is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Grace Brantley and Mr. John S. Sibley, Saturday evening, July the fourth at the Baptist parsonage, West Monroe, with the pastor, Reverend Huntsberry, performing the ceremony in the presence of a few intimate friends. The bride wore a smart navy blue ensemble with accessories of white.

Mr. and Mrs. Sibley are now at home to their friends at 415 Catalpa street.

Society Garden Party Arranged for Lovely Visitor

Moonlight and roses were the theme song for Mr. and Mrs. Bridger Thornhill's informal little garden party, Saturday night with Mrs. Thornhill's lovely sister, Miss Marguerite Hill of Los Angeles, Cal., the center of attraction. The silvery radiance of the moon accentuated the beauty of the garden and rendered more beautiful the feminine guests in summery evening frocks.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornhill served iced frappe and sandwiches and then joined the company in dancing on the Virginia roof for the remainder of the evening. Mrs. Thornhill wore on this occasion a picturesque evening model of green organza and Miss Hill wore a charming floor length blue flowered chiffon model with a little short white jacket of corded silk.

Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, Ouachita parish home demonstration agent, submits the following recipe for canned tomatoes to the housewives of this district: Select firm, ripe tomatoes of uniform size and shape and put them into trays or shallow layers in wire baskets and dip in boiling water for about a minute, according to ripeness. Remove and plunge quickly into cold water for an instant. Drain at once, and core and peel promptly. Pack into jars or cans as closely as possible. For home use, fill with a thick tomato sauce or with the juice of other tomatoes, but if the tomatoes are to be sold under federal regulations add only the juice which drains from them during peeling and trimming. Season with 1 teaspoon salt per quart. Place quart and pint glass jars for 45 minutes in boiling water and enameled tin cans for 35 minutes.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Beasley of the west side have returned from a month's motor trip in the east, including a visit in New York city, Philadelphia, Washington and the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago.

Recent arrivals in the city to make Monroe their future home are Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Doughty, brother and sister-in-law of Mr. D. M. Doughty. They will be comfortably located on Arkansas avenue, after the fifth of July.

Murder At Bridge

CHAPTER XXV

Bonnie Dundee's first thought upon awakening that Sunday morning was that it might prove to be rather a pity that his new bachelor apartment, as he loved to call his three rooms at the top of a lodging house which had once been a fashionable private home, faced south and west, rather than east. At the Rhodes House, whose boarding house clamor and lack of privacy he had abandoned upon taking the flattering job and decent salary of "special investigator attached to the district attorney's office," he had grown accustomed to using the hot morning sun upon his reluctant eyelids as an alarm clock.

But—he continued the train of thought, after discovering by his watch that it was only 8:40—it was pretty darned nice having "digings," like these. Quiet and private. For he was the only tenant now on the top floor. His lazy eyes roved over the plain severity but solid comfort of his bedroom, and on past the open door to take in appreciatively the equally comfortable and masculine living room. Pretty nice! The leather-upholstered couch and armchair had been a real bargain, and he liked them all the better for being rather scuffed and shabby. Then his eyes halted upon a covered cage, swung from a pedestal.

"Poor old Cap'n! Must be wondering when the devil I'm going to get up," he swung out of bed, lounged sleepily into the small living room and whistled the square of black silk from the cage. The parrot, formerly the property of murdered old Mrs. Hogarth of the Rhodes House, but for the past year the young detective's official "Watson," ruffled his feathers, poked his green-and-yellow head between the bars of his cage and croaked hoarsely: "Hullo! Hullo!"

"Hullo, yourself, my dear Watson!" Dundee retorted. "Your vacation is over, old top! It's back on the job for you and me both. Which reminds me that ought to be taking a squint at the Sunday papers to see how much Captain Strawn thought fit to tell the press."

He found The Hamilton Morning News in the hall just outside his living room door.

"Listen, Cap'n. . . NITA SELIM MURDERED AT BRIDGE. . . Probably the snappiest streamer headline the News has had for many a day. . . Now let's see—He was silent for two minutes, while his eyes leaped down the lesser headlines and the story of the murder. Then: "Good old Strawn! Not a word, my dear Watson, about your absurd master's death! He was at bridge! Played! Not a word about Ralph Hammond, the missing guest! Not a word about Mrs. Tracey Miles being hidden away in the clothes closet while her hostess was being murdered! . . . In fact, my dear Watson, not a word about anything except Strawn's own theory that a hired gunman from New York or Chicago—preferably Nita's home town, New York, of course—sneaked up, crouched in her window, and bumped her off. And life-size photographs of the big footprints under the window to prove his theory! . . . By golly, Cap'n! I almost forgot to tell my former chief that I'd found Nita's will and note to Lydia! He'll think I deliberately held out on him. . . Well—I can't sit here all day gossiping with you. Work—much work—to be done, then—Sunday dinner with poor little Penny."

Four hours later a tired and dispirited young detective was climbing the stairs of the five-story "walk-up" apartment house in which Penny Crain and her mother had been living since the financial failure and flight of the husband and father, Roger Crain.

"Hello, there!" It was Penny's friendly voice, hailing him from the topmost landing of the steep stairs. "All winded, poor thing?" His eyes drank her in—the freshness and sweetness of a domestic Penny Crain, so different from the thorny little office Penny who prided herself on her efficiency as secretary to the district attorney. . . Penny in flowered voile, with a saucy, ruffled white apron. . . But there were purplish shadows under her brown eyes, and her gayety lasted until he had reached her side.

"Sh-h-h!—Have they found Ralph?" she whispered anxiously. "He could be anywhere. No. . . Mother's all of a twitter at my having a detective to dinner," she whispered, trying to be gay again. "She fancies you'll be wearing size 11 shoes and a 'six-shooter' at your belt—Yes, Mother! It's Mr. Dundee!" She did not look "all of a twitter," this pretty but rather faded middle-aged little mother of Penny's. A gentle dignity and patient sadness, which Dundee was sure were habitual of her, lay in the faded blue eyes and upon the soft, sweet mouth.

But Mrs. Crain was ushering him into the living room, and its charm made him forget for the moment that the Crains were to be pitied because of their "come-down" in life. For every piece of furniture seemed to be authentic early American, and the hooked rugs and fine, brocaded damasks allied themselves with the fine old furniture to defeat the ugliness with which the Maple Court Apartments' architect had been fiercely determined to punish its tenants.

"Scuse me! Gotta dish up," Penny flung over her shoulder as she ran away and left him alone with her mother.

Dundee liked Mrs. Crain for making no excuses about a maid they couldn't afford, like the way she settled into a lovely, ancient rocking chair and set herself to entertain him while her daughter made ready the dinner.

Not a word was said about the horrible tragedy which had occurred the day before in the house which had once been her home. They talked of Penny's work, and the little gentleman listened eagerly, with only the faintest of sighs, as Dundee humorously described Penny's fierce efficiency and District Attorney Sander-son's keen delight in her work.

"Bill Sander-son is a nice boy," the woman of perhaps 48 said of Hamil-

TALENTED YOUNG DANCERS

Jeane and Jeune Hunt, lovely little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. King Hunt, are seen here in the beautiful costumes they wore in Mrs. Harry Rice's dance revue, "Novelties of 1933," at the Paramount theater. Both little girls are talented dancers.

Two Playgrounds to Be Opened Here Tomorrow

Two additional playgrounds are to be opened Monday, under direction of the municipal recreation department, it was stated by Miss Lucyle Godwin, director, Saturday. These are to be at Sherrouse school and at Crosley school in West Monroe. A recent test was made at the Sherrouse school to ascertain the desirability of operating a playground there, and the showing indicated that operation is much desired. Miss Godwin stated, The playground is to be opened at Sherrouse school at 8:30 a. m. Monday and is to be in charge of Mrs. Walter Carson. Aiding her will be Isaac Atkinson and Miss Ada McWilliams. The place is to be open for Monday only this week, but after this week, the days will be Monday and Tuesday.

In West Monroe, the Crosley playground is to be in charge of Miss Gladys Greer, who has had past experience in recreation work. These playgrounds are to be opened in spite of the fact that there is but a small sum of money available to pay for their operation, but through the sponsorship of the Twin City Parent-Teacher organization, a number of entertainments are to be held through the summer to raise money and it is expected to carry on in this manner.

Wisner

Mrs. M. P. Colson and Mrs. Russell S. Mecon entertained Friday afternoon at bridge in the attractive apartment of Mrs. Colson.

Baskets and vases of bright summer flowers were artistically arranged in the spacious rooms.

Mrs. H. B. Womble, Sr., won high score, Mrs. Laura Bates second, and Mrs. Lannie Calhoun, Sr., cut consolation, Mrs. Clyde Lunen and Mrs. J. E. Freeman were presented with guest prizes. Mrs. Guy Klempeter, Mrs. Jessie York, Mrs. Nina McCoy, Mrs. J. W. Robinson, Mrs. C. W. Sherrouse, Mrs. Lannie Calhoun, Jr., Mrs. Fred Gilbert, Mrs. A. G. Corbitt, Mrs. C. E. Scott, of Gilbert, Mrs. T. J. Henry, Mrs. Carl Shipp, Jr., Mrs. J. C. Brewer, Mrs. W. A. Tucker, Mrs. R. L. Segrest, Mrs. E. L. Lewis, Mrs. E. M. Gilbert, Mrs. T. L. Owen, Mrs. E. E. Ewing, and Miss Georgia Knotts of Wisner. Mrs. Sep Hetherwick of Shreveport also enjoyed the affair.

Incorporation Articles Filed Here Yesterday

Articles of incorporation for Buckhorn, Inc., were filed Saturday in the office of clerk of court. Authorized capital stock of the concern was placed at $5,000 and it was authorized to begin business when $1,000 had been paid in.

Officers of the concern, who also constitute the first board of directors, and the number of shares of stock, valued at $100 per share, subscribed by each were listed as follows: A. J. Tippit, president, eight shares; L. D. Cason, vice-president, one share; T. L. Tippit, secretary-treasurer, one share.

The purpose of the concern was said to be to acquire and operate a general billiard, recreation and amusement parlor and drink stand. It was also authorized to perform other acts necessary to such operation.

CHARGED WITH LARCENY

Charged with the larceny of four cartons of cigarettes, valued at $7.50, Willie Jackson, negro, was being held in the city jail Saturday, after being arrested by members of the police department. The cigarettes were said to have been stolen from the American Service company ice station at 1601 DeSiard street.

"I have found that it was possible of him to do so," Dundee said slowly.

"The butler was off for the afternoon until six o'clock. There was no one in the house but the nursemaid and the three-months-old baby."

"Well? I suppose you think Clive and Polly didn't have a chance to head Ralph off, as you say, but that they did see him running away after he killed her?" Her voice was still brittle with anger, but there were indecision and fear in it too.

"No," Dundee replied. "I don't think they saw him. I feel pretty sure he came into the house by the back way, and through the back hall into Nita's room. He must have known Clive and Polly would be on the lookout for him. . . At any rate, I have proof that whoever shot Nita from in front of that window near the porch door fled toward the back hall."

And he told her of the big bronze lamp, whose bulb had been broken, reminding her of its place at the head of the chaise longue which was set between the two west windows.

"That was the 'bank or bump' Flora Miles heard while she was hiding in the closet," he explained. "I suppose Flora has told all of you about it! . . . I thought so. Muffled as she was in the closet, it is unlikely that she could have heard Nita's frantic whisperings to Ralph. . . I doubt, if he spoke at all. . . Nita must have been sure he was leaving by the porch door."

Dimly there came the ring of the telephone. With a curt word, Penny excused herself to answer it. Dundee went on polishing glasses with a fresh towel. . .

"Bonnie!" Penny was coming back, walking like a somnambulist, her brown eyes wide and fixed. "That was—Ralph! And he doesn't even know Nita is dead!"

Griffith Is Collecting Fees From Beer Dealers

Ralph C. Griffith, local United States internal revenue collector, with offices on the third floor of the post-office building, is busily engaged in the collection of license fees due the government from dealers in the new legalized beer. Wholesale dealers must pay, on or before July 31, a license of $100, when both beer and wine are sold. Wholesalers handling beer only are required to pay $50, while retailers of wine and beer are assessed $25, and retailers of beer only, $20.

Mr. Griffith is also engaged in preparing to collect the so-called "processing tax" on wheat and flour for 11 parishes of northeast Louisiana. This also includes all wheat products. Every wholesaler and retailer, operating delicatessens, groceries, hotels, restaurants, and similar places are required to inventory their stock on July 8, according to information received here.

The parishes in which Mr. Griffith is to operate are those of Ouachita, Morehouse, Union, Lincoln, Jackson, Franklin, Richland, East and West Carroll, Madison and Tensas.

Bonnie Dundee's first thought upon awakening that Sunday morning was that it might prove to be rather a pity that his new bachelor apartment, as he loved to call his three rooms at the top of a lodging house which had once been a fashionable private home, faced south and west, rather than east. At the Rhodes House, whose boarding house clamor and lack of privacy he had abandoned upon taking the flattering job and decent salary of "special investigator attached to the district attorney's office," he had grown accustomed to using the hot morning sun upon his reluctant eyelids as an alarm clock.

But—he continued the train of thought, after discovering by his watch that it was only 8:40—it was pretty darned nice having "digings," like these. Quiet and private, for he was the only tenant now on the top floor. His lazy eyes roved over the plain severity but solid comfort of his bedroom, and on past the open door to take in appreciatively the equally comfortable and masculine living room. . . . Pretty nice! That leather-upholstered chair and armchair had been a real bargain, and he liked them all the better for being rather scuffed and shabby. Then his eyes halted upon a covered cage, swung from a pedestal.

"Poor old Cap'n! . . . Must be wondering when the devil I'm going to get up," he swung out of bed, lounged sleepily into the small living room and whistled the dice square of black silk from the cage.

The parrot, formerly the property of murdered old Mrs. Hogarth of the Rhodes House, but for the past year the young detective's official "Watson," ruffled his feathers, poked his green-and-yellow head between the bars of his cage and croaked hoarsely: "Hullo! Hullo!"

"Hullo, yourself, my dear Watson!" Dundee retorted. "Your vacation is over, old top! It's back on the job for you and me both . . . Which reminds me that ought to be taking a squint at the Sunday papers to see how much Captain Strawn thought fit to tell the press."

He found The Hamilton Morning News in the hall just outside his living room.

"Listen, Cap'n. . . . NITA SELIM MURDERED AT BRIDGE. . . . Probably the snappiest streamer headline the News has had for many a day. . . . Now let's see—He was silent for two minutes, while his eyes leaped down the lesser headlines and the story of the murder. Then: "Good old Strawn! Not a word, my dear Watson, about your absent master's absent performance in having 'the death hand at bridge' released! Not a word about Ralph Hammond, the missing guest! Not a word about Mrs. Tracey Miles being hidden away in the clothes closet while her mistress was being murdered! . . . In fact, my dear Watson, not a word about anything except Strawn's own theory that a hired gunman from New York or Chicago—preferably Nita's home town, New York, of course—snatched her, crunched in her window, and bumped her off. And life-size photographs of the big fingerprints under the window to prove his theory! . . . By golly, Cap'n! I don't forget to tell my former chief that I'd found Nita's will and note to Lydia! He'll think I deliberately held out on him."

Well! I don't want to tell him anything about Nita's will and note to Lydia! . . . Four hours later a tired and dispirited young detective was climbing the stairs of the five-story "walk-up" apartment house in which Penny Crain and her mother had been living since the financial failure and flight of the husband and father, Roger Crain.

"Hello, there!" It was Penny's friendly voice, hailing him from the topmost landing of the steep stairs. "All winded, poor thing?" His eyes drank her in—the freshness and sweetness of a domestic Penny Crain, so different from the thorny little office Penny who prided herself on her efficiency as secretary to the district attorney. . . . Penny in flowered voile, with a saucy, ruffled white apron. . . . But there were purplish shadows under her brown eyes, and her gawky lusted until he had reached her side.

"Sh-h-h-h!—Have they found Ralph?" she whispered anxiously.

He could only answer "No."

"Mother's all of a twitter at my having a detective to dinner," she whispered, trying to be gay again. "She fancies you'll be wearing size 11 shoes and a 'six-shooter' at your belt—yes, Mother! It's Mr. Dundee. She didn't look 'all of a twitter' this pretty but rather faded middle-aged little mother of Penny's. A gentle dignity and patient sadness, which Dundee was sure were habitual of her, lay in the faded blue eyes and upon the soft, sweet mouth.

But Mrs. Crain was ushering him into the living room, and his charm made him forget for the moment that the Crains were to be pitied, because of their "come-down" in life. For every piece of furniture seemed to be authentic early American, and the hooked rug and fine, brocade damask allied themselves with the fine old furniture to defeat the ugliness with which the Maple Court Apartments' architect had been fiercely determined to punish its tenants.

"Scuse me! Gotta dish up!" Penny flung over her shoulder as she ran away and left him alone with her mother.

Dundee liked Mrs. Crain for making no excuses about a maid they couldn't afford, like the way she settled into a lovely, ancient rocking chair and set herself to entertain him while her daughter made ready the dinner.

Not a word was said about the horrible tragedy which had occurred the day before in the house which had been her home. They talked of Penny's work, and the little gentleman listened eagerly, with only the faintest of sighs, as Dundee humorously described Penny's fierce efficiency and District Attorney Sander's keen delight in her work.

"Bill Sanderson is a nice boy," the woman of perhaps 48 said of Hamilton.

ton's 35-year-old district attorney. "It is nice for Penny to work with an old friend of the family, or was—until—"

And that was the nearest she came to mentioning the murder before Penny summoned them to the little dining room.

Because Penny was watching him and was obviously proud of her skill as a cook—skill recently acquired, he was sure—Dundee ate as heartily as his carefully concealed depression would permit. There was a beautifully browned roast of beef, pan-browned potatoes, new peas, scalloped tomatoes, and for dessert a gelatin pudding which Penny proudly announced was "Spanish cream," the secret of which she had mastered only that morning.

TALENTED YOUNG DANCERS

Jeane and Jeune Hunt, lovely little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. King Hunt, are seen here in the beautiful costumes they wore in Mrs. Harry Rice's dance revue, "Novelties of 1935," at the Paramount theater. Both little girls are talented dancers.

Wisner

Mrs. M. P. Colson and Mrs. Russell S. Mecon entertained Friday afternoon at bridge in the attractive apartment of Mrs. Colson.

Baskets and vases of bright summer flowers were artistically arranged in the spacious rooms.

Mrs. H. B. Womble, Sr., won high score, Mrs. Laura Bates second, and Mrs. Lammie Calhoun, Sr., cut consolation. Mrs. Clyde Lumen and Mrs. J. E. Freeman were presented with guest prizes. Mrs. Guy Klempner, Mrs. Jessie York, Mrs. Nina McCoy, Mrs. J. W. Robinson, Mrs. C. W. Sherrouse, Mrs. Lammie Calhoun, Jr., Mrs. Fred Gilbert, Mrs. A. G. Corbett, Mrs. C. E. Scott, of Gilbert, Mrs. T. J. Henry, Mrs. Carl Shipp, Jr., Mrs. J. C. Brewer, Mrs. W. A. Tucker, Mrs. R. L. Segrest, Mrs. E. L. Lewis, Mrs. Tom Gilbert, Mrs. T. L. Owen, Mrs. E. E. Evans, and Miss Georgia Knotts of Wisner.

Mrs. Sep. Hetherwick of Shreveport also enjoyed the affair.

Articles of incorporation for Buckhorn, Inc., were filed Saturday in the office of clerk of court. Authorized capital stock of the concern was placed in $2,000 and it was authorized to begin business when $1,000 had been paid in.

Officers of the concern, who also constitute the first board of directors, and the number of shares of stock, valued at $100 per share, subscribed by each were listed as follows: A. J. Tippet, president, eight shares; L. D. Cason, vice-president, one share; T. L. Tippet, secretary-treasurer, one share.

The purpose of the concern was said to be to acquire and operate a general edition, recreation and amusement park and drink stand. It was also authorized to perform other acts necessary to such operation.

CHARGED WITH LARCENY
Charged with the larceny of four suits of clothing, valued at $250, Willie Jackson, negro, was being held in the city jail Saturday, after being arrested by members of the police department. The garments were said to have been stolen from the American Service company ice station at 501 D Street.

"If you call it the 'death hand again, I'll scream!"

"All right. . . . They stayed there until Karen discovered the murder. I am sure they chose that place because of its many windows; they could watch for Ralph's car, dash out and head him off. Take him away by force if necessary, to keep him from making a scene. I believe they knew he had murder in his heart, and that he would find a way to get a gun."

"Have you also found out that he stole Hugo's gun yesterday?"

"I have found that it was possible of him to do so," Dundee said. "The butter was off for the afternoon until six o'clock. There was no one in the house but the nursemaid and the three-month-old baby."

"Well! And I suppose you think Clive and Polly didn't have a chance to head Ralph off, as you say, but that they did see him running away after he killed her?" Her voice was still brittle with anger, but there were indecision and fear in it, too.

"No," Dundee replied. "I don't think they saw him. I feel pretty sure he came into the house by the back way, and through the back hall into Nita's room. He must have known Clive and Polly would be on the lookout for him. . . . At any rate, I have proof that whoever shot Nita from in front of that window near the porch door fled toward the back hall."

And he told her of the big bronze lamp, whose bulb had been broken, remaining her of its place at the head of the chaise longue which was set between the two west windows.

"That was the 'bunk or hump' Flora Miles heard while she was hiding in the closet," he explained. "I suppose Flora has told all of you about it." . . . I thought so. Muffled as she was in the closet, it is unlikely that she could have heard Nita's frantic whisperings to Ralph. . . . I doubt if he spoke at all. . . . Nita must have been sure he was leaving by the porch door."

Dimly there came the ring of the telephone. With a curt word, Penny excused herself to answer it. Dundee went on polishing glasses with a fresh towel. . . .

"Bonnie!" Penny was coming back, walking like a somnambulist, her brown eyes wide and fixed. "That was—Ralph! And he doesn't even know Nita is dead!"

Two Playgrounds to Be Opened Here Tomorrow

Two additional playgrounds are to be opened Monday, under direction of the municipal recreation department, it was stated by Miss Lucyle Godwin, director, Saturday. These are to be at Sherrouse school and at Crosey school in West Monroe.

A recent test was made at the Sherrouse school to ascertain the desirability of operating a playground there, and the showing indicated that operation is much desired, Miss Godwin stated. The playground is to be opened at Sherrouse school at 8:30 a. m. Monday and is to be in charge of Mrs. Walter Carson. Aiding her will be Isaac Atkinson and Miss Ada McWilliams. The place is to be open for Monday only this week, but after this week the days will be Monday and Tuesday.

In West Monroe, the Crosey playground is to be in charge of Miss Gladys Greer, who has had past experience in recreation work.

These playgrounds are to be opened in spite of the fact that there is but a small sum of money available to pay for their operation, but through the sponsorship of the Twin City Parent-Teacher organization, a number of entertainments are to be held through the summer to raise money, and it is expected to carry on in this manner.

Griffith Is Collecting Fees From Beer Dealers

Ralph C. Griffith, local United States internal revenue collector, with offices on the third floor of the post-office building, is busily engaged in the collection of license fees due the government from dealers in the new legalized beer. Wholesale dealers must pay, on or before July 31, a license of $100, which both beer and wines are sold. Wholesalers handling beer only are required to pay $50, while retailers of wine and beer are assessed $25, and retailers of beer only $20.

Mr. Griffith is also engaged in preparing to collect the so-called "processing tax" on wheat and flour for 11 parishes of northeast Louisiana. This also includes all wheat products. Every wholesaler and retailer, operating delicatessens, groceries, hotels, restaurants, and similar places are required to inventory their stock on July 8, according to information received here.

The parishes in which Mr. Griffith is to operate are those of Ouachita, Morehouse, Union, Lincoln, Jackson, Franklin, Richland, East and West Carroll, Madison and Tensas.

NATS MAKE QUICK WORK OF BEATING DETROIT, 11 TO 3

Thomas Allows But Seven Hits as Mates Maul Tiger Hurlers

DETROIT, July 1.—(P)—Washington made certain of its first place berth today when it quickly took the Detroit Tigers 11 to 3.

The game was over in an hour and 26 minutes, a new low mark for recent years.

Al Thomas kept the Tigers well in hand, and let them down with seven scattered hits, two of which were home runs by George Walker and Greenberg.

Vic Sorrell pitched good ball into the fifth inning, holding the Senators to two hits and as many runs. Cronin hit a home run, a double and a single to lead the batting. Box score:

GIANTS TROUNCE CARDINALS, 11-1

Davis' Home Run Is Feature as New York Breaks Card Jinx

NEW YORK, July 1.—(P)—The Giants broke the St. Louis "jinx" in a big way today, wallowing the Cardinals 11 to 1 in the third game of the series, and by winning they increased their hold on first place to 3 1-2 places.

The Cards had won the first seven encounters between the clubs this season.

George Davis sent the sixth inning rally off by hitting a home run with two on base.

The Giants continued to pound the offerings of Cardinal hurlers for a total of 17 hits.

KRAFT TOURNEY TO START TODAY

Third Annual Golf Meet to Be Three-Day Affair at Bastrop

BASTROP, July 1.—(Special)—Headed by such stellar golfers as Ed Wilson, McClure of Shreveport, four times state champion, Jack Annan of Shreveport, Ralph Williams of Arkadelphia, Ark., collegiate Arkansas champion, Fred Haas, Jr., of Bastrop, runner-up in the state championship this year, and others, the third annual Kraft Paper Invitation golf tournament is scheduled to get under way here Sunday morning at the Morehouse Country club with a field of more than seventy-five golfers from Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

A large delegation of golfers from Monroe, Crossett, Tallulah and other towns in Louisiana have indicated their intention of entering the three-day tourney, which starts Sunday. Golfers from New Orleans and cities in Arkansas and Mississippi are also expected.

Prizes costing $350 will be awarded the winners. The tournament is open to amateurs and will be in eight flights. The flight for the championship will be 36 holes. The qualifying round will be 18 holes and then at least eight flights will be formed, the championship flight consisting of the top sixteen players and all other flights of eight players. The sixteen low qualifiers will have to be present during the entire three days of the tournament while other qualifiers will not have their final matches until Monday. There will also be driving and putting contests and an 18-hole hole handicap for those who come Monday and do not qualify for the championship flight.

There will be three prizes for each flight, besides a prize for medalist and for the best low net in the qualifying round. A big barbecue for all entrants will be served at the Country club Sunday night.

This will be the third annual Kraft Paper tournament held here. Previous champions are Arthur Ross of Boston Red Sox, has returned here and will pitch for the Tallulah team. "Sully" Sutherland, local product, will be on the mound for the Oak Grove club, and a hard fought duel is in prospect.

Jones pitched winning ball for the Tallulah club last year and his record here and in college circles won him a chance with the American league team. Sutherland formerly pitched and played in the outfield for the local club. This is his first year with Oak Grove.

The baseball game will be called at 3:30 o'clock. Several boxing matches will be staged after the game and other Fourth of July features have been arranged.

Bernice Team Blanks Farmerville, 5 to 0

BERNICE, July 1.—(Special)—Hurling his second shutout game of the season, Still, Bernice pitcher, struck out eleven men and allowed only one hit as the locals won a 5 to 0 victory over the Farmerville nine yesterday.

Morris, winner of the 110-meter hurdles in the National A. U. meet at Soldier field last night, will sail Wednesday from New York with some half dozen other outstanding athletes selected by national A. A. U. officials. George Bresnahan of the University of Iowa will act as coach and manager for the team.

The message said that Glen "Slat" Hardin, of Greenwood, Miss., sensational Louisiana State university hurdler, had declined the invitation.

Morris, representing the Southwest Louisiana A. C. last night, defeated Percy Beard of the New York A. C. American title holder in the 110-meter hurdles. Al Moreau of L. S. U. and Gus Meier of San Francisco took the other places. The time was 14.6 seconds, two-tenths second slower than the accepted world record.

JONESVILLE MEETS OLLA JONESVILLE, July 1.—(Special)—Dr. R. H. Enzor's Jonesville Lions, after their 4th Thursday with the Winsboro Cotton Pickers, will engage in a contest at Jonesville Sunday afternoon with the Olla team. Oscar Wurster, dependable right-hander, will hurl for the Lions. Olla is said to have a 9st club and a close game is anticipated.

ALL-STARS PLAY JACKSON FERRIDAY, July 1.—(Special)—The local All-Stars, colored baseball club, will play a game here Sunday afternoon with the Jackson, Miss. negro baseball club at the Fairground diamond.

BERLINGER WINS DECATHLON TITLE

Pennsylvania Star Piles Up 7,597 Points in A. A. U. Meet

SOLDIER FIELD, CHICAGO, July 1.—(P)—Barney Berlinger, University of Pennsylvania's star, today returned to big time competition after an absence of more than a year, to win the decathlon championship of America, with a total of 7,597.19 points, in the National A. A. U., track and field title meet.

Berlinger, now competing for the Penn A. C. of Philadelphia, had withdrawn from action following participation in the American athletic invasion of South Africa, in 1931.

Richard Baldry, representing the Texas Neighborhood A. A., was second with 7,491.4 points; Ray Patterson of Iowa Wesleyan college, had 7,370.35; and Joe Hall, the Tampa, Fla., husky, who held second place most of the day, wound up in fourth position with 7,325.03 points.

In spite of the fact that he almost walked through the 1,500 meters run of the event, Berlinger won over Baldry by a little more than 100 points. After he had pole vaulted 4.07 meters, the approximate equivalent of 13 feet, 4 inches, to add 1,064.39 points, the big Penn boy refused to extend himself in the 1,500 meters, finishing in 7:03.1, too slow to win points.

He had the best time in three events, the 100 meters, shot put and discus, and shared high honors in the pole vault and high jump. He was second in the broad jump and 110 meter hurdles, landed third in the javelin, and was sixth in the 400 meters run.

His accomplishments were: 100 meters run, 11.2 seconds for 857.2 points; broad jump, 6.7 meters (21 feet, 11 3/4 inches), for 799.2 points; shot put, 13.63 meters (44 feet, 8 3/4 inches), for 829 points; high jump, 1.85 meters (6 feet, 3 1/4 inches), for 889 points; and 110 meter hurdles, 16.3 seconds for 876.5, all done in the morning half of the test.

In the afternoon he scored: 400 meters run, 55 seconds for 744.32 points; discus, 39.5 meters (129 feet, 6 inches), for 783.02 points; pole vault, 4.07 meters (13 feet, 4 inches), for 1,064.39 points and 521 meters (170 feet, 7 3/8 inches), and 755.25 in the javelin. The 1,500 meters was a mere formality.

He was tied with Baldry in the pole vault, and shared honors in the high jump with Max Conrad, Jr., of Winona, Minn.

A field of 11 started, but three dropped out before the day was over. Wilson Charles, young Oneida Indian from Haskell institute, a member of the 1932 Olympic decathlon team and a favorite today, suffered a ruptured blood vessel in his left leg and withdrew. Carl Parker of Lake Bluff, Ill., and Ernest Grimm of Detroit, dropped out during the last two events.

THE PRICE OF FAME Schoolboy Rowe, the phenomenal young hurler of the Detroit club, already is paying the price of fame.

Rowe's athletic tutor, through high school was Bill Walton, at El Dorado, Rowe had great natural ability in every branch of athletics, but he learned about everything he knew through Walton. Naturally, the Schoolboy thought a lot of his mentor, who has won quite a reputation for building championship teams.

The other day, Rowe received a wire signed by Bill Walton and asking that $20 be forwarded to him. Of course Schoolboy sent the $20 by return wire.

New the police of Kilgore, Tex., are looking for the guy that fleeced the Schoolboy. Walton hadn't been in Kilgore, he hadn't asked for the twenty and he didn't receive the money.

MORE ABOUT WRESTLING Barney Oakland, the well known local mat official, continues his discourse on wrestling today. Barney, you will remember, broke into print last Sunday with an explanation of the fair means and foul of the mat game, Barney writes:

"It's awfully hot and work of any kind becomes an unbearable burden. I suppose you are afflicted the same way. If the enclosed dope will help to lighten your labor or save you the bother of thinking too hard, go ahead and use it."

Of course, Barney, some of the wolves will contend that it doesn't take much thinking to get up this stuff. But there is a small amount of work attached to it and we thought you ought to know about it.

"A few years ago Big Munn surprised a crowd of wrestling fans by picking Strangler Lewis off his feet and pitching him head first out of the ring."

"Strangler was very much grieved over this treatment and let out a roar of protest. However, he failed to get back into the ring in time to beat the short count then in vogue."

"The wrestling rules did not cover the point. Therefore the referee's decision as to the fair fall was accepted. Big Munn claimed the heavyweight belt over Lewis' protest, was acclaimed champion in some states and denied the title in others."

"As a result, the out-of-the-ring count was changed to ten slow or twenty ordinary counts, the idea being that a wrestler not too badly injured by a fall could, within fifteen seconds, gather himself up and re-enter the ring ready to absorb further punishment."

"It has since become the practice for wrestlers to make frequent short excursions outside the ropes, for rest and comfort."

"Tackling in the ropes—as sometimes happens, a wrestler will remain in his corner awaiting his opponent's rush. Should the opponent attempt to tackle, the usual procedure is to hang on the ropes, lift both feet off the mat and kick the advancing tackler on the jaw or some other protruding point. This, according to the rules, is O. K. as a man hanging in the ropes may use his feet or knees in defense."

Rope burning on the other hand is not permissible. This form of torture is effected by means of including the rope with a body hold, sliding the victims along the twist of the top rope, the effect being somewhat similar to applying a cross-cut saw to an opponent's back."

"Off the mat—Knees or better is a term used in designating a wrestler being on or off the mat. If the lower half of a wrestler's legs are protruding over the edge of the mat, he is unable to bridge, that is, support his body on heels or back of head. Likewise if his shoulders are protruding, he is unable to protect himself by bridging."

"Both men are therefore called back to the center of the ring and start from a standing position. Formerly it was customary to start with the same hold and in the same position as when separated by the referee."

"Naturally, a wrestler being severely punished by some painful hold will make every effort to get off the mat or into the ropes, thus forcing the referee to release the punishing hold."

"Many wrestlers would rather be disqualified by a foul than lose a match on straight falls. There is always room for argument on a decision of this kind. On the other hand, a wrestler held in a punishing hold or severe hold will make desperate efforts to become the victim of an apparent strangle hold, thus having the referee release him."

"Rudy Dusek, well known to local fans, introduced the trick of locking his opponent on the back three times when he was in trouble. His opponent, thinking the referee had patted his back to designate that he had won the fall, would invariably release his hold and Rudy would do the rest."

"Japanese wrestlers are responsible for a number of holds introduced into modern wrestling. Ad Santel, well remembered by Monroe fans, is perhaps the best exponent of Japanese art among present day wrestlers."

FALLETTA IN DALLAS Tony Falletta, former Neville high school athlete, has turned his attention to fistic affairs in Dallas, Tex.

Tony left Monroe a couple of weeks ago and picked up a fight in Dallas last week. He won easily and says he's now on his way to bigger and better pickings in the southwest. Apparently Tony is registering from New Orleans. Here's what the Dallas News says about his first appearance:

"In the scheduled six-round semi-final, Tony Falletta, New Orleans light-heavy, stowed Oscar Bell, Fort Worth, away in less than a minute and a half of the first round."

SPORTS MATTER

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

"What," we have been asked many times since Thursday night, "did you think of the big fight?"

And our reply is just this—the boys did just what they were supposed to do.

Some eight or ten months ago, Collyer's Eye, a racing publication, called the turn. They told of the "build-up" on Camera, how he would be brought along until summer, when he would win the championship from Jack Sharkey in just such a putrid affair as apparently took place last Thursday night. They outlined the whole campaign just as it happened.

Accounts of the sixth round vary. Some of the "experts" thought Sharkey was really knocked out, while others merely sniffed. We prefer Westbrook Pegler, who always speaks what he thinks without looking back. Pegler, who picked Carnera to win, wrote as follows concerning that round:

"Sharkey ducked to his left and was making for the open ring when Primo rushed at him, caught him with a short left to the face, followed by a short right as Sharkey crouched. Sharkey tried to regain his balance but was still shaking from the tussling and the best he could do for himself was a short and not very important right to the face. Sharkey slipped to the floor during the melee but hopped up before Donovan could score a count on him and rushed at Primo with his head down. He missed a right swing to the head but swung again and landed square on Primo's chin in a neutral corner as Carnera extended his neck, trying to stretch away from it. Sharkey threw another of these swings, missed and floundered into a clinch at Primo's waist as the big man stood there trying to remember what the book said about situations like this."

"Primo wrestled him loose and tagged him with a short right as Sharkey stopped near the ropes. The finish was as simple as that. Sharkey flopped and outwitted the numerals being tolled in his ear as certain patrons without charity, tact or any regard for the harm they might do to the enchaining sport of prize fighting, turned to one another with thumb and forefinger clamped to the nose in an expressive gesture."

You can use your own judgment.

THE PRICE OF FAME Schoolboy Rowe, the phenomenal young hurler of the Detroit club, already is paying the price of fame.

Rowe's athletic tutor, through high school was Bill Walton, at El Dorado, Rowe had great natural ability in every branch of athletics, but he learned about everything he knew through Walton. JOE BILGERE IS BATTLING LEADER

DALLAS, Texas, July 1.—(AP)—Leaders for the first half in the Dixie league were paced by Bilgere of Henderson who walloped the ball at a lively 412 clip.

Brown of Longview finished second with a husky 401 average. Casimiro of Tyler was third with 391.

Other first half leaders were: Russ Ballou of Waco, 43; Hilt Bates of Shreveport, 102; Triples: Gilbert of Baton Rouge, 12; Home runs: Davis of Waco, 13; Runs batted in: Bates of Shreveport, 65.

Stolen bases: Gilbert of Baton Rouge, 32.

TODAY'S SPORT PARADE

By Henry McLenore (United Press Staff Correspondent) NEW YORK, July 1.—The only St. George Maxie Baer ever heard of is the hotel in Brooklyn, but the California pig-sticker is ready to go out and lambast himself a dragon just as did the mythical Englishman in the days when knighthood was in flower.

The dragon he craves to get hold of is Primo Carnera, the new heavyweight champion of the world. We caught Baer in his hotel suite today just as he returned from luncheon with a blonde baby doll.

"We'll have to talk fast," he said, "for I've got a date with the sweetest thing you ever laid eyes on in half an hour, and it's going to take me half that time to pick out the right suit and tie."

Okay, what did he think of Carnera? "Right down my alley, right down my alley. I never saw a better target than that jaw of his. It just sticks out there waiting to be slammed. And when he gets in there with me he's got a surprise coming, for he's going to find me the first man he ever met stronger than he is. The first time he tries that business of pushing me he's leaving me worked on Sharkey. I'm going to grab him around the middle and slam him up against one of the ring posts. And don't think I can do it. He's tough but I'm tougher."

HAMER LEADS IN SOUTHERN LOOP GIANTS TROUCE CARDINALS, 11-1

Former Cotton States Outfielder Hits Ball at .388 Clip

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 1.—(AP)—With 38 players in the Southern association batting better than .300 this year, Peck Hamel, centerfielder for the Chicago, is still setting the pace for individual hitters with an average of .388.

Eight players in the league have averages above .350. The Chicago is still leading the league in hitting, the team batting .308. Nashville is second with a batting average of .300, on the basis of official statistics including Thursday's games.

Knoxville is leading the league in fielding with .970 while Memphis and New Orleans are tied for second honors only a point behind with .969. Allington of Knoxville is batting .382 for second place but has been in only 45 games while Hamel has been in 81. Outfielder of New Orleans, who has been in 68 games, is batting .375, while big Joe Hutcheson, another Chicago outfielder, is hitting .361.

Hutcheson is still the league's home run king with 17 circuit swats and also is leading in runs batted in with 70. Prather, Nashville first sacker, is only one home run behind with 16. Rose of New Orleans has 65 runs batted in to his credit for second honors.

Tinsy Chaplin, Nashville right-hander, still heads the pitchers with 14 victories and four defeats for an average of .778. Alex McColl, also a right-hander, of Chattanooga, has nine victories and three defeats for an average of .750. Harry Kelly, Chick right-hander, has 14 victories and five losses for an average of .737 and is pushing the leaders.

French of Knoxville is leading the league in stolen bases with 14. Gill of Chattanooga has the league lead in triples with ten.

NEXT TITLE BOUT MAY GO TO ROME

Schmeling and Carnera May Get Together in Italian Setting

NEW YORK, July 1.—(AP)—Plans were brewing today to hold the next world heavyweight championship bout in Rome, ancient cradle of gladiatorial combat.

Managers of Primo Carnera and Max Schmeling, former titleholder, will confer on the possibilities of a title match in Rome's huge new arena in September.

Louis Sorel, Carnera's pilot, favors such a bout. He believes the stadium's 130,000 seats would be filled, because of the enthusiasm in the home land for Italy's first heavyweight champion.

In view of the small attendance at Thursday night's Carnera-Jack Sharkey fight, Sorel figures the Schmeling bout in Rome would draw better than any match in the United States, excepting one with Maxie Baer, Schmeling's recent conqueror.

Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, favors the fight in Italy, because it would give the German a chance to regain the title. Schmeling is vacationing in the Bavarian Alps, near Munich, Germany, conditioning him self.

However, Madison Square Garden must be reckoned with before such a match can be made. The garden has a contract for the Italian giant's next fight. Sorel said last night he would ask the garden either to promote or permit the bout in Rome.

The answer will be delayed because William F. Carey announced yesterday he would resign the garden's presidency next week.

He said Col. John Kilpatrick, former all-America end at Yale, would succeed him. Carey desires more time for his business activities.

Despite rumors that Jack Dempsey might succeed James J. Johnston as vice president in charge of boxing under the garden's new regime, it is unlikely because Johnston's contract has another year to run.

LOCAL JOBBERS WIN SALES CUP

Monroe Hardware Company Makes Fine Record for Westinghouse

The Monroe Hardware company, wholesale department, has been awarded the Southwell trophy for leading the southeastern district in percentage of sales of Westinghouse electric refrigerators, it was announced yesterday by George H. Wygant, manager of the electrical and refrigeration department. Mr. Wygant was awarded the trophy at a sales meeting in Atlanta last week.

The Southeastern district includes the states of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. Birmingham was second in the contest, which began Jan. 1 and ended on June 10.

Mr. Wygant, under whose direction the local firm made its enviable record, has had 20 years experience in the electrical and refrigeration business. He formerly was general sales manager for the Westinghouse jobber in New Orleans and has been with the Monroe Hardware company for two years.

Not only did the Monroe Hardware company lead the southeastern district, one of the six Westinghouse districts in the nation, but the local concern was ninth throughout the entire United States in percentage of sales.

Mr. Wygant attributes the wonderful record to the hundreds of satisfied users of Westinghouse refrigerators throughout its entire territory. There are many Westinghouse dealers in this section. The Louisiana Power and Light company and the Mississippi Power and Light company recently became Westinghouse dealers.

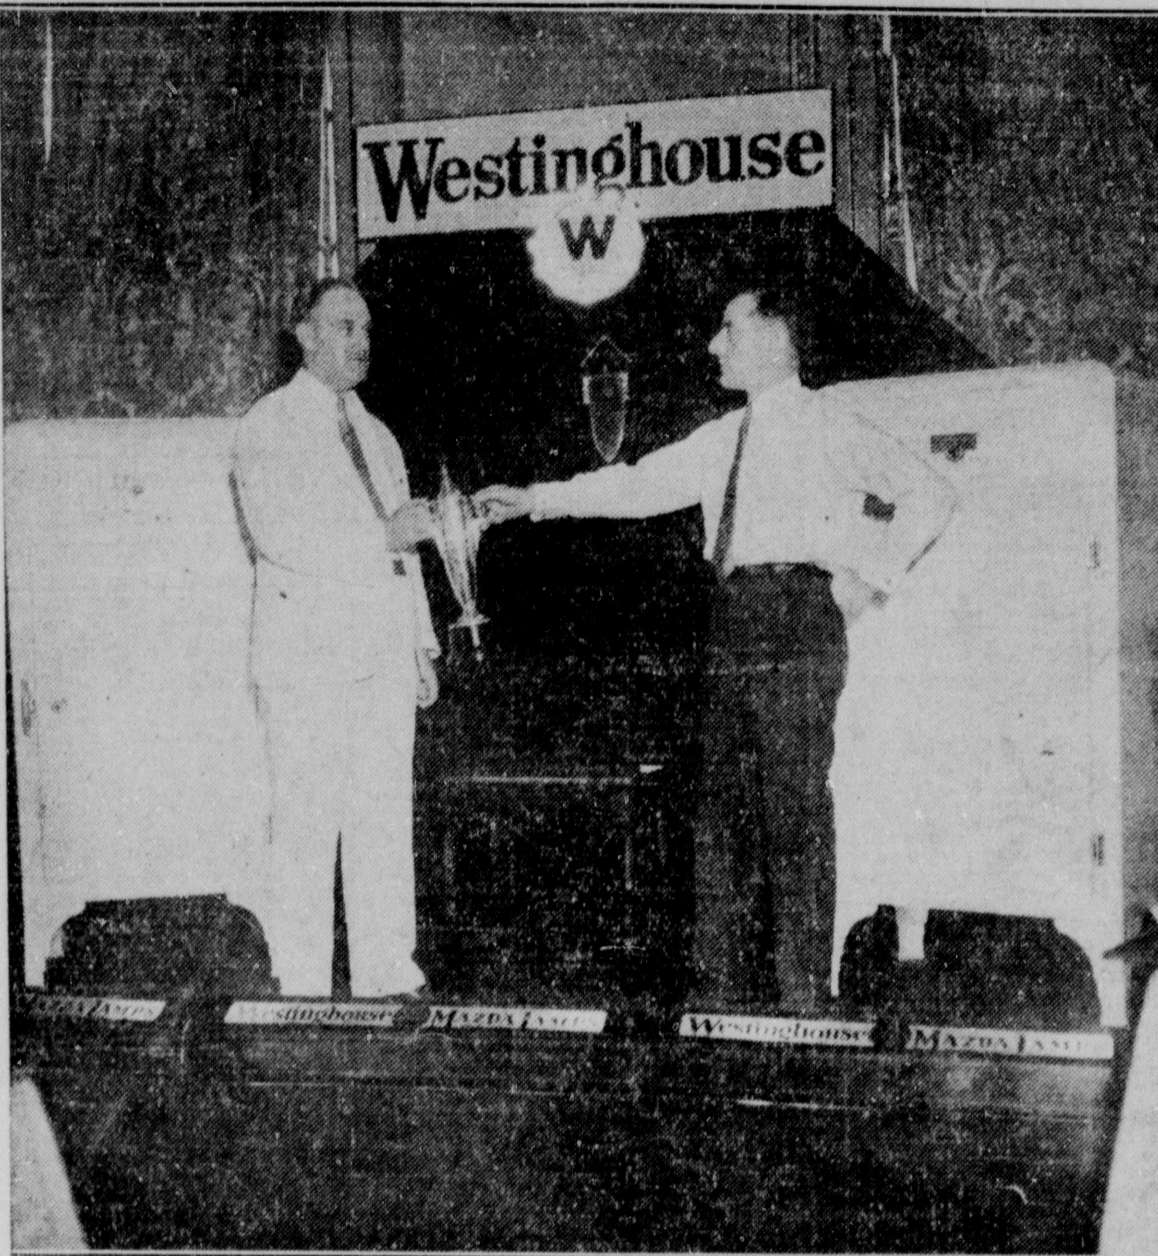

Westinghouse refrigerators have many superior features. During the 12 years of research preceding the announcement of the Westinghouse refrigerator, Westinghouse engineers made sure the product they built would be fundamentally right in principle and performance. Westinghouse has been phenomenally improved because Westinghouse engineers have found new ways to give more beauty and convenience, more food storage and ice-making capacity, greater quality and greater economy at more attractive prices and values than ever before.

The Westinghouse mechanism is hermetically sealed in a welded armor of steel. Leading refrigeration engineers have said that no refrigerator mechanism is truly modern unless it is hermetically sealed.

A Westinghouse salesman will be glad to demonstrate these features and many others.

The city council has reduced the refrigeration rate for electricity from 6 to 3 cents a kilowatt. At this new low rate the operation of Westinghouse refrigerators will cost the consumer less than half the cost of ice.

WYGANT RECEIVES WESTINGHOUSE SALES TROPHY

George H. Wygant, left, manager of the electrical and refrigeration department of the Monroe Hardware Co., wholesale, is shown receiving the Westinghouse sales trophy from W. L. Southwell, southeastern merchandise manager for Westinghouse, at a sales meeting in Atlanta last week. The trophy was awarded the Monroe Hardware company for leading the sixth district in percentage of sales of Westinghouse electric refrigerators. Birmingham was second in the contest, which embraced seven states. Mr. Wygant, formerly general sales manager for the Westinghouse jobber in New Orleans, has been with the local firm for the past two years.

Bright Spots In Business

(By United Press)

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 1.—(U.P.)—June power output of the Toledo Edison company was reported today at 36,100,000 kilowatt hours, the highest of any month since January, 1932, and comparing with 34,600,000 hours in May and 30,400,000 hours in June, 1932.

NEW YORK.—Wage increases ranging from 10 to 25 per cent were announced today by the Hotels New York and Lexington.

DETROIT.—Hupp Motor Car corporation today reported deliveries by dealers during June were the largest in 12 months.

NEW YORK.—Basic industries in the country are advancing into new high activity in the sharpest upswing in ten years. Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., said today in the weekly trade review.

DETROIT.—Chrysler corporation has added 18,412 workers to the payroll in the last 90 days, bringing the total to 42,368, officials announced today.

CHEVROLET TRUCK LINE IS COMPLETE

New Models at Lee-Rogers Co. Offer Economy in Operation

Chevrolet trucks, sold in Monroe by the Lee-Rogers Chevrolet company, 221-223 Walnut street, have maintained the same high reputation that characterizes the new and luxurious Chevrolet passenger car.

Merchants will do well to pick their trucks from the low-priced line of Chevrolet trucks, the most economical that can be bought. For the big majority of today's truck owners, there's no longer any question of what truck to buy. They are making their selection from Chevrolet's line—the lowest priced six-cylinder trucks on the market. And it isn't just low price that makes them choose Chevrolet.

These trucks, available in three wheelbase lengths, and a big variety of body types to fit practically every hauling need, cost less for gas, oil, upkeep and repairs than any other similar truck on the market.

There's the speedy half-ton pick-up, which is helping many businesses improve service and cut hauling costs; the handsome half-ton panel, which handles so easily and costs so little to operate; the smart sedan delivery, the large-capacity truck that combines speed, smartness and economy; and the economical stake truck, a rugged model that has broken records for low operating and upkeep costs.

Each of these trucks will give many years of service at a cost that is astoundingly low. Not only is the first cost within the reach of every truck owner but the operation expense is small. Powered by the Chevrolet motor, this line of trucks will help reduce fuel costs of any fleet owner.

The Chevrolet line is complete and embraces a style for almost every purpose. The Lee-Rogers company will be glad to demonstrate how easy it is to reduce delivery costs with Chevrolet trucks.

RACKETEERS IN INSURANCE GAME

Fraudulent Claims Attacked by National Underwriters Bureau

Fraudulent claims of one sort or another have existed almost since the first insurance policy was written. There are dishonest as well as honorable policyholders and there are also many "professional claimants" who bring liability claims against those whom they know or assume carry appropriate insurance.

In a recent interview with W. D. H. Rodriguez of the Cobb-Rodriguez Insurance Agency this subject was discussed and he explained how the stock casualty insurance companies are fighting these nefarious practices. Of course, each company does all that it can to cope with the situation by carefully investigating the merits of each claim which it is asked to pay. The National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, an organization supported by the twenty-eight leading stock casualty companies is in a position to attack the problem in a still broader way and it is doing so. The claim division, under the capable direction of Major Cavanaugh, has for years been tracking down insurance crooks and their allies, unethical doctors and lawyers.

The most recent development of this important work is the establishment of Claim Index Bureaus. A central bureau has just started in New York to tabulate and analyze claims, both legitimate and fraudulent. It is anticipated that this one bureau alone will handle a million claim records annually. Duplication of claims for the same alleged injury and the frequency with which the names of certain doctors and lawyers of dubious

Similar index bureaus have operated successfully in various parts of the country, those located at Boston, Cleveland, Chicago, San Francisco, St. Louis and Dallas having given special evidence of their worth in combating this widespread racket. Additional index bureaus are planned for Atlanta and Indianapolis.

Mr. Rodriguez stated that already several "gangs" have been broken up, many of the principals now serving time in various penitentiaries. But the evil is so widespread that it will take tremendous efforts to curb it effectively.

Every honest policy-holder has a direct interest in minimizing fraudulent claims and, in the event that he learns of any such racket, whether attempted by "professional" or "amateurs" he should lose no time in reporting it.

WASHINGTON.—Automobile production in the United States and Canada during May totaled 227,567 units, against 188,922 in April and 192,516 in May, 1932, the department of commerce reported today.

ATTRACTIVE LOBBY OF ALVIS HOTEL

Above is a photograph of the entrance to the cool and comfortable lobby of the Alvis hotel. Manager E. Gibson announced yesterday that the Alvis is presenting a new orchestra this summer. Freddie Morgan and his orchestra are now located at the hotel, giving concerts every evening from 7 to 8 o'clock. The members of the band have just finished the season on R. K. O. vaudeville circuit, coming to Monroe direct from the Sunnyside theater, in Albuquerque, New Mexico. The outstanding features of this band are Charles Fontana, violinist, and Jimmie Welch, whose special orchestral arrangements make this small orchestra as effective as the larger ones. They will locate here for the summer and book engagements from the Alvis. Anyone seeking their services will find no more popular group than they represent and their offerings second to none.

MODERN GROCERY AT 4TH & STUBBS

Sur-Wa No. 5 Has Complete Stock for North Side Residents

A modern grocery store, carrying a complete and high grade stock of merchandise as may be found anywhere in the city, yet convenient for north side housewives—that is the Sur-Wa store No. 5, located at Fourth and Stubbs, the north side shopping center. Buddy Burford is manager of the Sur-Wa store No. 5.

A complete stock of fresh vegetables, so much in demand now that the hot days are here again, are always available at this modern store. The Sur-Wa stock is frequently replenished, this assuring fresh merchandise at all times.

All kinds of staple and fancy groceries, bottled drinks and other articles always found in an up-to-date grocery store, plus a modern, sanitary meat market, where only the best quality of meats are sold, make the Sur-Wa store No. 5 an ideal place in which to trade.

Housewives of the north side have found it convenient to buy their groceries and meats at Sur-Wa. There is always plenty of parking space. In fact, the Sur-Wa store recently bought a large lot adjoining its building and has converted it into additional parking space.

Mr. Burford, as manager of Sur-Wa store No. 5, is cooperating with four other progressive merchants in a campaign to popularize Fourth and Stubbs as a community shopping center. These merchants all carry quality merchandise and render high class service. The four other merchants are Sparco Service station, Clyde Hatten, manager; Well Cleaners, owned by D. B. Well; North Side Barber shop, whose owner is J. B. Glass, and North Side Pharmacy, Mitchell Denoux, manager.

Another article concerning a Fourth and Stubbs merchants will appear on this page next Sunday.

LOCAL JOBBERS WIN SALES CUP

Monroe Hardware Company Makes Fine Record for Westinghouse

The Monroe Hardware company, wholesale department, has been awarded the Southwell trophy for leading the southeastern district in percentage of sales of Westinghouse electric refrigerators, it was announced yesterday by George H. Wygant, manager of the electrical and refrigeration department. Mr. Wygant was awarded the trophy at a sales meeting in Atlanta last week.

The Southeastern district includes the states of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. Birmingham was second in the contest, which began Jan. 1 and ended on June 10.

Mr. Wygant, under whose direction the local firm made its enviable record, has had 20 years experience in the electrical and refrigeration business. He formerly was general sales manager for the Westinghouse jobber in New Orleans and has been with the Monroe Hardware company for two years.

Not only did the Monroe Hardware company lead the southeastern district, one of the six Westinghouse districts in the nation, but the local concern was ninth throughout the entire United States in percentage of sales. Mr. Wygant attributes the wonderful record to the hundreds of satisfied users of Westinghouse refrigerators throughout his entire territory. There are many Westinghouse dealers in this section. The Louisiana Power and Light company and the Mississippi Power and Light company recently became Westinghouse dealers.

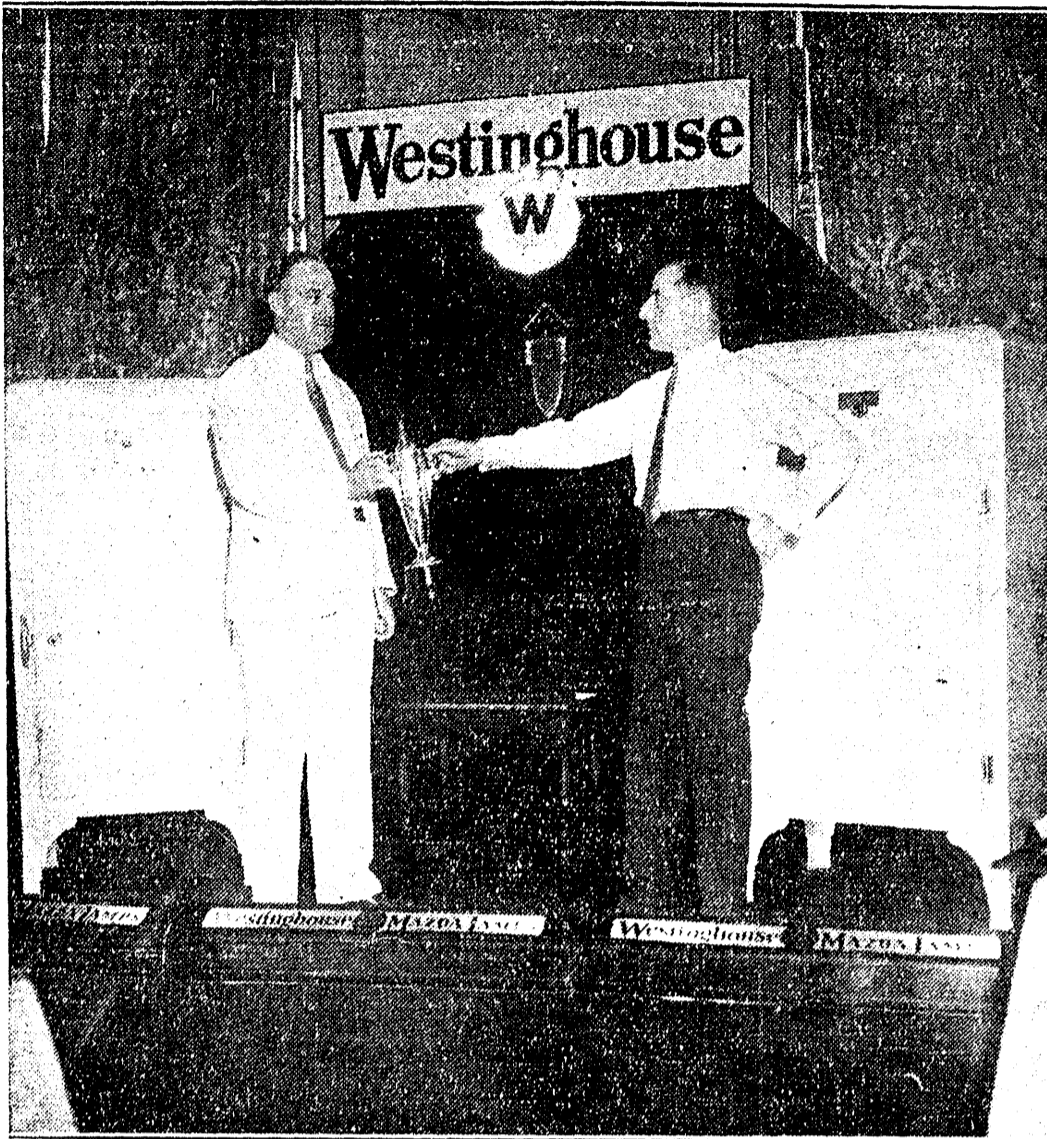

Westinghouse refrigerators have many superior features. During the 12 years of research preceding the announcement of the Westinghouse refrigerator, Westinghouse engineers made sure the product they built would be fundamentally right in principle and performance. Westinghouse has been phenomenally improved because Westinghouse engineers have found new ways to give more beauty and convenience, more food storage and ice-making capacity, greater quality and greater economy at more attractive prices and values than ever before.

The Westinghouse mechanism is hermetically sealed in a welded armor of steel. Leading refrigeration engineers have said that no refrigerator mechanism is truly modern unless it is hermetically sealed.

A Westinghouse salesman will be glad to demonstrate these features and many others.

The city council has reduced the refrigeration rate for electricity from 6 to 3 cents a kilowatt. At this new low rate the operation of Westinghouse refrigerators will cost the consumer less than half the cost of ice.

WYGANT RECEIVES WESTINGHOUSE SALES TROPHY

George H. Wygant, left, manager of the electrical and refrigeration department of the Monroe Hardware Co., wholesale, is shown receiving the Westinghouse sales trophy from W. L. Southwell, southeastern merchandise manager for Westinghouse, at a sales meeting in Atlanta last week. The trophy was awarded the Monroe Hardware company for leading the sixth district in percentage of sales of Westinghouse electric refrigerators. Birmingham was second in the contest, which embraced seven states. Mr. Wygant, formerly general sales manager for the Westinghouse jobber in New Orleans, has been with the local firm for the past two years.

Bright Spots In Business

(By United Press)

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 1.—(UP)—June power output of the Toledo Edison company was reported today at 30,100,000 kilowatt hours, the highest of any month since January, 1932, and comparing with 31,060,000 hours in May and 30,490,000 hours in June, 1932.

NEW YORK.—Wage increases ranging from 10 to 25 per cent were announced today by the Hotels New York and Lexington.

DETROIT.—Hupp Motor Car corporation today reported deliveries by dealers during June were the largest in 12 months.

NEW YORK.—Basic industries in the country are advancing into new high activity in the sharpest upswing in ten years, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., said today in the weekly trade review.

DETROIT.—Chrysler corporation has added 18,412 workers to the payroll in the last 90 days, bringing the total to 42,368, officials announced today.

PHILADELPHIA.—The Bell Telephone company of Pennsylvania, has appropriated $3,988,366 for replacements in the company's plant and service equipment throughout the state, it was announced today.

CHEVROLET TRUCK LINE IS COMPLETE

New Models at Lee-Rogers Co. Offer Economy in Operation

Chevrolet trucks, sold in Monroe by the Lee-Rogers Chevrolet company, 221-223 Walnut street, have maintained the same high reputation that characterizes the new and luxurious Chevrolet passenger car.

Merchants will do well to pick their trucks from the low-priced line of Chevrolet trucks, the most economical that can be bought. For the big majority of today's truck owners, there is no longer any question of what truck to buy. They are making their selection from Chevrolet's line—the lowest priced six-cylinder trucks on the market. And it isn't just low price that makes them choose Chevrolet.

These trucks, available in three wheelbase lengths, and a big variety of body types to fit practically every hauling need, cost less for gas, oil, upkeep and repairs than any other similar truck on the market.

There's the speedy half-ton pickup, which is helping many businesses improve service and cut hauling costs; the handsome half-ton panel, which handles so easily and costs so little to operate; the smart sedan delivery, the large-capacity truck that combines speed, smartness and economy; and the economical stake truck, a rugged model that has broken records for low operating and upkeep costs.

Each of these trucks will give many years of service at a cost that is astoundingly low. Not only is the first cost within the reach of every truck owner but the operation expense is small. Powered by the Chevrolet motor, this line of trucks will help reduce fuel costs of any fleet owner.

The Chevrolet line is complete and embraces "22" for almost every purpose. The Lee-Rogers company will be glad to demonstrate how easy it is to reduce delivery costs with Chevrolet trucks.

RACKETEERS IN INSURANCE GAME

Fraudulent Claims Attacked by National Underwriters Bureau

Fraudulent claims of one sort or another have existed almost since the first insurance policy was written. There are dishonest as well as honorable policyholders and there are also many "professional claimants" who bring liability claims against those whom they know or assume carry appropriate insurance.

In a recent interview with W. D. H. Rodriguez of the Cobb-Rodriguez Insurance Agency this subject was discussed and he explained how the stock casualty insurance companies are fighting these nefarious practices. Of course, each company does all that it can to cope with the situation by carefully investigating the merits of each claim which it is asked to pay. The National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, an organization supported by the twenty-eight leading stock casualty companies is in a position to attack the problem in a still broader way and it is doing so. The claim division, under the capable direction of Major Cavanaugh, has for years been tracking down insurance crooks and their allies, unethical doctors and lawyers.

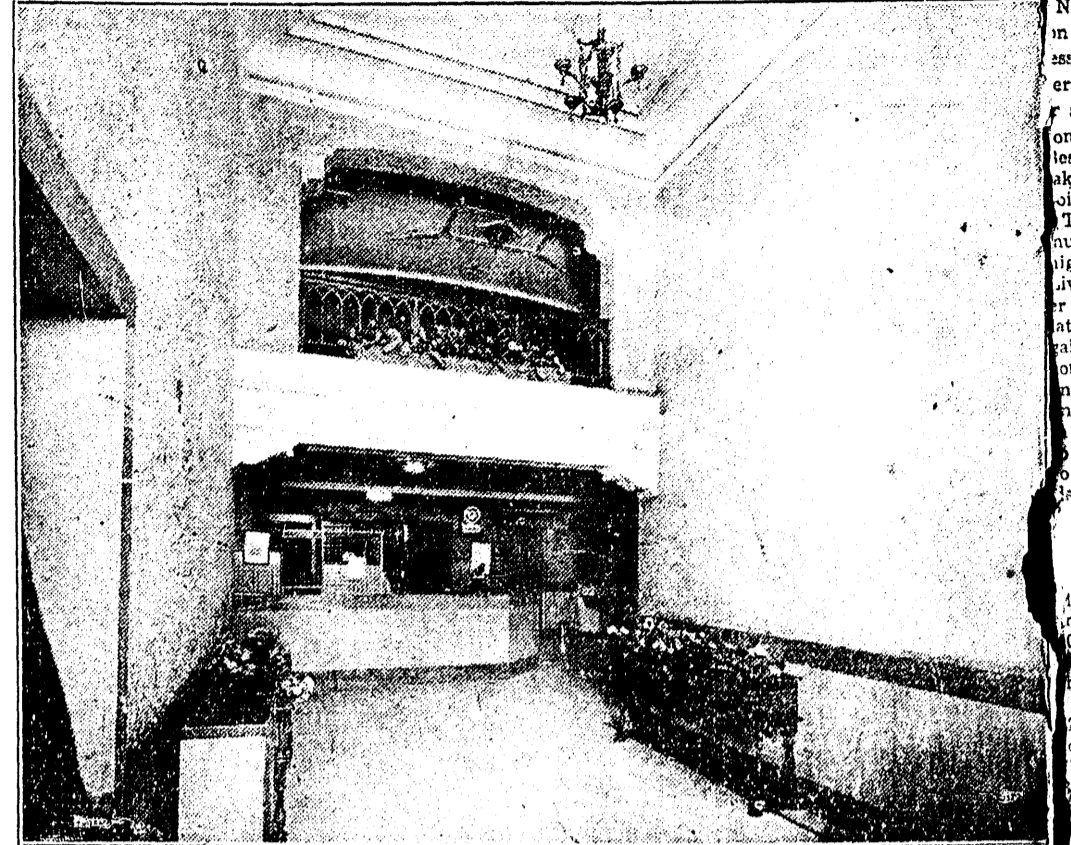

The most recent development of this important work is the establishment of Claim Index Bureaus. A central bureau has just been started in New York to tabulate and analyze claims, both legitimate and fraudulent. It is anticipated that this one bureau alone will handle a million claim records annually. Duplication of claims for the same alleged injury and the frequency with which the names of certain doctors and lawyers of dubious reputation appear in the records. Similar index bureaus have operated successfully in various parts of the country, those located at Boston, Cleveland, Chicago, San Francisco, St. Louis and Dallas having given special evidence of their worth in combating this widespread racket.

Additional index bureaus are planned for Atlanta and Indianapolis. Mr. Rodriguez stated that already several "gangs" have been broken up, many of the principals now serving time in various penitentiaries. But the evil is so widespread that it will take tremendous efforts to curb it effectively.

Every honest policyholder has a direct interest in minimizing fraudulent claims and, in the event that he learns of any such racket, whether attempted by "professionals" or "amateurs," he should lose no time in reporting it.

WASHINGTON.—Automobile production in the United States and Canada during May totaled 227,567 units, against 188,922 in April and 192,516 in May, 1932, the department of commerce reported today.

ATTRACTIVE LOBBY OF ALVIS HOTEL

Above is a photograph of the entrance to the cool and comfortable lobby of the Alvis hotel. Manager E. Gibson announced yesterday that the Alvis is presenting a new orchestra this summer. Freddie Morgan and orchestra are now located at the hotel, giving concerts every evening from 7 to 8 o'clock. The members of the band have just finished the season on R. K. O. vaudeville circuit, coming to Monroe direct from the Sunshin theater, in Albuquerque, New Mexico. The outstanding features of this band are Charles Fontana, violinist, and Jimmie Welch, whose special orchestral arrangements make this small orchestra as effective as the larger one. They will locate here for the summer and book engagements from the Alvis. Anyone seeking their services will find no more popular group than they represent and their offerings second to none.

MODERN GROCERY AT 4TH & STUBBS

Sur-Wa No. 5 Has Complete Stock for North Side Residents

A modern grocery store, carrying a complete and high grade stock of merchandise as may be found anywhere in the city, yet convenient for north side housewives—that is the Sur-Wa store No. 5, located at Fourth and Stubbs, the north side shopping center. Buddy Burford is manager of the Sur-Wa store No. 5.

A complete stock of fresh vegetables, so much in demand now that the hot days are here again, are always available at this modern store. The Sur-Wa store is frequently replenished, thus assuring fresh merchandise at all times.

All kinds of staple and fancy groceries, bottled drinks and other articles always found in an up-to-date grocery store, plus a modern, sanitary meat market, where only the best quality of meats are sold, make the Sur-Wa store No. 5 an ideal place in which to trade.

Housewives of the north side have found it convenient to buy their groceries and meats at Sur-Wa. There is always plenty of parking space. In fact, the Sur-Wa store recently bought a large lot adjoining its building and has converted it into additional parking space.

Mr. Burford, as manager of Sur-Wa store No. 5, is cooperating with four other progressive merchants in a campaign to popularize Fourth and Stubbs as a community shopping center. These merchants all carry quality merchandise and render high class service. The four other merchants are Sparrow Service station, Clyde Hatten, manager; Weil Cigars, owned by D. B. Weil; North Side Barber shop, whose owner is J. B. Glass; and North Side Pharmacy, Mitchell Denoux, manager.

Another article concerning a Fourth and Stubbs merchants will appear this page next Sunday.

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, July 1.—(P)—Cotton was quite active in today's session and prices moved upward on very favorable Liverpool cables, higher sterling firm stocks and grain and continued dry weather in the belt. Last levels were shaded by profit-taking but the close was 15 to 18 points higher.

The opening was firm owing to much better Liverpool cables and higher sterling. Private cables said Liverpool improved on bullish weather news from the south and speculative buying. First trades showed gains of 9 to 13 points and the market continued to improve after the start in shorts covering advances in stocks and grains and continued dry weather in the western belt. October advanced 10.46 and December to 10.62 or 24 to 25 points above the close of yesterday.

Later the market fluctuated narrowly on pre-holiday liquidation selling, on the possibility of the tropical storm bringing needed rains and realizing. After easing off 9 to 10 points from the highs, October closed at 10.37 and December at 10.52, or 15 points up net for the day on both these active months.

Port receipts 7,225, for season 8,631-20, last season 9,959,788, exports 15,172, for season 7,731,319, last season 8,221-77. Port stock 3,424,065, last year 3,321,471. Combined shipboard stock New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 162,812, last year 78,600. Spot sales southern markets 13,662, last year 13,366.

Cotton futures closed steady at net advances of 15 to 18 points.

NEW ORLEANS, July 1.—(P)—Spot cotton closed steady 17 points up, 2.26; mid-middling 9.70; middling 10.20; good middling 10.60.

New York

NEW YORK, July 1.—(P)—Early advance of about $1 a bale in cotton today was followed by partial reactions under week-end realizing.

October contracts which had rallied to 10.50 sold off to 10.40 and closed at that figure with the general market feeling barely steady at a net advance of 11 to 15 points.

Initial prices were 14 to 19 points higher on foreign and domestic trade buying as well as local. Wall Street and commission house demand reflecting a favorable view of overnight currency situation.

Complaints of poor crop conditions in parts of west Texas came in for more attention, as did the week-end trade reports which revealed that general business improvement was still gaining momentum.

Prices soon advanced to net gains of 21 to 23 points with July selling up from 10.15 to 10.20 and December from 10.61 to 10.66. Increased realizing was attracted at the higher levels, however, and prices reacted 6 to 11 points from the best toward the close of the market.

Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the close of the week according to the "Financial Chronicle" amounted to 171,118 bales against 87,462 last year and 57,379 two years ago.

Reports from the eastern belt revealed a better demand for spot cotton with mills showing more inclination to fix prices at a time when farmers were about sold out. Some of the speculative demand was attributed to a feeling that the declines of about $3.50 a bale from the recent highs had improved the technical position.

Cotton futures closed barely steady 11 to 15 higher.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank

(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, July 1.—(P)—Financial markets boomed today following inflationary fires today following administrative intimations that the dollar was still too high in terms of leading foreign exchanges. Stocks, with gains ranging from 1 to 3 more points over a wide front, closed strong in active trading. Transactions approximated 3,000,000 shares.

With the revival of speculative enthusiasm, grains leaped forward for gains of 1 to more than 3 cents a bushel, cotton got up more than $1 a bale, bar silver firm 5-8 of a cent an ounce to 36-3-8 cents, the British pound sterling and European gold currencies displayed a revival of strength and secondary bonds moved forward jubilantly. Stocks were turned over in large volume from the opening and the ticker tape was several minutes behind floor dealings throughout the session.

While all stock categories participated in the resumption of the upswing, Allied Chemical, with a gain of around 16 points, was the day's feature. The settlement of the chemical company's battle with the stock exchange was the principal factor in the rally of this issue. Central of New Jersey, although rather inactive, sported 17-1-2 points. Rail and common stocks were the mainstay of the market, with gains of 1 to 3 or more included American Can. U. S. Steel, American Smelting, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Erie, Baltimore and Ohio, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, New York Central, Case, Consolidated Gas, Kennecott, Owens-Illinois, Celanese and American Rolling Mills.

Not satisfied with its substantial accomplishments in the first half of 1933, the market began the second half of the year with a cheerfulness that smacked of previous boom times. Analysts of the recent advance pointed out that prices of a number of leading industrial stocks are now about midway between the high and low points of 1926. Utilities, due to rate-making uncertainties and other problems, have lagged somewhat and the rails, notwithstanding their apparent buoyancy of the moment, have considerable distance to go before attaining their averages of seven years ago.

Recent firmness of the gold mining shares has again revived rumors that the government is considering establishment in this country of a "free" gold market. While the authorities have previously denied any such intention, mining men are hoping that this view will be altered soon and that gold, instead of selling at the official rate of $20.67 a fine ounce, will be permitted to find its own level, which, in the "free" London market, is around $25.

THrift CONCERN TO MAIL CHECKS

Announcement was made yesterday by Dan M. White, president of the Industrial Finance and Thrift Corporation, using the White System of industrial banking, has offices in Jackson, Hattiesburg, Meridian and Gulfport, Miss., and Monroe, with stockholders throughout both states. It was further announced by directors of the company that the first six months of 1933 had been most profitable. The company was able to keep all of its capital busy and is closing the sixth month period with total losses to charge off of less than one-tenth of one per cent of the loans made.

The letter carrying these several hundred dividend checks expressed appreciation to all stockholders for their cooperation during these strenuous times.

P. S. C. APPROVES RATE REDUCTIONS

BATON ROUGE, La., July 1.—(P)—The Louisiana public service commission has approved a recommendation of its chairman, Harvey G. Fields, reducing state-wide special telephone charges for cradle type instruments, extra long cords, and moving telephones within the same building.

An order placing in effect the reductions which Chairman Fields estimated would save Louisiana telephone subscribers more than $450,000 a year will soon be issued, Commission Secretary P. A. Frye said.

An approved slash in the cradle-type phone charge to 25 cents from 30 cents will save users more than $37,000 annually, Fields has predicted.

Lower phone service rates in Metairie, New Orleans suburb, have also been approved by the public service commission.

The reductions do not affect the general state phone rate structure, which is to be studied at some future date in course of the commission's state-wide telephone inquiry which is now being held up. Secretary Frye said, because of shortage of necessary funds to press the investigation.

CHARITY LEAGUE TO STAGE SHOW

'Hello Prosperity' to Be Presented at Neville Auditorium

Headquarters of the Junior Charity league show, "Hello Prosperity," have been opened in the Frances hotel building, where the cast is being arranged and candidates for the honor of "Queen of Prosperity" are registering. Some Monroe girls will be selected as queen and crowned as such at the grand ball on the roof of the Frances immediately following the show which is to be staged at Neville high school Friday, July 5. The roof will be decorated for the occasion and elaborate ceremonies along lines of a real queen's coronation will be enacted.

All principals of the cast are professional. Paul English will be featured along with others who have well known reputations in the east in connection with big time musical shows. There will be 19 beautiful scenes and many gorgeously costumed girls in the production.

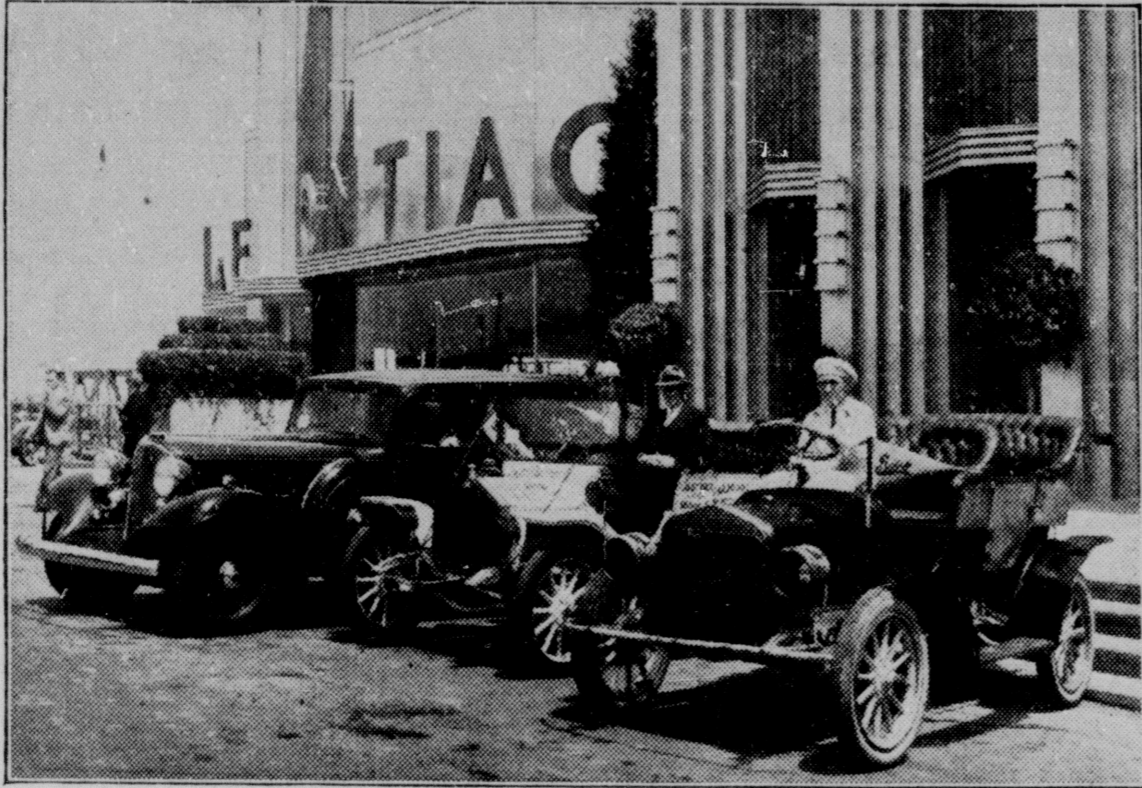

Roy Causey, who is in charge of publicity and the contest for selection of queen, has requested all who are interested in this affair to report to him at the newly opened headquarters. Those who have talent are requested to report to Bunny Biggs, who is at the same address in charge of arrangements for the cast.

An advance ticket sale will start Monday and everyone purchasing a ticket to the show is entitled to vote for the girl of his or her choice as "queen of prosperity."

Seeks to Collect After Man Is Shot to Death

Setting up that her husband was shot to death on October 14, Lucy G. T. Ricks had filed in district court Saturday a suit for $20,000 against the

Buick at A Century of Progress

When General Motors Corporation dedicated its building at A Century of Progress, Chicago, a feature of the ceremonies was a parade of cars made in the early history of the passenger car divisions. Buick was represented by two of the oldest automobiles displayed—one dated 1905 and the other 1909. The older veteran was driven by Henry Hopf, one of the oldest of Buick owners.

Penn Mutual Life Insurance company.

According to the suit, Ricks obtained a life insurance policy for $10,000 on August 19, 1926. This policy was said to have called for double indemnity, or the payment of $20,000 in case of death from other than natural causes.

After the death of Ricks, it was stated, the company was duly notified that he had died of gunshot wounds. Since that time, the petition alleged, the company has refused to pay the claim.

BANK INSURANCE TO START JAN. 1

Deposits to Be Protected
Under Glass-Steagall
Legislation

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—On next January 1, your deposits in any bank deemed sound enough to stay open for business will be insured against loss by bank closings.

This is provided by a section of the Glass-Steagall bank reform act, which though not a part of President Roosevelt's program, was enacted by the last congress.

The insurance, for the first six months, will be limited to $2,500 to each depositor. After July 1 of next year, deposits up to $10,000 will be fully insured and larger ones partially. After July 1, 1936, the insurance will cease to be in force for any banks not becoming national banks or entering the federal reserve system. Deposits in banks now closed or in hands of conservators, or which may be closed between now and next January, will not be insured.

The insurance fund will be handled by a federal deposit insurance corporation which will have a board of three, the comptroller of the currency and two citizens appointed by the president.

It will obtain original capital of $150,000,000 from the treasury, $175,000,000 from the reserves of federal reserve central banks; and a sum, yet unestimated, from banks whose deposits are insured, which will pay in one-half of one per cent of their total deposits.

In addition, the corporation will be authorized to borrow two dollars for each dollar of cash capital, giving it estimated total resources of more than $2,000,000,000 for the permanent fund.

If a bank fails, the corporation will form a new national bank and turn over to it sufficient cash to meet the insured deposits of the failed institution.

In this way the depositor will be able to obtain his money immediately, instead of waiting for months or years and then getting only a small percentage.

The insurance plan let in non-member state banks for two years so these would not be closed by runs to the insured institutions. The state banks, however, must be examined by the insurance corporation to qualify.

To make it effective as quickly as possible, the temporary insurance up to $2,500 was provided. The sale of insurance under the permanent plan, beginning next July 1, is 100 per cent up to $10,000; 75 per cent from $10,000 to $50,000; and 50 per cent above $50,000.

All deposits in one bank belonging to one person will be lumped together to prevent full collection on big sums.

WALLACE URGES COTTON ACTION

Secretary Asks That Producers Get Behind Reduction Program

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—Secretary Wallace today urged that cotton producers "get under the wire" next week in signing offers to reduce acreage under the cotton program which contemplates the distribution of around $100,000,000 in cash benefits during the next two months.

Wallace issued a brief statement but in it avoided giving any indication of whether he is impressed with results obtained during the past week in the campaign being carried personally to every farmer in the 16 cotton growing states. In all, 22,000 workers are aiding in the drive.

The program provides that growers have up to July 8 to sign contracts. After that time special permission must be obtained, unless Wallace finds it necessary to extend the campaign period further.

The agriculture secretary's statement today was intended in part to push the campaign to a wind-up by next week-end. Compilations of offer-contracts then could be made before the end of this month, determining definitely whether the program will be put into effect.

Wallace spoke as follows: "Progress has been made during the week just closed in the conduct of the campaign now being waged to induce the producers of cotton to reduce the planted acreage, thereby curtailing the crop now being made."

"The task of arranging for county committees and inspectors in the more than 800 counties scattered through 16 states was accomplished in record time. Complete organizations were ready to go into the field on Tuesday morning."

"Getting a sufficient number of contract forms, option forms, instructions and regulations into the hands of some 22,000 workers in the field was an even greater task. Delays were unavoidable so that it was not until Thursday of this week that these supplies were in the hands of all the various county authorities."

"Notwithstanding these delays, the county workers have made contact with hundreds of thousands of farmers and have made some progress in inducing the farmers to accept the offer made by the agricultural adjustment administration."

"It is the hope of the administration that before the close of the week now beginning every producer of cotton in the belt will have been given an opportunity to do his part in this effort to restore prosperity to the cotton belt and to improve the general economic situation of America."

"The farmer is being offered adequate cash compensation in return for his agreement to reduce his production. He is being given an opportunity to improve his own financial condition and at the same time to do his part towards economic recovery of the nation."

"Cash benefits have been carefully calculated to give greater return to the farmers who sign than to those who do not. The immediate self-interest of the individual farmer and the general interests of the south and the cotton belt have been made identical. Both would be helped by the success and injured by the failure of farmers to sign."

"This campaign is more than an effort to correct a local or sectional situation, more than an effort to restore prosperity to the cotton grower. It is an essential and integral part of the nation-wide campaign to restore prosperity to 725,000,000 people. "I urge upon your immediate action. It would indeed be a misfortune for the nation, and particularly for the cotton belt, for this campaign to fail."

Leland Harvey has averaged one prison break a year since he was sentenced in Georgia nine years ago for robbery.

Anthony Airolidi Handles Medicinal Water in City

Anthony Airolidi, son of Joseph Airolidi of the Airolidi Shoe shop, has secured the state distribution for the Bourne mineral waters from the wells at Detroit, Mich., and is actively engaged in placing the medicinal water in various localities in Louisiana.

Mr. Airolidi says that sale of the water has met with marked success both in Monroe and elsewhere and that it has become so popular he has met with some difficulty in supplying the demand.

He announces that he will maintain a delivery system and will take orders by telephone from his father's business on DeSiard street or a representative will call on request.

SUIT FOR $10,000 FILED YESTERDAY

Court Action Is Taken Against Ivy Norris
After Car Accident

Suit for $10,000 was filed in district court Saturday against Ivy Norris and the St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance company by William Norris, in behalf of his minor son, Walter Norris, 14. The suit grew out of an accident which occurred on the Monroe-Shreveport highway last December 27. Judgment of $1,250 against Ivy Norris and in favor of Marvin Brooks has already been rendered in connection with the accident.

According to the suit filed Saturday, Ivy Norris, Walter Norris and Marvin Brooks were riding toward West Monroe in a car owned and driven by Ivy Norris when the accident occurred. Serious injuries received by Walter Norris were alleged to have been caused through the carelessness and negligence of Ivy Norris. It was stated Walter Norris was riding in the car as a guest of Ivy Norris.

The suit stated that when the three were about three miles from West Monroe two automobiles about 300 feet away became entangled in such a way as to block the highway. It was charged that Ivy Norris was driving about 50 miles an hour, but that he should have had time to bring his car to a halt before colliding with the other machines, if the brakes on his car had been in good condition. Instead, he was said to have continued at the same speed and to have abandoned all efforts to control his car when about 50 feet from the other automobiles. The suit said he took his hands from the steering wheel and put his arms around Walter Norris in an effort to protect him from the crash he saw was impending.

Walter Norris' injuries were said to have consisted of a fracture of the skull and serious lacerations on the scalp, forehead and both cheeks. The suit asked $500 for medical expenses, $1,000 for loss of credit for one year's work in school, $2,500 for mental anxiety and $6,000 for pain, permanent disability and disfigurement.

ALVIN E. RAY, 23, DIES YESTERDAY

West Monroe Man to Be Buried This Afternoon at Hasley Cemetery

Alvin Eugene Ray, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ray, of 707 South Second street in West Monroe, died at the residence at 1:15 o'clock Saturday morning after an illness of some weeks.

Young Ray was a graduate of the Ouachita Parish high school, class of 1930, and after graduation enlisted in the United States army and was assigned to the Panama canal zone.

An injury, sustained to his knee and left leg, when in Panama, caused young Ray to be permitted to return home and he had been undergoing treatment which required his removal to Shreveport some weeks ago where the leg was amputated. Some days ago, he was removed

In addition to his parents, Mr. Ray leaves two brothers, Doyle and Russell Ray, of West Monroe.

The funeral will be held at the First Baptist church in West Monroe, today at 3 p. m., with Rev. E. Huntsberry, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in Hasley cemetery.

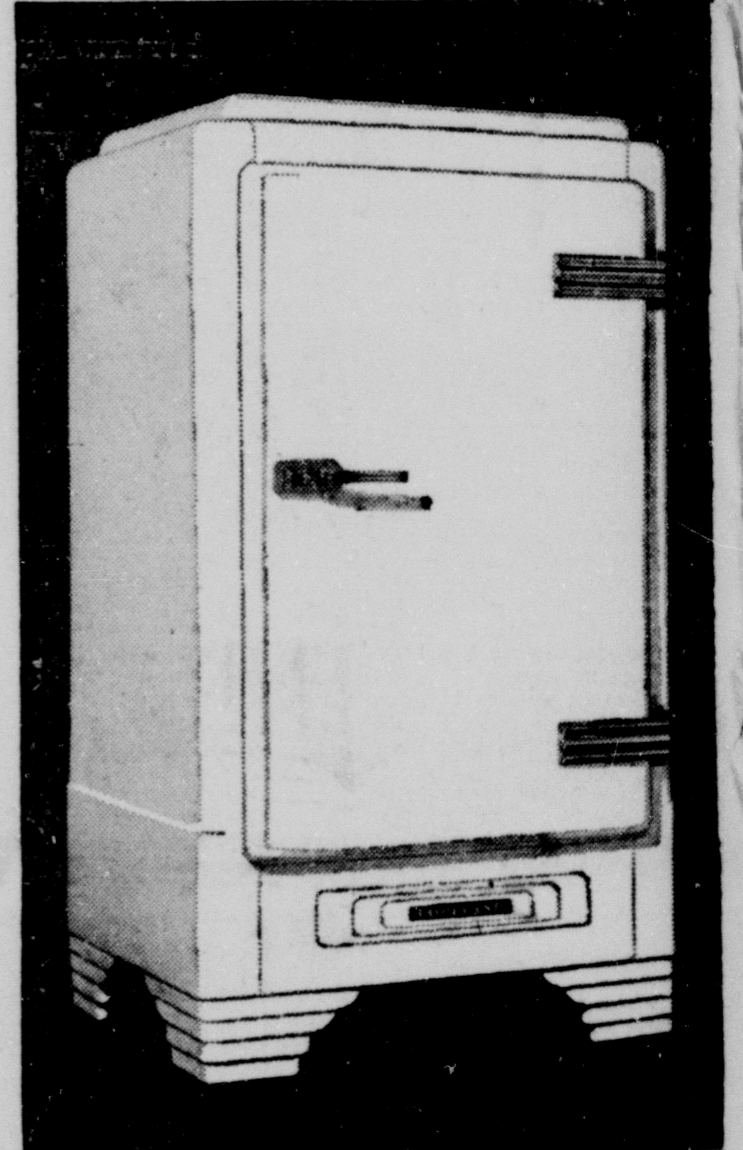

The Mercer quartette will furnish music at the services and members of the Telfis Grotto band are expected to be present as Mr. Ray was a member of this organization.

Pallbearers will be Fred Riser, Gu Armstrong, Jules Watts, Charles Barnell, Barney Mulhearn, Bill Simpson, Oliver Heard and Boy Grant.

All principals of the cast are professional. Paul English will be featured along with others who have well known reputations in the east in connection with big time musical shows. There will be 19 beautiful scenes and many gorgeously costumed girls in the production.

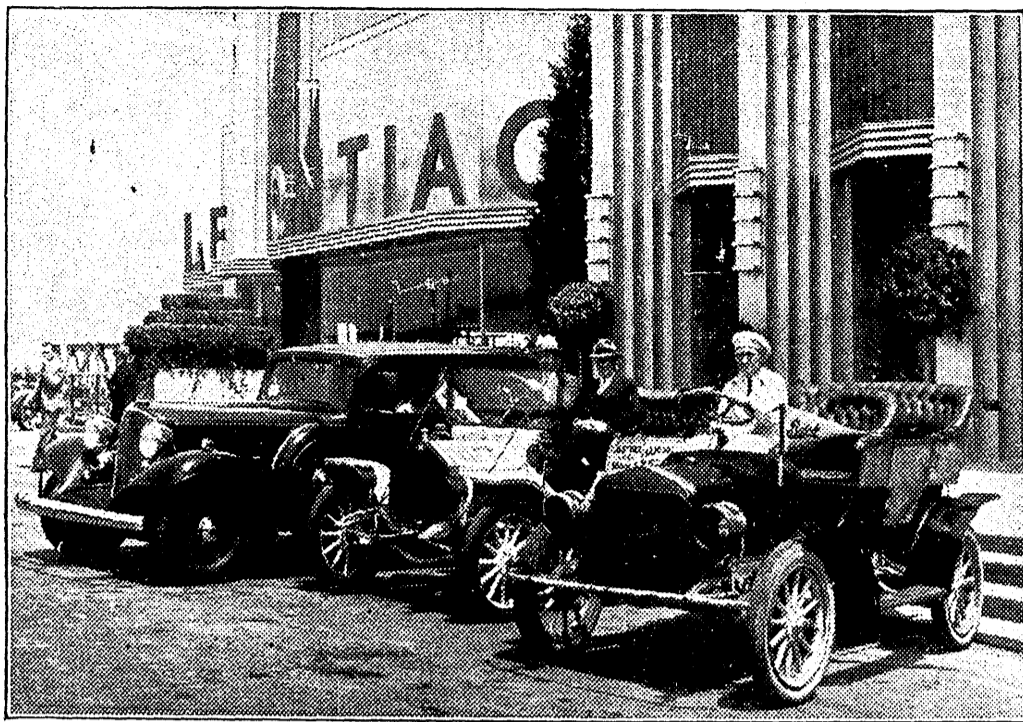

Roy Causey, who is in charge of publicity and the contest for selection of queen, has requested all who are interested in this affair to report to him at the newly opened headquarters. Those who have talent are requested to report to Bunny Biggs, who is at the same address in charge of arrangements for the cast.

An advance ticket sale will start Monday and everyone purchasing a ticket to the show is entitled to vote for the girl of his or her choice as "queen of prosperity."

Seeks to Collect After Man Is Shot to Death

Buick at A Century of Progress

When General Motors Corporation dedicated its building at A Century of Progress, Chicago, a feature of the ceremonies was a parade of cars made in the early history of the passenger car divisions. Buick was represented by two of the oldest automobiles displayed—one dated 1905 and the other 1909. The older veteran was driven by Henry Hopf, one of the oldest Buick owners. F. A. Bower, now chief engineer of Buick, drove the 1909 model, with R. H. Grant, a Vice-President of General Motors, as a passenger. W. F. Hufstader, Buick sales manager, is shown at the wheel of a 1933 Buick Sedan, which forms a striking contrast with its older brothers.

Penn Mutual Life Insurance company.

According to the suit, Ricks obtained a life insurance policy for $10,000 on August 19, 1926. This policy was said to have called for double indemnity, or the payment of $20,000 in case of death from other than natural causes.

After the death of Ricks, it was stated, the company was duly notified that he had died of gunshot wounds. Since that time, the petition alleged, the company has refused to pay the claim.

BANK INSURANCE TO START JAN. 1

Deposits to Be Protected Under Glass-Steagall Legislation

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—On next January 1, your deposits in any bank deemed sound enough to stay open for business will be insured against loss by bank closings.

This is provided by a section of the Glass-Steagall bank reform act, which though not a part of President Roosevelt's program, was enacted by the last congress.

The insurance, for the first six months, will be limited to $2,500 to each depositor. After July 1 of next year, deposits up to $10,000 will be fully insured and larger ones partially. After July 1, 1936, the insurance will cease to be in force for any banks not becoming national banks or entering the federal reserve system. Deposits in banks now closed or in hands of conservators, or which may be closed between now and next January, will not be insured.

The insurance fund will be handled by a federal deposit insurance corporation which will have a board of three, the comptroller of the currency and two citizens appointed by the president.

It will obtain original capital of $150,000,000 from the treasury, $175,000,000 from the reserves of federal reserve central banks; and a sum, yet unestimated, from banks whose deposits are insured, which will pay in one-half of one per cent of their total deposits.

In addition, the corporation will be authorized to borrow two dollars for each dollar of cash capital, giving it estimated total resources of more than $2,000,000,000 for the permanent fund. If a bank fails, the corporation will form a new national bank and turn over to it sufficient cash to meet the insured deposits of the failed institution.

In this way the depositor will be able to obtain his money immediately, instead of waiting for months or years and then getting only a small percentage.

The insurance plan let in non-member state banks for two years so these would not be closed by runs to the insured institutions. The state banks, however, must be examined by the insurance corporation to qualify.

To make it effective as quickly as possible, the temporary insurance up to $2,500 was provided. The sale of insurance under the permanent plan, beginning next July 1, is 100 per cent up to $10,000; 75 per cent from $10,000 to $50,000; and 50 per cent above $50,000.

All deposits in one bank belonging to one person will be lumped together to prevent full collection on big sums.

WALLACE URGES COTTON ACTION

Secretary Asks That Producers Get Behind Reduction Program

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—Secretary Wallace today urged that cotton producers "get under the wire" next week in signing offers to reduce acreage under the cotton program which contemplates the distribution of around $100,000,000 in cash benefits during the next two months.

Wallace issued a brief statement but in it avoided giving any indication of whether he is impressed with results obtained during the past week in the campaign being carried personally to every farmer in the 16 cotton growing states. In all, 22,000 workers are aiding in the drive.

The program provides that growers have up to July 8 to sign contracts. After that time special permission must be obtained, unless Wallace finds it necessary to extend the campaign period further.

The agriculture secretary's statement today was intended in part to push the campaign to a wind-up by next week-end. Complications of offer contracts then could be made before the end of this month, determining definitely whether the program will be put into effect.

Wallace spoke as follows: "Progress has been made during the week just closed in the conduct of the campaign now being waged to induce the producers of cotton to reduce the planted acreage, thereby curtailing the crop now being made.

"The task of arranging for county committees and inspectors in the more than 800 counties scattered through 16 states was accomplished in record time. Complete organizations were ready to go into the field on Tuesday morning.

Getting a sufficient number of contract forms, cotton forms, instructions and regulations into the hands of some 22,000 workers in the field was an even greater task. Delays were unavoidable so that it was not until Thursday of this week that these supplies were in the hands of all the various county authorities.

Notwithstanding these delays, the county workers have made contact with hundreds of thousands of farmers and have made some progress in inducing the farmers to accept the offer made by the agricultural adjustment administration.

"It is the hope of the administration that before the close of the week now beginning every producer of cotton in the belt will have been given an opportunity to do his part in this effort to restore prosperity to the cotton belt and to improve the general economic situation of America.

"The farmer is being offered adequate cash compensation in return for his agreement to reduce his production. He is being given an opportunity to improve his own financial condition and at the same time to do his part towards economic recovery of the nation.

"Cash benefits have been carefully calculated to give greater return to the farmers who sign than to those who do not. The immediate self-interest of the individual farmer and the general interests of the south and the cotton belt have been made identical. Both would be helped by the success and injured by the failure of farmers to sign.

"This campaign is more than an effort to correct a local or sectional situation, more than an effort to restore prosperity to the cotton grower. It is an essential and integral part of the nation-wide campaign to restore prosperity to 725,000,000 people.

"I urge upon your immediate action. It would indeed be a misfortune for the nation, and particularly for the cotton belt, for this campaign to fail."

Anthony Airolidi Handles Medicinal Water in City

Anthony Airolidi, son of Joseph Airolidi of the Airolidi Shoe shop, has secured the state distribution for the Bourne mineral waters from the wells at Detroit, Mich., and is actively engaged in placing the medicinal water in various localities in Louisiana.

Mr. Airolidi says that sale of the water has met with marked success both in Monroe and elsewhere and that it has become so popular he has met with some difficulty in supplying the demand.

He announces that he will maintain a delivery system and will take orders by telephone from his father's business on DeSiard street or a representative will call on request.

SUIT FOR $10,000 FILED YESTERDAY

Court Action Is Taken Against Ivy Norris After Car Accident

Suit for $10,000 was filed in district court Saturday against Ivy Norris and the St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance company by William Norris, in behalf of his minor son, Walter Norris, 14. The suit grew out of an accident which occurred on the Monroe-Shreveport highway last December 27. Judgment of $1,250 against Ivy Norris and in favor of Marvin Brooks has already been rendered in connection with the accident.

According to the suit filed Saturday, Ivy Norris, Walter Norris and Marvin Brooks were riding toward West Monroe in a car owned and driven by Ivy Norris when the accident occurred. Serious injuries received by Walter Norris were alleged to have been caused through the carelessness and negligence of Ivy Norris. It was stated Walter Norris was riding in the car as a guest of Ivy Norris.

The suit stated that when the three were about three miles from West Monroe two automobiles about 300 feet away became entangled in such a way as to block the highway. It was charged that Ivy Norris was driving about 50 miles an hour, but that he should have had time to bring his car to a halt before colliding with the other machines, if the brakes on his car had been in good condition. Instead, he was said to have continued at the same speed and to have abandoned all efforts to control his car when about 50 feet from the other automobiles. The suit said he took his hands from the steering wheel and put his arms around Walter Norris in an effort to protect him from the crash he saw was impending.

Walter Norris' injuries were said to have consisted of a fracture of the skull and serious lacerations on the scalp, forehead and both cheeks. The suit asked $500 for medical expenses, $1,000 for loss of credit for one year's work in school, $2,500 for mental anxiety and $6,000 for pain, permanent disability and disfigurement.

ALVIN E. RAY, 23, DIES YESTERDAY

West Monroe Man to Be Buried This Afternoon at Hasley Cemetery

Alvin Eugene Ray, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ray, of 707 South Second street in West Monroe, died at the residence at 1:15 o'clock Saturday morning, after an illness of some weeks.

Young Ray was a graduate of the Ouachita Parish high school, class of 1930, and after graduation enlisted in the United States army and was assigned to the Panama canal zone.

An injury, sustained to his knee and left leg, when in Panama, caused young Ray to be permitted to return home and he had been undergoing treatment which required his removal to Shreveport some weeks ago where the leg was amputated. Some days ago, he was removed

In addition to his parents, leaves two brothers, Doyle and Ray, of West Monroe.

The funeral will be held First Baptist church in West Monroe, today at 3 p. m., with R. H. Huntberry, pastor, officiating. The funeral will be held in Hasley cemetery. The Mercer quartette will music at the services and of the Telfis Grotto band, expected to be present as Mr. a member of this organization. Pallbearers will be Fred R. Armstrong, Jules Watts, Barnell, Barney Mulhearn, Simpson, Oliver Heard and Grant.

What Happened to Philip Hope

By Lucian Cary

THERE have been so many attempts to explain Philip Hope that it's time somebody told the whole story. It's true that Philip Hope had always had everything pretty much as he liked it. He was the youngest son of John Howard Hope. He was handsome, agreeable, and built like a fast light-heavyweight. That is, he was a trifle over six feet in height and lean. And he began playing tennis at an age when it is still possible to learn the game—at the age of ten.

It's true that almost the only bad break he ever had was in national singles championships at Forest Hills, when he was twenty-three. He had taken the first two sets and he was within two points of winning the third set and the match. He was running for a short one at the net when he stepped on a stray tennis ball and sprained his ankle so badly that they had to carry him off the court.

But everybody knew he would have won if the ball boys had been even reasonably careful about keeping the court clear. When the committee went into session after the season was over they unanimously voted him No. 1 in the national ranking and No. 1 he was even though another man held the national championship.

Philip Hope went up from Aiken to White Sulphur the following spring to meet the other candidates for the Davis Cup team. There was a youngster from the Pacific Coast—a long, lanky, red-headed, freckle-faced youngster named George Smith, who annoyed everybody at White Sulphur by his cocky way of announcing how badly he could beat any member of the first ranking ten. It was all the harder to bear because he did beat one man after another. He had so much speed and power that everybody was a little anxious over his first meeting with Philip Hope.

Even the newspaper men gathered round that afternoon. They saw what Joe Mulley had told them they would see. They saw what happens when a raw young man with a tremendous service and a whalloping forehand and a command of the volley meets a finished all-court player. Philip Hope beat young George Smith 5-6, 6-2, 6-1.

He went to the net to shake hands with young Smith, after the old and respected custom of tennis. Young Smith shook hands.

"If I had a private trainer and a private coach and a private car I'd have taken you," young Smith said.

"I'm sure you would," Philip Hope said.

"Yeah!" young Smith said. "And I will take you anyway—before the year's over."

He said it loud enough so the newspaper men and one member of the committee heard it.

THE committee came down to the courts the next afternoon just as practice was beginning. The candidates waited. The newspaper men strolled over. Philip's father and mother, who had stopped off the day before on their way from Aiken to open the New York house, stood by. And Joe Mulley, the professional, cocked one ear to listen—as if he hadn't been present at the conference and didn't know what the committee had decided.

The chairman read off the names—the two who were to represent the United States in the singles matches, and the two who would play in the doubles, and the alternates. The name of Philip Hope led all the rest.

Young George Smith crowded forward. "Listen," he said, "I didn't hear my name."

"No, Smith," the chairman said.

"You mean you didn't put me on the team?" young Smith cried.

"No, Smith," the chairman said. "Not this year. Perhaps next year when you've had more—"

"Next year!" young Smith shouted. "Next year!" But he wasn't as belligerent as he sounded. He was a boy who was hurt. He stood there staring at the chairman as if he were going to crown him with his racket and his lip trembled and the tears started in his eyes and suddenly he flung himself full length on the ground and sobbed shamelessly—out loud.

Even the newspaper men looked the other way.

PHILIP was relieved when Joe Mulley beckoned to him to come on and play. Joe Mulley was an old man. Joe was almost forty. But he was still a wizard with a racket. There was only one way to beat him. You had to use all the speed you had and still keep the ball in court. Philip let himself all out to beat Joe Mulley and to forget the spectacle of young George Smith sobbing. Philip had Joe 5-2 and was walking back to his baseline to serve when he noticed a girl sitting on a bench beside the court.

He didn't usually notice strange girls. Like most young men with famous fortunes behind them he had grown wary of girls—except, of course, the few he had always known. The fact that he didn't know the girl on the bench meant that she was out. But he noticed her just the same and wondered if she could be as nice as she looked.

Philip served his fast slice. The ball went like a bullet to the farthest corner of the service court and broke at a sharp angle. The ball would have been an ace against anybody but Joe Mulley. Joe got his racket on the ball. Joe sent back a high short lob. Philip got under it in three strides and poised himself to smash. He smashed to Joe's backhand corner. The ball was at least three inches out.

Joe looked at him. Philip grinned back. "You missed a set-up," Joe said. To miss a set-up was the one unforgivable sin. "Here," he said grimly, "try again."

Philip hit ten perfect smashes in succession—ten beautiful smashes that even Joe Mulley, standing yards behind his baseline, couldn't reach.

When Joe was satisfied, Philip Hope looked at the bench. The girl was gone.

He dined in the big dining-room with a lot of tennis bigwigs and pretended to listen to what the chairman said while he looked for the girl. She didn't come in. He escaped as quickly as he could after dinner and found a table in the writing-room that commanded a view of the lobby and pretended to read yesterday's New York morning paper while he watched for her.

He waited an hour. And then he saw her. She was alone. He jumped up. She came directly toward him. She was still wearing the tweed suit and the little hat.

"I beg your pardon," she said, "but aren't you Philip Hope?"

"Yes," he said. "Is there anything I can do for you?"

She smiled at him. "I'm from the New York Globe," she said. "I've been doing a series of interviews with champions for the sports section. They want an interview with you."

"I'm not a champion," Philip said.

"I know—but they tell me that's an accident—that you're undoubtedly the greatest tennis player in the world."

They sat down opposite each other and talked. At least she asked questions and Philip tried to answer them. He was used to being interviewed. But here he was hunting for words and staring at her and acting like a prep-school boy and feeling foolish and discovering nothing at all about her except that her name was Mary Lee and that she was leaving for New York early in the morning.

He told her he didn't wish to see her interview before it was published. He always told reporters that.

But Philip Hope bought the Globe every night when it came in from New York and turned to the sports section and looked for Mary Lee's interview.

He waited eight days before he opened the Globe and found her article. He hurriedly folded the paper and put it in his jacket pocket and went up to his room to read it.

He smiled as he read the first paragraph. It was the same old stuff about that great sporting family, the John Howards. But as he read deeper he was horrified at himself for being pleased. And as he read farther he saw that it wasn't the same old stuff.

Mary Lee had laid it on so thick that it wasn't funny. Mary Lee had laid it on with malice.

"THE youngest of the Hopes," she had written, "is the young girl's ideal and the young man's dream. Tall, good-looking, with a naturally crooning voice, he is fabulously rich. What is more, he is a superb athlete. When you see him smash a tennis ball you think 'How glorious!' He has all the grace of the lovely Paviowa and something tigerish besides. On a tennis court he's perfect. But, after dinner, in the evening, he's tired, as all athletes are, and a little sleepy and slow on the up-take. You ask him questions about tennis and he answers intelligently enough. He knows tennis. But you can be quite sure he's never read a book. I wish I'd asked him who the President of the United States is. I'm certain that he doesn't know. And why should he? He has serious things to think about—his smash, for instance."

Philip Hope crumpled up the newspaper and stuffed it into the wastebasket and walked up and down the room. He got the newspaper out of the wastebasket and straightened it out and tore Mary Lee's interview out of it and put it into his pocket. He called up the telegraph office and asked if there wasn't a telegram for him. "Very well, then," Philip Hope said, "send me one. Send me a telegram from New York asking me to come up at once on urgent family business. Sign it John Howard Hope—no, sign it John. That'll be my brother. Would you consider doing that for me?"

Philip drove to Washington and caught a train for New York and called up the Globe. They said Mary Lee had gone for the day.

He put a call in for Mary Lee first thing in the morning. "Will you go to lunch with me?" he asked.

"Oh," she said, "I'm frightfully busy to-day."

"Make it dinner, then," Philip said. "I have something important to tell you."

"If you really have a story I'll have to come," she said.

"When shall I stop for you?"

"DON'T call for me," she said. "I don't know when I'll be through. I'll meet you in the basement of the Brevort as soon after eight o'clock as I can make it."

He knew he was a fool. But he was there ten minutes ahead of time. She was wearing the same tweed suit and the same cocky little hat when she came in, an hour late.

"Well," she said, "what's the story?"

"I read your interview," Philip said.

"I hope I didn't make a lot of mistakes and get the tennis all wrong."

Philip shook his head. "No," he said, "your details were correct." She looked back at him as if she didn't know why he was outraged.

"Everything you did," he said, "you did on purpose."

"But I feel," she said, "I feel that somehow or other you didn't like my interview."

"I was so sore when I read it," Philip Hope said, "that I came all the way up here to protest."

"I've been wondering," she said, "what to do about that interview. Of course if you wrote a letter to the editor protesting against what I said, he'd print it."

"And I'd appear more of a fool than ever."

She nodded. "Yes," she said, "you would."

"What I'd really like to know is—why you did it."

"Did what?" she asked.

"Made me out a stupid ass," he said.

"Did you ever hear of envy?" she asked.

"But I can't imagine that you envy me," he said. "You feel infinitely superior to me."

SHE nodded. "Yes," she said, "I do. But at the same time I envy you your money. My father started a newspaper in a town out west—on a shoe-string. He went bust, of course. I had to leave college in my junior year. I landed in New York with ten dollars. Can't you imagine how envious I feel of a young man who is born to millions and never worries about anything except whether his backhand drive is working?"

"I can understand that perfectly," Philip Hope said. "I can imagine being extremely bitter about it. But that doesn't explain your contempt for me."

"I'm contemptuous," she said, "because you're so easily satisfied—because you don't know how to get any real fun out of your money. It's so childish, when you could do something interesting, to do nothing but play tennis."

"What would you do?" he asked.

She shrugged her shoulders. "What I would do is beside the point. It couldn't conceivably interest you."

"I wish you'd tell me what you would do," Philip said.

"I'd go back to Oklahoma," Mary Lee said, "and buy a daily paper and make a success of it and have the time of my life."

"Doing good," Philip said. "Righting wrongs. All that sort of thing."

"Why not?" she asked. "At least I'd hope to do more good than harm. But mostly I'd do it because it's fun—ten times as much fun as being a tennis player. And you can keep on doing it. You don't have to quit at thirty or whatever the deadline for tennis players is."

"I see," he said. "You think tennis is rather silly."

"I think," Mary Lee said, "that tennis is a grand game. But it's nothing more than a game. There's some excuse for a boy like that one who cried when he didn't make the Davis Cup team. He's a snub-nosed, bad-mannered, awkward boy who learned his tennis on the public courts and never had a lesson from a professional in his life. But it means a chance for him to meet the kind of people you've always known, merely because you were born a Hope. Perhaps he's wise to play tournament tennis until he gets a chance in the world. There's some excuse for you. But there's no excuse for me. Perhaps it's merely because I've been completely insulated from life—so that you can't learn anything about it."

"I know quite a lot about life," Philip Hope said.

Mary Lee smiled tolerantly. "No," she said. "You've too much money and too many friends and too grand a family.

Howard Hope—no, sign it John. That'll be my brother. Would you consider doing that for me?"

Philip drove to Washington and caught a train for New York and called up the Globe. They said Mary Lee had gone for the day.

He put a call in for Mary Lee first thing in the morning. "Will you go to lunch with me?" he asked.

"Oh," she said, "I'm frightfully busy to-day."

"Make it dinner, then," Philip said. "I have something important to tell you."

"If you really have a story I'll have to come," she said.

"When shall I stop for you?"

"DON'T call for me," she said. "I don't know when I'll be through. I'll meet you in the basement of the Brevort as soon after eight o'clock as I can make it."

He knew he was a fool. But he was there ten minutes ahead of time. She was wearing the same tweed suit and the same cocky little hat when she came in, an hour late.

"Well," she said, "what's the story?"

"I read your interview," Philip said.

"I hope I didn't make a lot of mistakes and get the tennis all wrong."

Philip shook his head. "No," he said, "your details were correct." She looked back at him as if she didn't know why he was outraged.

Mary Lee smiled tolerantly. "No," she said. "You've too much money and too many friends and too grand a family.

Mary Lee had buried her head in her typewriter. Mary Lee was sobbing as if her heart were broken.

You'll be a lot older than you are now before you know as much about life as young George Smith."

"That's a bit thick," Philip said. "I know infinitely more than young George Smith knows."

"No," Mary Lee said. "Nothing will ever happen to you that will make you throw yourself on the ground and sob in front of everybody."

"You rather like his doing that, don't you?"

"No," she said. "I thought it was childish. But at the same time I like him better than I like you. I wish he could beat you."

"He has a chance," Philip Hope said. "If he'd forget all about tournament play and go back to California and work from now till next September on his backhand he might beat me."

"So," Philip said, "you really do want him to beat me."

"It would be the romantic thing," she said. "The poor boy—with no advantages—who comes up from nothing, winning against the man who has everything."

"Yes," he said, "it would be the romantic thing. I'm sorry I shall have to prevent it."

They were silent until the cab stopped in front of her apartment. "I've been finding out something about your game," he said. "The newspaper game."

"Don't tell me you've read a book," Mary Lee said.

He grinned. "Yes," he said. "I've read my first book. And when do I see you again?"

"Oh," she said, "when you've beaten young George Smith you can come around and crow."

THE first rounds of the national championships were easy. He went through the first four days without losing a set. He dressed the afternoon of the finals—the afternoon he was to play young George Smith for the championship—without any excitement at all. Joe Mulley stood over him while he put on his shoes.

"You've got to give him the works in the first set," Joe said.

Philip nodded. He wondered if Mary Lee would be impressed with his buying a paper out West—a paper fifteen hundred miles from New York. The only thing to do was to convince her that he was serious; that he was not merely willing but eager to go out there and stay.

"You run him," Joe Mulley said. "You take your service and when he serves you make him run. That's all there is to it."

"Yes, Joe," Philip said.

Mary Lee had promised she'd go to dinner with him that night. The thing to do was to offer her a job. If she took it they'd see a lot of each other and anything could happen.

He walked out with Joe Mulley. He met young George Smith in the marquee. He stood beside young George Smith waiting for the moment to go down the steps to the court. Something made him turn his head. He turned his head and looked at the press table and saw Mary Lee sitting beside a telegraph operator.

Young George Smith won the toss and chose to serve. But Philip took the first set 12-10.

Philip looked up at the press box as they changed courts. Mary Lee was leaning forward intently.

"Here goes," he said to himself.

He went hard and fast. But young George Smith had learned a lot. He took the second set at 8-6. He took the third set at 6-4.

Philip went out that fourth set and gave everything he had. He rang young George Smith from corner to corner and pulled him in close and passed him clean—with the backhand down the side line. He took the fourth set at 6-4.

They had one more set to go. Philip glanced up at the press table. He couldn't see Mary Lee. Some fat tennis expert was in the way. Philip felt tired. But he saw that young George Smith was gray under his tan. He was tired, too.

Philip took his service. They alternated service. They alternated service until the score stood 9-9. It was still anybody's match. But it was young George Smith's turn to serve.

With a desperate sidewise leap he caught Philip's first return and killed it. Philip put the next one neatly over his head as he came in. Young George Smith retaliated with a service ace. Philip steadied himself behind his baseline. He was finished. But he had to go on. He had to win.

Young George served fiercely down the same groove, Philip connected, hard. The ball went for the far corner. The ball was six inches out. Young George served again. Philip popped it up—a lob to mid-court. Young George killed it with one ferocious smash. The score stood 9-10.

Philip began his service coolly. He had to win his service and two more games after that to take the match. He served what should have been an ace and young George got his racket on it and the ball went aloft and landed on the net cord and fell into Philip's court. He served again and ran in. Young George replied with a backhand shot down the side lines that nobody could have touched.

Philip served again. Young George hit the ball with everything he had and ticked the backhand corner.

"Match point," Philip thought, as he poised himself to serve again. He looked up at the marquee. He could see Mary

Lee's face in profile as she leaned forward. He served a fault.

He had to be careful now. He had to put that second ball in. If he didn't he lost the match. He served.

Young George took the ball on his backhand and leaned on it. The ball cleared the net by half an inch, coming like a bullet. Philip hit it into the net.

He ran forward to congratulate young George.

"I told you I'd take you," young George said.

Philip smiled correctly and walked over to Mary Lee. He thrust aside the fat tennis expert who blocked the way. Mary Lee had buried her head in her typewriter. Mary Lee was sobbing as if her heart were broken.

Philip put his arm around her. "What's the matter?" he asked in her ear. She only sobbed the harder. He shook her gently.

"Mary," he said, "what on earth's the matter?"

She lifted her face, all stained with tears. "You g-g-got b-b-beaten," she sobbed. "You g-g-got b-b-beaten and it was all m-m-m-fault!"

HE CAUGHT her by the shoulders and lifted her up and pushed her clear out of the marquee. He got her clear of the marquee while everybody was still milling around.

"I've got a car here somewhere," he said. "Are you going places with me?"

She looked up at him and nodded and put her head on his shoulder.

She wasn't in the least detached. She was like any other girl in love.

"I—I thought I wanted him to b-b-beat you," she said. "And I didn't—I didn't at all."

Philip Hope kissed her and put her in his car. They were a mile away by the time John Howard Hope got down to the marquee and cornered Joe Mulley and Jim Devlin.

And that's how most of the explanations started. Mrs. Hope's theory was that Philip Hope was overtennied. She knew, she said, when a horse was overtrained. And John Howard Hope's theory was that his son had been out late the night before. And Jim Devlin's theory was that Philip was burnt out. And Joe Mulley said nothing. He knew that the whole trouble was that Philip Hope had got interested in the newspaper business.

What Happened to Philip Hope

By Lucian Cary

THERE have been so many attempts to explain Philip Hope that it's time somebody told the whole story. It's true that Philip Hope had always had everything pretty much as he liked it. He was the youngest son of John Howard Hope. He was handsome, agreeable, and built like a fast light-heavyweight. That is, he was a trifle over six feet in height and lean. And he began playing tennis at an age when it is still possible to learn the game—at the age of ten.

It's true that almost the only bad break he ever had was in national singles championships at Forest Hills, when he was twenty-three. He had taken the first two sets and he was within two points of winning the third set and the match. He was running for a short one at the net when he stepped on a stray tennis ball and sprained his ankle so badly that they had to carry him off the court.

But everybody knew he would have won if the ball boys had been even reasonably careful about keeping the court clear. When the committee went into session after the season was over they unanimously voted him No. 1 in the national ranking and No. 1 he was even though another man held the national championship.

Philip Hope went up from Alken to White Sulphur the following spring to meet the other candidates for the Davis Cup team. There was a youngster from the Pacific Coast, a long, lanky, red-headed, freckle-faced youngster named George Smith, who annoyed everybody at White Sulphur by his cocky way of announcing how badly he could beat any member of the first ranking ten. It was all the harder to bear because he did beat one man after another. He had so much speed and power that everybody was a little anxious over his first meeting with Philip Hope.

Even the newspaper men gathered round that afternoon. They saw what Joe Mulley had told them would come. They saw what happened when a raw young man with a tremendous service and a wholesale forehead and a command of the volley meets a finished all-court player. Philip Hope beat young George Smith 5-6, 6-2, 6-1.

He went to the net to shake hands with young Smith after the old and respected custom of tennis. Young Smith shook hands.

"If I had a private trainer and a private coach and a private car I'd have taken you," young Smith said.

"I'm sure you would," Philip Hope said.

"Yeah," young Smith said. "And I will take you away before the year's over."

He said it loud enough so the newspaper men and the members of the committee heard it.

THE committee came down to the courts the next afternoon just as practice was beginning. The candidates waited. The newspaper men strolled over. Philip's father and mother, who had stopped off the day before on their way from Alken to open the New York house, stood by. And Joe Mulley, the professional, coked one ear to listen as if he hadn't been present at the conference and didn't know what the committee had decided.

The chairman read off the names—the two who were to represent the United States in the singles matches, and the two who would play in the doubles, and the alternates. The name of Philip Hope led all the rest.

Young George Smith crowded forward. "Listen," he said, "I didn't hear my name."

"No, Smith," the chairman said.

"You mean you didn't put me on the team?" young Smith cried.

"No, Smith," the chairman said. "Not this year. Perhaps next year when you've had more—"

"Next year?" young Smith shouted. "Next year?" But he wasn't an belligerent as he sounded. He was a boy who was hurt. He stood there staring at the chairman as if he were going to crown him with his racket and his lip trembled and the tears started in his eyes and suddenly he flung himself full length on the ground and buried his face in his arms and sobbed shamelessly—out loud.

Even the newspaper men looked the other way.

PHILIP was relieved when Joe Mulley beckoned to him to come on and play. Joe Mulley was an old man. Joe was almost forty. But he was still a wizard with a racket. There was only one way to beat him. You had to use all the speed you had and still keep the ball in court. Philip let himself all out to beat Joe Mulley and to forget the spectacle of young George Smith sobbing. Philip had Joe 5-2 and was walking back to his baseline to serve when he noticed a girl sitting on a bench beside the court.

He didn't usually notice strange girls. Like most young men with famous fortunes behind them he had grown wary of girls—except, of course, the few he had always known. The fact that he didn't know the girl on the bench meant that she was out. But he noticed her just the same and wondered if she could be as nice as she looked.

Philip served his first slice. The ball went like a bullet to the farthest corner of the service court and broke at a sharp angle. The ball would have been an ace against anybody but Joe Mulley. Joe got his racket on the ball. Joe sent back a high short lob. Philip got under it in three strides and poked himself to smash. He smashed to Joe's backhand corner. The ball was at least three inches out.

Joe looked at him. Philip grinned back.

"You missed a set-up," Joe said. "To miss a set-up was the one unforgivable sin. 'Here,' he said grimly, 'try again.'"

Philip hit ten perfect smashes in succession—ten beautiful smashes that even Joe Mulley, standing yards behind his back line, couldn't reach.

When Joe was out of breath, Philip Hope looked at the bench. The girl was gone.

He dived in the big dining room with a lot of tennis rackets and pretended to listen to what the chairman said while he looked for the girl. She didn't come in. He escaped as quickly as he could after dinner and found a table in the writing room that commanded a view of the tennis and pretended to read yesterday's New York morning paper while he watched for her.

He waited an hour. And then he saw her. She was alone. He jumped up. She came promptly toward him. She was still wearing the tweed suit and the little hat.

"I beg your pardon," she said. "But aren't you Philip Hope?"

"Yes," he said. "I'm here any time I can do for you."

She smiled at him. "I'm from the New York Globe," she said. "I've been getting a lot of letters from you in the sports section. They want an interview with you."

"I'm not a newspaper," Philip said. "I know it, but they tell me that's an accident. That you're undoubtedly the greatest tennis player in the world."

"They are down opposite each other and talked. At last she asked questions and Philip tried to answer them. He was used to being interviewed. But here he was hunting for words and staring at her and acting like a preoccupied man and feeling lonely and dissatisfied and not at all about her except that her name was Mary Lee and that she was leaving for New York soon. In the morning.

He told her he didn't want to see her tomorrow before it was published. He always found the papers that.

But Philip Hope found the Globe every night when it came in from New York and turned to the sports section and looked for Mary Lee's interview.

He waited eight days before he opened the Globe and found her article. He hurriedly folded the paper and put it in his pocket and went up to his room to read it.

He smiled as he read the first paragraph. It was the same old stuff about that great sporting family, the John Howard Hopes. But as he read deeper he was horrified at himself for being pleased. And as he read further he saw that it wasn't the same old stuff.

Mary Lee had laid it on so thick that it wasn't funny. Mary Lee had laid it on with nature.

"THE youngest of the Hopes," she had written. "The young girl's ideal and the young nation's dream. Tall, good-looking, with a naturally commanding voice, he is a superb athlete. When you see him smash a tennis ball you think 'How glorious!' He has all the graces of the lovely ladies and something thereabouts. On a tennis court he's perfect. But, after dinner, in the evening he's tired, at all athletes are, and a little sleepy and slow on the up-take. You ask him questions about tennis and he answers intelligently enough. He knows tennis. But you can be quite sure he's never read a book. I wish I'd asked him what the President of the United States is. I'm certain that he doesn't know. And why should he? He has serious things to think about his smashes for instance."

Philip Hope crunched up the newspaper and stuffed it into the wastebasket and walked up and down the room. He got the newspaper out of the wastebasket and straightened it out and tore Mary Lee's interview out of it and put it into his pocket.

He called up the telephone office and asked if there wasn't a telegram for him.

"Very well, then," Philip Hope said. "Send me one. Send me a telegram from New York asking me to come up at once on urgent family business. Sign it John Howard Hope—no, sign it John. That'll be my brother. Would you consider doing that for me?"

Philip drove to Washington and caught a train for New York and culled up the Globe. They said Mary Lee had gone for the day.

He put a call in for Mary Lee first thing in the morning. "Will you go to lunch with me?" he asked.

"Oh," she said. "I'm frightfully busy to day."

"Make it dinner, then," Philip said. "I have something important to tell you."

"If you really have a story I'll have to come," she said.

"When shall I stop for you?"

"DON'T call for me," she said. "I don't know when I'll be through. I'll meet you in the basement of the Trevort as soon after eight o'clock as I can make it."

He knew he was a fool. But he was there ten minutes ahead of time.

She was wearing the same tweed suit and the same cocky little hat when she came in, an hour late.

"Well," she said, "what's the story?"

"I read your interview," Philip said.

"I hope I didn't make a lot of mistakes and get the tennis all wrong."

Philip shook his head. "No," he said. "Your details were correct. I looked back at him and she didn't know why he was outraged.

"Everything you did," he said, "you did on purpose."

"But I feel," she said, "I feel that some how or other you didn't like my interview."

"I was so sure when I read it," Philip Hope said, "that I came all the way up here to protest."

"I've been wondering," she said, "what to do about that interview. Of course if you wrote a letter to the editor protesting against what I said, he'd print it."

"And I'd appear more of a fool than ever."

She nodded. "Yes," she said. "You would."

"What if I really like to know why you did it?"

"If I what?" she asked.

"Made me out a stupid ass," he said.

"Did you ever hear of envy?" she asked.

"But I can't imagine that you envy me," he said. "You feel inferior to me."

SHE nodded. "Yes," she said. "I do. But at the same time I envy you your money. My father started a newspaper in a town out west on a shoe string. He went out of business. I had to leave college in my junior year. I landed in New York with a few dollars. Can't you imagine how envious I feel of a young man who is born to millions and who can do anything he wants except whether his backhand drive is working?"

"I can understand that per-son," Philip Hope said. "I can imagine being extremely bitter about it. But that doesn't explain your contempt for me."

"It's contemptuous," she said. "I'm not so easily satisfied. Because you don't know how to get any real fun out of your money. It's no childish, when you could do something interesting to do nothing but play tennis."

"What would you do?" he asked.

She shrugged her shoulders. "What I would do is beside the point. It couldn't conceivably interest you."

"I wish you'd tell me what you would do," Philip said.

"I'd go back to Oklahoma," Mary Lee said. "And buy a daily paper and make a success of it and have the time of my life."

"I'm glad," Philip said. "I'm glad you're going. All that sort of thing."

"Why not?" she asked. "At least I'd hope to do more good than harm. But mostly I'd do it because it's fun—ten times as much fun as being a tennis player. And you can keep on doing it. You don't have to quit at three or whatever the deadline for tennis players is."

"I see," he said. "You think tennis is rather silly."

"I think," Mary Lee said. "That tennis is a grand game. But it's nothing more than a game. There's some excuse for a boy like that one who cried when he didn't make the Davis Cup team. He's a snub-nosed, half-murdered, awkward boy who has heard his name on the public courts and never had a lesson from a professional in his life. But it means a chance for him to meet the kind of people you've always known, merely because you were born a Hope. Perhaps he'd like to play tournament tennis until he gets a chance in the world. There's some excuse for him. But there's no excuse for you. Perhaps it's merely being completely insulated from life so that you can't learn anything about it."

"I know quite a lot about life," Philip Hope said.

Mary Lee called, tolerantly. "No," she said. "You've too much money and too many friends and too grand a family.

WHAT HAPPENED TO PHILIP HOPE 7-2

You'll be a lot older than you are now before you know as much about life as young George Smith."

"That's a bit thick," Philip said. "I know infinitely more than young George Smith knows."

"No," Mary Lee said. "Nothing will ever happen to you that will make you throw yourself on the ground and sob in front of everybody."

"You rather like his doing that, don't you?"

"No," she said. "I thought it was childish. But at the same time I like him better than I like you. I wish he could beat you."

"He has a chance," Philip Hope said. "If he'd forget all about tournament play and go back to California and work from now till next September on his backhand he might beat me."

MARY LEE rose to go. "I'd like to tell him that," she said. "I'd like to tell him that you said that."

"Why don't you?"

"It doesn't seem quite fair."

"But it's what I'd tell him if I had a chance," Philip said.

"All right," she said. "I'll take you at your word. I'll write him."

"I'll be mailing soon to play in the Davis Cup matches," he said. "I shan't be back at New York much before August. Couldn't we go out to dinner again this week?"

"It would be ever so much better if we didn't," Mary Lee said. "I can't imagine our having any real conversation. We're too different."

"Suppose then," he said, "we went somewhere and danced and didn't talk at all?"

She shook her head. "I can't hear to dance with men I can't talk to," she said.

Philip Hope went up and sat around until his father and mother came home.

They looked at him. They raised their eyebrows at each other.

"What's happened, Philip?" his mother asked.

"How much," he said. "No newspapers cost."

"Newspapers," his father said. "Are awful. A man can lose more money on a daily newspaper than anything else in the world. A racing stable is a mere trifle beside a newspaper."

"Just the same," Philip said. "I'm thinking of trying it out."

"Really," Philip's mother said. "No," she said. "You've too much money and too many friends and too grand a family.

other silly business. You're a member of the Davis Cup team."

SO PHILIP had a long talk with his father before the next morning and started a few things and went over to where his father was. He stayed for a month and he had learned quite a good deal about the newspaper business and found the people to whom he could learn more.

He came back in August and called on Mary Lee.

"Yes," she said. "I will go out to dinner with you this evening."

"They changed after that," he said. "I've been looking out the window and I've been thinking about you."

"He has a chance," Philip Hope said. "If he'd forget all about tournament play and go back to California and work from now till next September on his backhand he might beat me."

"No," Philip said. "You really do want him to beat me."

"I would be the romantic thing," she said. "The poor boy with no advantages who came up from nothing, winning against the man who has everything."

"Yes," he said. "It would be the romantic thing. I'm sorry I shall have to prevent it."

"They were silent until the cab stopped in front of her apartment. 'I've been looking out something about your name,' he said. 'The new paper game.'"

"Don't tell me you've read a book," Mary Lee said.

He grinned at her. "I've read a book," he said. "I've read a book about you. And when do I see you again?"

"Oh," she said. "When you've beaten young George Smith you can come around and crack."

PHILIP lost rounds of the national championships were made. He went through the first round without losing a set.

He dressed the afternoon of the next day. The afternoon he was to play young George Smith for the championship without any previous at all. Joe Mulley stood over him while he put on his shoes.

"You've got to give him the works in the first set," Joe said.

Philip nodded. He wondered if Mary Lee would be impressed with his business primer on West.

A paper fifteen hundred miles from New York. The only thing to do was to convince her that he was a champion. That he was not a mere underdog but eager to go out there and stay.

"You run him," Joe Mulley said. "You take your service and when he serves you make him run. That's all there is to it."

"Yes, Joe," Philip said.

Mary Lee had promised to go to dinner with him that night. The thing to do was to offer her a good dinner. A big dinner. A lot of each other and anything could happen.

He walked out with Joe Mulley. He met young George Smith in the marquee. He stood beside young George Smith waiting for the moment to go down the steps to the court. Something made him turn his head. He turned his head and looked at the press table and saw Mary Lee sitting beside a telegraph operator.

Young George Smith won the first and chose to serve. But Philip took the first set 12-10.

Philip looked up at the press box as they changed courts. Mary Lee was leaning forward intently.

"There goes," he said to himself.

He went hard and fast. But young George Smith had learned a lot. He took the second set at 5-6. He took the third set at 6-4.

Philip went out that fourth set and gave everything he had. The long young George Smith from corner to corner and pulled him in close and passed him down the backhand down the side line. He took the fourth set at 6-4.

They had one more set to go. Philip flung up at the press table. He couldn't see Mary Lee. Some fat tennis expert was in the way. Philip felt tired. But he saw that young George Smith was yawning under his fan. He was tired, too.

Philip took his service. They alternated service. They alternated service until the score stood 5-9. It was still anybody's match. But it was young George Smith's turn to serve.

With a desperate sideways leap he caught Philip's foot and returned it. Philip put the next one neatly over his head as he came in. Young George Smith retched with a service ace. Philip steadied himself behind his back line. He was flushed. But he had to go on. He had to win.

Young George served barely down the same groove. Philip connected hard. The ball went for the far corner. The ball was six inches out. Young George served again. Philip poked it up a bit to mid-court. Young George killed it with one ferocious smash. The score stood 9-10.

Philip began his service coolly. He had to win his service and two more games after that to take the match. He served what should have been an ace and young George got his racket on it and the ball went aloft and landed on the net cord and fell into Philip's court. He served again and ran in. Young George replied with a backhand shot down the side lines that nobody could have touched.

Philip served again. Young George hit the ball with everything he had and ticked the backhand corner.

"Match point," Philip thought, as he poised himself to serve again. He looked up at the marquee. He could see Mary

Lee's face in profile as she leaned forward. He served a fault.

He had to be careful now. He had to get that second ball in. If he didn't he lost the match. He served.

Young George took the ball as his backhand and landed on it. The ball cleared the net by half an inch, coming like a bullet. Philip hit it into the net.

He ran forward to congratulate young George.

"I told you I'd take you," young George said.

Philip smiled correctly and walked over to Mary Lee. He thrust aside the fat tennis expert who blocked the way. Mary Lee had buried her head in her typewriter. Mary Lee was sobbing as if her heart were broken.

Philip put his arm around her. "What's the matter?" he asked in her ear. She only sobbed the harder. He shook her gently.

"Mary," he said. "What on earth's the matter?"

She lifted her face, all stained with tears. "You expect to be beaten," she sobbed. "You got put to defeat and it was all in my flash."

HE CAUGHT her by the shoulders and lifted her up and pushed her clear out of the marquee. He put her clear of the marquee while everybody was still milling around.

"I've got a car here somewhere," he said. "Are you going places with me?"

She looked up at him and nodded and put her head on his shoulder.

(She wasn't in the least detached. She was like any other girl in love.)

"I thought I wanted him to beat me," she said. "And I didn't expect it at all."

Philip Hope lifted her and put her in the car. They were a long way by the time John Howard Hope and Joe Mulley and Jim Devlin.

And that was most of the explanation. Philip Hope's theory was that Philip Hope was overestimated. That's all, he said, when a horse was overtrained. And John Howard Hope's theory was that his son had been out late the night before. And Jim Devlin's theory was that Philip was burnt out. And Joe Mulley said nothing. He knew that the whole trouble was that Philip Hope had got interested in the newspaper business.
